Two Counties Under Martial Law.

Le Mars, Ia., April 28.—[Special.]—With 250 Iowa state guardsmen, charged with the duty of enforcing martial law over Plymouth county, patrolling the streets this evening, stern action was promised against members of a mob which seized and threatened to hang District Judge Charles C. Bradley yesterday.

Col. Glen C. Haynes, commander of the militia, who flew here from Des Moines by order of Gov. Herring, announced after a conference with Judge Bradley and other officials that he had a list of forty reported to have been in the mob and that he would start arresting these men tomorrow.

Governor Doubts Farm Leadership.

One of the things that most interested the state officials was a report that the mob was not led by farmers but by radical agitators from the cities.

Gov. Herring said, after proclaiming martial law here and in Crawford county, where rioting broke out today, that he had information to indicate the attack on Judge Bradley was carried out by "Sioux City hoodlums," or, at least, under their direction.

This statement was corroborated tonight by Brig. Gen. Park Findley, commander of the Iowa National Guard. He announced, at Des Moines, that several known communists were in the mobs here and in Crawford county and the military had been instructed to bring them in for questioning at once.

Report Farmers Recognized.

Residents of Le Mars, however, who saw more than a hundred men sweep into the courtroom of Judge Bradley, drag him from the bench and slap and choke him before carrying him outside and fixing a rope around his neck, said they were sure the mob was composed of farmers. Tillers of the soil from Primrose, O'Brien and Sioux counties were recognized, it was related.

"It seemed to be a crowd without direction," said one observer, "moving under the impulses of mob psychology. The members had gone into the court to demand that Judge Bradley refuse to sign any more foreclosure actions. When he declined to promise that on oath the mob seemed to move mechanically about seizing him.

"No orders were given. It was just an upsweep of ideas that had long lain dormant; one of them that the law, finance, and the world at large were in a conspiracy to make life unbearable for poor farmers."

Area Hit by Drought.

This observer pointed out that this section has a larger percentage of tenantry than almost any other part of Iowa, and that the plagues of drought and grasshoppers had well nigh ruined them before the low prices of farm products in the last year or two impelled them to adopt the methods of revolutionaries.

Three of the companies of militia sent here came from Sioux City and are under command of Col. Gordon C. Hollar. A fourth is from Sheldon and a fifth is to arrive later. The men carried full field equipment and are quartered for the time being in the armory. They experienced no difficulty in taking possession of the town and were, in fact, welcomed warmly by most of the citizens.

Prosecution Urged by Bar.

At a meeting of the Plymouth County Bar association this afternoon a resolution calling on the governor and all Iowa executive officers, also federal authorities if their aid was necessary, to "prosecute and punish the perpetrators of all such outrages" as the attack on the judge. Punishment was also requested for persons who have aided or abetted the agitators with inflammatory speeches and counsels.

Meanwhile Judge Bradley, suffering only slight effects of the manhandling by the mob, went to court and presided over a routine session. He said that he had not recognized any of those who seized him, although he had been on the district bench for many years.

Judge Defends Sheriff.

The judge also defended Sheriff R. E. Rippey, who was referred to by Gov. Herring as "a weak sister." He asserted the sheriff had been out preserving order at a farm holiday meeting Wednesday night and that he was asleep when the mob went to the courthouse. The sheriff issued a brief

COUNTY'S NEW TAX WEAPON IS PUT IN ACTION

Predict Collection of $100,000,000.

A few hours after Gov. Horner signed the Skarda bill at Springfield, Chicago officials yesterday started operation of the machinery provided by the bill to bring in the delinquent taxes needed to pay teachers and other public employés. Mayor Kelly predicted that the measure would bring in $100,000,000 in back real estate taxes.

The bill empowers County Treasurer McDonough to step in as receiver of income bearing properties on which taxes are delinquent, and apply rents and other income on back tax bills. His staff was busy yesterday getting up a list of such properties. The first applications for receiverships are scheduled to be made Monday by Thomas D. Nash, attorney for the treasurer.

Agitators Attack Law.

Agitators long prominent in tax strike activities started their propaganda against the Skarda law last night. At the Auditorium theater John M. Pratt and James E. Bistor, leaders of the moribund Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, gathered some 2,000 persons, most of them small home owners.

A series of inflammatory speeches reached a climax when Pratt shouted to his audience, "Don't pay your tax bills," and the following speaker tore up a handful of tax bills and scattered them in the faces of his listeners.

Both Mayor Kelly and Treasurer McDonough were careful to point out yesterday that the provisions of the Skarda act were not intended to apply to small home owners and would under no circumstances be used as a weapon against them.

Plan Other Restrictions.

They also indicated that other careful restrictions would be set up to prevent injury to innocent taxpayers through enforcement of the act which is regarded as the most powerful weapon ever given public officials in Illinois for dealing with tax dodgers.

"I want to emphasize the fact," said McDonough, "that we are not going to direct this campaign against home owners. I assured both houses of the legislature that the powers of the measure will be used only against owners of property who are deliberately refusing to pay their taxes."

Predicts No Hardships.

"It is merely to drive the large tax dodger, who can pay his bill, to pay," said Mayor Kelly. "I don't believe any hardship will be worked on anybody, because that is not the intent of the bill."

Under the plans suggested yesterday by the mayor and McDonough, the public receiverships for tax collecting purposes will be kept clear of the opprobrium which has fallen upon private receivership actions because of high fees allowed receivers and their attorneys.

It is proposed that county or other employés act as receivers without compensation. In the same manner the legal work would be done, without extra compensation, by members of the regular legal staffs of various local governments.

Plan Conference Today.

Further details of the receivership machinery are to be discussed at a conference today in McDonough's office. Mayor Kelly, Corporation Counsel Sexton, State's Attorney Courtney, Emmet Whelan, president of the county board, and Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district, have been invited to attend.

It may be possible in cases where defendants in the receivership proceedings will act in good faith to allow them to continue the management of their own properties, McDonough suggested. If this is done the owners or present receivers or trustees would give the treasurer an assignment on all rents and income. He would return to them the funds necessary for operating expenses, applying the remainder on the delinquent tax bills.

Moral Effect of Law.

"I believe that once we go into court and have receivers appointed for a few properties under the Skarda act," said Mr. Nash, "the moral effect will be sufficient to cause the owners of other properties who are withholding taxes to pay. I don't believe now that it will be necessary for the treasurer to go into the wholesale receivership business."

Mr. Nash and Hayden N. Bell, head of the civil law department of the state's attorney's office, pointed out that the Skarda act, taken in conjunction with the Jarecki plan for fund-

Mr. Berg Does His Stunts in Tarzan Style

Standing outside the second floor room of William Berg at 11326 Wentworth avenue is a large poplar tree, some of whose sturdy branches extend invitingly near to his window.

Berg is 22 years old and a devotee of muscular things, and so every morning about 6 or 7 o'clock it was his habit to stand on the sill of his bedroom window and leap agilely to these inviting branches, some five feet away. He would land with the sureness of a tropical anthropoid and descend down the tree with a few more leaps and bounds until he reached the ground.

Nurses Early Risers, Too.

There in utter oblivion he would turn handsprings and cavort about with vigorous abandon. It happens, however, that the nurses' home of the Roseland Community hospital is across the street and the nurses, like Berg, arose about 6 or 7 a. m.

Berg's tree descending activities and ground callisthenics interested them until, during several somewhat warm mornings, he turned out for his morning tree acrobatics and ground exercises wearing only simple loin garments. The nurses notified police. That was on April 4. Since then Policemen Joseph Burke and Edward Walsh of Kensington station kept a morning vigil for his appearance. They did not catch him until yesterday, when the morning was warm.

He's Physical Culturist.

"Why, I'm a graduate of a physical culture school in Indiana," protested young Berg. "I selected the early morning hours for my exercises because I figured no one would see me. Why did I get to the ground by the way of the tree? Why, that's easier than climbing down stairs."

Police shook their heads in wonderment. Then they looked into Berg's room. They found a dog and two cats. They searched some more and found two rubber bags which, blown up, were rubber figures of apes. Policeman Walsh smiled as a sudden light came to him.

"He climbs trees and he keeps a zoo with rubber monkeys," he observed. "Mr. Berg's the Tarzan of Roseland."

Œdipus, the Octopus, Gets Some Purple Shelled Crabs

A basket of purple shelled crabs arrived yesterday at the Shedd aquarium from San Francisco to feed Œdipus, the octopus. The octopus, captured at Key West, Fla., has broken all records for the life span of such creatures in northern aquariums, according to Walter H. Chute, director. Œdipus has now lived five weeks. Mr. Chute hopes that with care it will exist through the duration of the World's Fair.

CHICAGO TURNS CLOCKS AHEAD AN HOUR TONIGHT

Daylight saving time, which takes an hour of daylight from the morning and adds it to the evening, goes into effect in Chicago at 2 a. m. tomorrow.

Most Chicagoans will set their clocks ahead an hour before retiring tonight. The hour of sleep they will lose will be regained the last Sunday in September, when the city goes back to central standard time. The change provides an additional hour of daylight for sports, gardening, or other outdoor activities.

The Illinois Central and North Shore Line suburban trains will operate on daylight saving time. The Chicago and North Western and the Milwaukee will continue on standard time for all trains, but will adjust their suburban schedules to meet the change of the clocks of their patrons. The arrival time of a number of through trains on various roads will be changed to bring outsiders to Chicago earlier.

Youth Robs Dress Shop, and Is His Face Red!

A young gunman left the Gay Time Frock shop at 1107 East 63d street yesterday with $50 and considerable embarrassment. He forced Dora Seglin, 6218 Rhodes avenue, the manager, and Grace Ford, 1326 East Marquette road, and Catherine Godishak, 6311 Greenwood avenue, patrons, to stand against the wall and then took $30 from the till and $20 from Miss Godishak. Then he stepped into a booth and stepped right out again, his face red. Inside was a 19 year old girl customer, very scantily clad, who was preparing for a fitting.

Unions Raided, Two Kidnaped by Touhy Gang

Police were mystified by reports this morning of a bold machine gun raid by the northwest side Touhy gang on union headquarters at 637 South Ashland avenue, and the kidnaping of two men believed to be prominent in labor affairs.

The raid and abduction took place early yesterday. At 6 o'clock this morning, more than twenty hours later, the victims, Fred Sass and Morris Goldberg, were still missing. No official report has been made to police. So far as police are concerned, it is not known whether the men are dead or alive.

Business Agent Seized.

Sass is reported to be a business agent for the Ash Wagon Drivers' union. Goldberg, whose labor connections were not learned, but are believed important, is a brother-in-law of William [Klondike] O'Donnell, west side gang leader. The union building in South Ashland avenue, where the raid took place, is occupied by the Ash Wagon drivers, the Chicago Coal Teamsters' union, and the Ice Cream Wagon Drivers' union.

The raid was led, it is asserted, by Roger Touhy, leader of the mob bearing his name—the toughest mob, police say, to spring into existence since the imprisonment of Al Capone and the breaking up of his gang. With him, it is learned, were his brother, John Touhy, William Sharkey and two other men.

All Have Machine Guns.

All five marched into the Ashland avenue building, each carrying a submachine gun. A half dozen men in the halls were quickly lined up and herded into another room. For three hours the Touhy gang held the union headquarters under guard and took prisoner every person entering. One by one the captives were herded into a large room until 100 or more of them were assembled. Two of the gangsters kept them passive under threat of the machine guns.

Sass and Goldberg were among the last men taken prisoner, and after a short time they were escorted to the outside and shoved into a big automobile. The five machine gunners then drove away with their prisoners, who have not been heard from since.

Detectives familiar with the operations of the Touhys were at a loss to explain the kidnaping or the venture so far into the city of the gang. However, it is known that George [Red] Barker, hoodlum, who was slain last year, was friendly with the Touhys. At his death he was boss of the coal teamsters. He has been succeeded by William [Three-Fingered Jack] White.

FARM BILL WINS 64-20; NEW U. S. PEACE MOVE

Measure as Passed Contains Mortgage Relief Plan.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Power unheard of in the peace time history of the United States was delegated to President Roosevelt tonight as the senate passed the combined administration farm bill, farm mortgage bill, and—outstanding in its grant of authority—the Thomas inflation amendment.

The vote on final passage of the bill was 64 to 20.

As soon as almost certain house concurrence is had in the inflation and farm mortgage riders and in other less important senate amendments the President and members of his cabinet will be endowed with authorities never before wielded by the executive. The farm bill in a different form already has been passed by the house. It is expected the house will speedily concur in the senate measure.

Control Farm Production.

By the farm relief section of the measure the President through his secretary of agriculture will have power to control farm production through agreements with farmers; to reward farmers with benefit payments; to levy taxes on processors of basic farm commodities; to enter into agreements with handlers of those commodities regardless of laws relating to restraint of trade, to license all handlers of the commodities, and by the sum of these powers to fix prices on the most important food commodities at a level calculated to restore to the farmer his pre-war purchasing power.

Or, in his discretion, the secretary of agriculture may put into effect a straight out price fixing plan by which he would declare the cost of production of basic farm commodities and make it illegal for any price less than cost of production to be paid to the producer.

Farm Mortgaging Section.

Under the farm mortgage refinancing section of the bill, the federal land banks are to be authorized to issue two billions of 4 per cent bonds, the interest of which is to be guaranteed by the government, and which will be used to take up and refinance farm mortgages at a 4½ per cent interest rate, with payments on principal held in abeyance for five years. Provision also is made for loans direct to farmers through a 200 million dollar increase of the bonding power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and through an additional 100 million dollar increase the corporation is to aid in liquidating the Joint Stock Land bank system.

Such authority as the President is to be given in these sections of the bill was overshadowed, however, by the power which was written into the bill just before the final vote was taken when the senate by a vote of 64 to 21 adopted the Thomas inflation amendment.

Expansion of Currency.

Under it the President will be empowered with a fourfold authority to take steps looking to the expansion of the currency, the depreciation of the American gold dollar, and to negotiations with foreign governments with respect to stabilization of world exchange and payments on the war debts.

At his discretion the President is to have power to do the following:

To direct the secretary of the treasury to enter into agreements with the federal reserve banks and federal re-

Roosevelt Adopts His Foreign Policy; Seeks Trade Pact.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—With the departure today of M. Edouard Herriot, in a lyrically happy state of mind, President Roosevelt had concluded with the envoys of France and Great Britain conversations charting a new course in American foreign policy.

America's policy of "splendid isolation" has been definitely modified, if not abandoned, by the author of the new deal, which is now perceived to envisage commitment to the tenets of internationalism unprecedented since the Wilson régime.

The President assured M. Herriot that the United States is ready to coöperate with the European powers more fully than ever before for the preservation of peace.

Herriot Much Pleased.

The French envoy was overjoyed by the assurance given him, which he construed to be an earnest expression of the association of America in that underwriting of the security of France which is the cardinal principle of French foreign policy.

Mr. Roosevelt told M. Herriot that if he has his way in the matter America will subscribe to a consultative pact under the terms of which the United States would join with other powers in consideration of ways and means of thwarting or stopping a violation of the Kellogg anti-war pact.

The United States, as the President viewed the matter, would reserve full independence of action after consultation with the powers on an actual or threatened outbreak of war. It would determine whether to join in the adoption of forceful measures to curb a nation deemed to be an aggressor.

It might furnish armed forces, money or war munitions for joint operations against an aggressor. It might confine its coöperation to an embargo on export of munitions to a nation accused of breach of the Kellogg pact.

This, ordinarily, according to the Roosevelt conception would be the extent of American coöperation, which is one of the reasons he desires passage of the arms embargo bill passed by the house and now pending in the senate.

Departure from Tradition.

On the other hand the United States might decline to judge which of two nations at war was the aggressor and withhold any kind of cooperation. But to the extent of binding itself to consult at all the United States would be departing from traditional policies. The Hoover administration refused to enter into a consultative pact at the London arms conference.

Another step away from isolation is involved in the President's proposal that the United States be a member of the international control commission, which is projected as an instrumentality for supervising compliance with such limitations on armaments as may be imposed by treaties made at the Geneva disarmament conference.

Mr. Roosevelt is convinced that the world is suffering from an excess of nationalism and the United States from too much political and economic isolation. Nationalistic tariff walls and other obstructions to international trade he would tear down. To bring about a disarmament treaty and an agreement on world economic stabilization he is ready to accept a consultative pact and negotiate a reduction of war debts.

Moves for Tariff Truce.

In an effort to halt competitive nationalistic tariff boosting the President has instructed Norman Davis to move at the meeting of the organization committee of the world economic conference in London tomorrow a tariff truce to endure until the conclusion of the conference which is scheduled to meet June 12. If the powers agree tariffs will remain in status quo pending the result of the economic conference.

The possibility of stabilizing the dollar and the pound sterling in advance of the meeting of the conference is being studied. Some think it cannot be accomplished until the President is authorized to reduce the gold content of the dollar and the British government is empowered to devalue the pound.

The President will ask congress shortly for authority to negotiate reciprocal tariff reduction treaties. As to the authority he contemplated seeking to negotiate revision of the war debts there appeared to be some uncertainty today. There was talk of carrying on the negotiations without congressional authority, the President keeping the congress committees advised of all steps taken.

Issue Joint Statements.

In a joint statement Mr. Roosevelt and M. Herriot said they had exchanged views on the debts, but had come to no decisions. The conversations are to be continued in Paris and Washington.

They said they had agreed on the necessity of a prompt meeting of the economic conference, "the object of which must be to bring about a rapid revival of world activity and the raising of world prices by diminishing all sorts of impediments to international commerce such as tariffs, quotas and exchange restrictions, and by the re-establishment of a normal financial and monetary situation.

"The questions which are before the world today are for the most part, in our opinion, intimately bound up with one another. They constitute the separate elements of a single problem, the sound and permanent solution of which should be sought in an international collaboration supplementing the indispensable domestic efforts of each country."

Herriot Also Has Statement.

M. Herriot issued a statement breathing his unbounded joy at the assurances of American cooperation he had received.

"I rejoice," he said, "at what we have been able to achieve in such limited time. A week ago we might very well have wondered whether the world economic conference could meet at all and, in the event of its meeting, at what date it would meet. Now we know for certain that it is to begin its work on the 12th of June. Within a few hours the invitations will be issued, and on certain points we have already brought our views much nearer to each other; an excellent way of proceeding which President Roosevelt has rightly advocated while he launched new notions concerning world disarmament and security."

Then he waxed lyrical, quoting Walt Whitman on the solidarity of races.

U. S. AND CANADA TO URGE WORLD WHEAT PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Richard Bennett of Canada today completed their discussions of international affairs, agreeing to take all possible immediate steps for an improvement in trade between the two countries.

The President, after saying good-by to Mr. Bennett, finished up a few matters hanging over from his strenuous week of conferences on world affairs and then confided earnestly to his secretary that he hoped for a quiet week-end. Mr. Roosevelt will take the first lady down the Potomac on Sunday for a holiday.

The President's conversations with Prime Minister Bennett, it was understood, dealt primarily with plans for raising the price of wheat and curtailing its production.

To this end, it was announced, the United States and Canada have indicated approval of a plan to hold an international wheat conference in advance of the world economic conference. The conference, to be attended by delegates from the great wheat producing countries, the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia, but not Russia, probably will be held in Geneva next month.

Agreements will be sought for an international pact curtailing production in all countries by application of an allotment system, each nation to effect a horizontal reduction of its acreage of wheat lands.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Bennett exchanged compliments at the conclusion of their talks, asserting they had been most helpful. The President indicated that as soon as it is possible negotiations to break down trade barriers between the two nations will begin.

BERLIN CLASHES WITH PARIS OVER SIZE OF ARMIES

U. S. Envoy Acts to Save Geneva Conference.

GENEVA, April 28.—(AP)—A head-on collision between French and German delegates that threatened to disrupt the world disarmament conference was smoothed over today by the intervention of Norman H. Davis, the American envoy.

Mr. Davis recalled the constructive efforts being made in Washington to put the troubled world in order, and pleaded that all show a similar attempt to conciliate at Geneva.

In order not to "jeopardize" the arms reduction proposals recently submitted by Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, the United States ambassador at large said his government supported the British plan.

German Delegate Complains.

The dissension struck the conference when Count Rudolph Nadolny of Germany complained that Germany had been awaiting 14 years for the powers to make good their promises to reduce armaments and when Rene Massigli of France retorted, "It is my duty to invite those bringing the accusations that certain powers, including France, have failed to fulfill their engagements to reread the parable of the Mote and the Beam."

This was interpreted by the delegates as an allusion to charges in the past that Germany regarded treaties as a scrap of paper.

Count Nadolny vehemently denied Massigli's assertion that amendments introduced by the Germans to the British arms reductions suggestions proved that Germany intended to rearm. He declared that the whole question was whether other powers intended to disarm.

The dramatic alliance of the United States and Great Britain against any attempts to weaken the British plan was one of the major developments in today's discussions.

Praises British Scheme.

Mr. Davis said he looked upon the British proposals as very valuable contributions toward the limitation of armaments.

Today's clash showed the wide divergency of the German and French views, because the Germans refuse to abolish the standing army and substitute for it a standardized short term army, as the French proposed. Furthermore, the German delegates said they wanted French forces stationed in northern Africa counted as a part of the French home forces.

Mr. Davis, who planned to leave tonight for London to participate in a meeting of the world economic conference organizing committee, will continue in the rôle of mediator by private negotiations.

Steps Into Breech.

Stepping into the breach between the German and French delegates, he declared he was disturbed at the current the conference was taking and said he wished earnestly to plead for conciliation.

"The world never has seen such serious problems as now," the American said. "The hopeful thing is that statesmen are trying sincerely to settle them. They realize that these problems come from excessive nationalism. Under the leadership of President Roosevelt, important and hopeful efforts are being made to grapple with these problems."

Under the plan introduced last month by MacDonald, Germany would be allowed an army of 200,000 men twice the maximum limit set by the treaty of Versailles.

Italian and French armies would be reduced to the same numerical strength, but France would be permitted an overseas force of 200,000 and Italy one of 50,000, thus reducing the French army about one-third.

Inaugurate Jos. Imburgio Melrose Park President

Joseph Imburgio, president, and other officials were inaugurated in the village of Melrose Park last night. The others were Anton Joncha, Michael Sorvillo, and Henry Ludwig, trustees, and Louis Senese Jr., police magistrate. More than 300 persons attended the ceremony and all the officials were presented with flowers.

French Co-operation Pledge Made by Herriot in Speech

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Edouard Herriot, former premier of France, came to New York today after conversations with President Roosevelt on world economic problems had been closed and made a farewell address at the Waldorf hotel. He declared that "important progress" had been made. He will sail for France at noon tomorrow on the Ile de France.

M. Herriot spoke before an audience of French and Americans under the auspices of the French Chamber of Commerce and the Franco-American societies. He appealed for coöperation between the two countries for world peace and their mutual prosperity.

He denied that France was an "international egoist," pledged that France would join with England and the United States in efforts for world peace, and hailed a movement to restore a suffering world in which politics and morality would never be separated.

Seeks Sense of Security.

Political agreements were not enough, he declared, but a sense of security and stability must be passed down to the family and to the individual before political tranquility could be restored.

Finally he brought the whole assemblage to its feet with a toast to Mr. Roosevelt as a "great President directing a great people."

"The world is upside down, the world is worried," he went on. "Here and there in every country stalks misery and grief and profound suffering and there is not a man in public life worthy of his name but who feels this deeply.

"I think for my part that politics and moral responsibility must be intimately related. If I didn't think this I should not be here tonight.

"Many kinds of problems confront us—problems of tariffs, problems of currency, problems of international relations, problems of mutual confidence. France, a nation often slandered, is not an egoistic nation. She has suffered and you know it well, for you have come to her aid. For several years she suffered martyrdom, but she has risen from her ruins and she intends to protect her children.

Ready to Collaborate.

"She knows no hatred, no aversion to any other people in the world and her great joy would be to be able to collaborate usefully in this work which now confronts us in the restoration of humanity.

"And already, ladies and gentlemen, I am able to say that in these few days of active work, thanks especially to the efforts of the experts, major principles have been established.

"Scarcely a week ago one still wondered whether a world conference was possible. Despite the difficulties caused by recent events the wisdom of the men responsible has resulted already in an outline of the great work which must be continued under the leadership of the great man who called us to Washington.

Aims to Prevent War.

"But, ladies and gentlemen, the world not only needs practical reconstruction but it also needs political tranquility. It is necessary that the people for whom we are going to try to reëstablish the opportunities for permanent work essential to the continuation of family life should feel themselves free from the fear of the periodical assaults on civilization in the form of atrocious war."

30 HOUR WEEK FOR PAPERS HAS HOUSE BACKING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Chairman William P. Connery [Dem., Mass.] declared today that the house labor committee is of the "unanimous opinion" that newspapers should not be exempted from the administration's bill to regulate the hours, wages and production of industry.

During hearings on the measure drafted by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Edward F. Cassidy, a representative of New York Typographical union, asserted that he was opposed to exemption of newspapers and magazines from the provisions of the 30 hour week measure. Newspapers, he declared, were an industry and could not reasonably expect to be excluded.

"Publishers have a wonderfully mysterious influence in Washington," said Mr. Cassidy. "Through that influence they have gotten ridiculously low rates on the matter they send through the mails. It is to that special privilege that the postoffice deficit is largely due."

MORTON SCHOOL BOARD SLASHES BUDGET $203,580

Members of the board of trustees of the J. Sterling Morton High school, Cicero, voted approval last night of expense cuts that will, it is estimated, save the taxpayers of the school district $203,580 a year.

The slashes were recommended by the new president of the board, Richard W. Hoffman.

"We will eliminate about 100 jobs," said President Hoffman. "I know that when the employés who are going to lose out hear of our action a great deal of criticism will come from them and their friends. But we were put here to balance budgets and get the school on a firm financial foundation, and we intend to do it."

Teachers, teachers' clerks, janitors, plumbers, and cafeteria helpers are among those who will be cut from the pay rolls. Charges were frequently made during the winter to the effect that many of the Morton High jobs were being given out as political patronage. Since then the board has decreed a pay slash of 10 per cent for all teachers.

BRITISH BANKS GRANT FRANCE 114 MILLION LOAN

Paris Market Unable to Absorb Bond Issue.

PARIS, April 24.—(AP)—The question of paying the December and June war debt installments to the United States was brought sharply to the fore in government quarters today when it was announced that the French treasury had borrowed £30,000,000 [$114,000,000], from a group of English banks.

The loan was made in England because the French market cannot absorb a bond issue now, the finance ministry explained, and would have the effect, it was said, of protecting gold stores in the Bank of France.

Pay 2½ Per Cent Interest.

The announcement of the transaction said: "The French treasury has concluded an operation under the terms of which it has contracted from a group of English banks a loan of £30,000,000 for six months at 2½ per cent." The possibility of repayment at the end of three months was provided for, and negotiation of securities given the banks by the treasury was forbidden.

Meanwhile Premier Daladier is known to be anxious to get the Dec. 15 defaulted war debt payment of $19,261,432 off the books, and he is strongly hopeful that former Premier Herriot will bring such assurances from the White House conversations so that the premier can ask parliament for the necessary credits.

Favor Tariff Truce.

It was previously reported that a debt moratorium for the duration of the coming world economic conference was sought to satisfy parliament's demands.

It was said that the French government is willing to participate in a tariff truce which, it is understood, Norman H. Davis, the special American ambassador, will propose to the organizing committee of the world economic conference, which will meet in London tomorrow.

A world tariff truce and immediate stabilization of currencies on gold were urged today in resolutions at the closing session of the international exchange congress, at which President Lebrun presided.

Italy Suggests World Parley Be Called Off; 'Can Do No Good'

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 28.—On the eve of the arrival of Guido Jung, Italian finance minister, in Washington Monday for economic discussions with President Roosevelt, Premier Mussolini's government today indirectly expressed its disapproval of holding the world economic conference, which is scheduled to open in London on June 12.

It is time to act, not discuss, according to the views held in high circles here. Doubts are expressed whether 1,500 delegates representing 60 countries will produce anything but blather or benefit any one except the hotel keepers, telegraph and telephone companies and hostesses.

Want Immediate Debt Holiday.

It is held here that a customs truce and a moratorium on debts, the two prime conditions for world recovery, according to Mussolini, could be put into effect immediately without need of assembling any conference.

The subsequent steps of disarmament and fixing a constant valuation for the several currencies of the world are matters of policy requiring no experts, and can be put into effect by the heads of the governments concerned without the necessity of the London assemblage, according to the Italian viewpoint as outlined today. This viewpoint may be taken to represent Mussolini's idea and is what he impressed on Jung before the latter sailed.

This does not mean that Italy will not attend the world economic conference, but that Il duce considers that no action can come from it.

Preparatory Body Meets Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 28.—Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, is expected in London from Geneva tomorrow morning only a few hours before the preparatory committee of the world economic conference meets in the old cabinet room of the British foreign office.

The agenda of the conference has already been fixed. All that remains is the choice of the exact date so the British government can sent out the invitations. The date has already tentatively been set for June 12.

The war debtors are hoping for another moratorium while the conference is sitting. Since their next installment to the United States are due on June 15, the British hope the conference will gather within the next six weeks.

CANADIAN M. P. CHARGES JAPAN SPIES ON COAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., April 28.—Canada was warned in the house of commons tonight against Japanese naval officers, in the rôle of fishermen, spying on the Pacific coast. Tom Reid, British Columbia Liberal, urged caution in issuing fishing licenses to Japanese, who in many cases, he said, were really naval officers.

"Do you mean they are spies?" he was asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Reid, "they are spies, and I am not afraid to say so."

TWIN BROTHERS LYNCHED AFTER KILLING FATHER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, April 28.—The bodies of Abad and Sabas Gutierrez Viscaino, twin brothers, who yesterday brutally killed their aged father, Francisco, as part of a voodoo ceremony "to cure their younger sister, Maria, of evil spirits," today were found near the scene of the crime on the outskirts of Rancho Veloz, Santa Clara province. They had been lynched by a posse which found them after an all night search.

JAMES S. PALMER RAIL EXECUTIVE, KILLED BY TRAIN

James S. Palmer, 60 years old, general personal injury claim agent for the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific railroad, was killed by a train on the Rock Island tracks at 63th street and Yale avenue last night.

His home was at 6756 Merrill avenue, and it was Mr. Palmer's nightly custom to alight from the evening train at the Hamilton Park station, and walk across the tracks on the way to his home. He evidently failed to notice the oncoming train last night.

Mr. Palmer's body was found several hours after the accident by the crew of a suburban train. Among the passengers on the train was Philip Stack, 7816 South Morgan street, employed in Mr. Palmer's office. He identified the body immediately.

CANADIAN JUDGE HINTS HE WILL EXTRADITE INSULL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., April 28.—Martin J. Insull sat in a dingy courtroom here today and saw his chances of avoiding extradition to Chicago go glimmering. Justice Kingstone announced that on the depositions filed by the state of Illinois to support charges of theft and embezzlement he would have to issue an order for the extradition of the one time millionaire Chicago utilities magnate.

Although the judge admitted his mind was made up, he gave Insull a chance to spend a little more time in his $10 a week boarding house in Orrilia. He consented to a motion by the defense to call witnesses from Chicago before formally ordering extradition. Edward Bayly, deputy attorney general for Ontario, acting for the state of Illinois, consented. The hearing was adjourned indefinitely.

I. F. Hellmuth, counsel for Insull, insisted for an opportunity to cross-examine witnesses whose evidence appears on the depositions on which the judge announced he was ready to act. Hellmuth said that permission to cross-examine the witnesses at the time evidence was taken in Chicago had been refused by Illinois authorities.

"It was an act behind our backs," Hellmuth said. "When these witnesses tell the whole story there will be no case against Mr. Insull."

$250,000 FOUND IN SAFETY BOX OF SLAIN RACKETEER

Elizabeth, N. J., April 28.—(AP)—Nearly a quarter million dollars in cash was found in a safety deposit vault rented by Max Hassell, slain Reading, Pa., beer baron, by federal officials who opened it late today upon order of Federal Judge William Clark.

In addition to the $213,500 cash in the box there was found a note for $50,000, signed by John J. Stamler and his brother, Charles J. Stamler. Stamler, an Elizabeth lawyer, was president of the New Jersey National Bank and Trust company of Newark until it closed about a year ago.

John Stamler later said he did not know how the note came to be in Hassell's possession. He said neither he nor his brother ever had any business dealings with Hassell.

QUIZ TRUSTEE ON HIGH COSTS OF MANAGEMENT

Attorneys Deny Charges of Fee Splitting.

Herman Straus, former vice president of the defunct Straus Bros. Investment company, and now trustee of 87 properties on which bond issues were floated by the company; and Gustave Frankel, official of the Esbico Management corporation, which manages 41 of the properties, were the chief witnesses yesterday before the committee of the state house of representatives investigating receivership practices in the city council chambers.

Both were questioned on excessive costs of management, purchases of supplies for the properties and their relations with each other by Assistant Attorney General George S. Lavin. Frankel denied he is purchasing bonds of impoverished investors to sieze the properties.

Fee Splitting Charge Denied.

Earlier in the day Attorneys Weymouth Kirkland and Dwight P. Green of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin; Ulysses S. Schwartz of the law firm of Gottlieb & Schwartz, and Nathan William MacChesney denied charges of fee splitting made before the committee Thursday. Mr. MacChesney was said to have split fees with the two law firms by Paul C. Loeber, managing trustee of the Leight Trust, successor to Leight & Co., investment bankers.

Straus told the committee he joined the investment company in 1921 as an office boy and rose to the rank of vice president in 1926. When the company went into receivership in 1931 he became trustee of 87 properties representing total bond issues of $20,000,000. As trustee he said he is not bonded and is not answerable to the courts.

"If you decided to turn dishonest tomorrow to whom would the bondholders look?" Lavin asked.

"To the law," Straus replied.

Straus said that the 41 properties managed by the Esbico company probably constituted 90 per cent of their business, and that in 90 per cent of the properties he managed the firm of Pritzker & Pritzker were his attorneys.

Given Free Rent and Phone.

Under questioning by Lavin, Straus denied that he shares in the Esbico company's profits. He also denied that he received any "cut" on supplies purchased by the company for properties managed.

As to his compensation he said, "I get one-half of one per cent of the gross income of the properties managed, and the same amount of the bond issue of properties which go into foreclosure. The latter fee is paid for work on the issue and preparing the notices of default. After the property is in the hands of the receiver I look at it now and then."

Lavin asked whether it was not true that 95 per cent of his work was done by attorneys. He replied that it was, but the compensation for his services was not excessive.

Gustave Frankel then followed Straus to the stand. Spectators laughed when Lavin asked if the offices of the Esbico company were not lavishly furnished "even to a desk once used by Napoleon." Frankel said the furniture had been purchased from a Mr. Alschlager.

Frenkel was asked whether he and his brother, Louis, did not make it a practice to buy titles to furniture in properties managed by the company and sell them to the bondholders' committee. He replied that this had been done several times without profit.

Buys Bonds at Discount.

Frankel also denied that he made money on purchases of supplies. He said he had lost "considerable money" in the failure of Straus Brothers Investment company. He said he had acquired a few more bonds since the company failed.

"Did you get some as low as 25 cents on the dollar?" Lavin asked.

"We just bought a few," was the reply.

The attack on the testimony on fee splitting was opened by Attorney Kirkland as the committee reconvened. He declared that he and his firm had never split fees and that from what he knew of the reputations of Attorneys Schwartz and MacChesney they never split fees. He asked that Charles E. Fox, trustee with Loeber and a member of the Leight bondholders' protective committee, be recalled to the stand to testify as to fees paid MacChesney.

Fox testified that Loeber had insisted that Mr. MacChesney pass on all reorganization plans and that the expenses of his work be paid by the bondholders' protective committee. The law firms of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin and Gottlieb & Schwartz represented the committee. Loeber, he said, threatened to withhold lists of bondholders in his possession if he did not have his way.

Attorneys Green, Schwartz and MacChesney also testified the arrangement was made at the request of Mr. Loeber and that the arrangement in no way constituted a split of fees.

Bar Holds Fees Too High.

Charles P. Megan, president of the Chicago Bar association, testified that attorneys' fees and other fees were too high. He said the committee released reports revising the scale of fees. The committee is still at work, he said, and will release further reports.

Carl R. Latham, chairman of the association's committee on receiverships, told the representatives his committee had received information of political pressure put on judges to appoint receivers, grafting by receivers, and other abuses. He said the evidence was not definite, however. He urged revision of the mortgage laws to curb abuses.

The final witness was Frank C. Rathje, attorney and president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company and the Mutual National bank. He recited several reorganizations in which he had participated in which fees were as low as $450 on bond issues of $100,000.

HEIRESS WEDS

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Miss Natalie Price Guggenheim, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond A. Guggenheim and heiress to part of the Guggenheim copper fortune, was married today in the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim of 998 Fifth avenue, to Robert Michael Studin of 875 Park avenue.

It was Miss Guggenheim's second marriage. In April, 1929, the heiress, then 18, eloped with Thomas M. Gorman, son of Patrick Gorman, freight agent for the Long Island railroad at Port Washington, L. I.

A short time later she was taken abroad by her parents and suit was started later for an annulment of the marriage.

A decree was granted. Gorman filed suit for $100,000 against his bride's parents, charging alienation of affections. This suit is understood to have been settled out of court.

HIGHLAND PARK'S PRIZE FRIENDSHIP TAKES THE COUNT

Rouse Ready for Peace if He Regains Tooth.

One of the things most admired in Highland Park has been the beautiful and unwavering friendship between Constable John Rouse and Assistant Postmaster Fred Moon. Now, however, the friendship is ended. Constable Rouse is minus one of his favorite teeth, and the automobile of Moon's son is in some jeopardy.

These developments were revealed yesterday in the court of United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker when Constable Rouse was held in $500 bond on a charge of interfering with the United States mail. Hearing in the case was set for May 8.

It seems that Moon's son, Melvin H. Moon, figured in an automobile collision in 1929 that resulted in a judgment for $369 being issued against the youth. The papers were placed in the hands of Constable Rouse for service, but nothing happened. True to the dictates of friendship, Constable Rouse told the attorneys that young Moon was hard to find.

Gets Writ for Auto.

Then, the story goes, young Moon acquired a position as mail carrier and an automobile of his own. The attorneys in the automobile case obtained a writ of replevin and conveyed it to Constable Rouse.

On April 15 the attorneys appeared in Highland Park and were told by Rouse that he could not find the car.

"Why, constable," a village loafer is said to have remarked, "yonder it sits across the street."

With no other alternative, Constable Rouse marched across the street where Rouse was loading the car with mail and announced that he was sorry, but he would have to take the outfit. Young Moon called his father, Constable Rouse declares, and both set upon him, knocking out one of his teeth.

Prosecutor Makes Peace.

Both Rouse and the Moons left the scene and arrived in a dead heat at Waukegan, where all demanded warrants for assault and battery. The state's attorney, knowing the history of the friendship, got Moon and Rouse to agree to forget the matter.

Then, Constable Rouse claims, the truce was broken with the warrant for his arrest on a charge of interfering with the mails. He countered with a warrant charging the Moons with resisting a public officer.

"But I'd forget it," he said yesterday, "if they'd just replace my tooth."

"The car?" the constable continued. "O, yes, I got that. But the court returned it to young Moon. The judgment was invalid because he was under age when it was obtained."

The President also sent to the senate the name of his first cousin, Warren Delano Robbins, to be American minister to Canada. ROBBERS BATTLE STORE MANAGER; CAUGHT BY POLICE

Two robbers were captured by policemen yesterday afternoon several minutes after they had escaped with $14 from the Atlantic and Pacific Tea store, 3359 West Harrison street, after exchanging shots with the manager, C. J. Blanchard. The gunmen identified themselves as John Sheehan, 22 years old, 3226 West Jackson boulevard, and Gordon Bingham, 26 years old, 3154 West Jackson boulevard.

Blanchard followed the bandits from the store and exchanged shots with one of them. Sergt. Frank Fagan and his Fillmore street police squad, notified of the robbery by police radio, went to the store and obtained descriptions of the men. Touring the neighborhood the police found Sheehan and Bingham at Arthington street and Homan avenue. The bandits surrendered without resistance and admitted the robbery after they were identified by Blanchard.

Sheehan told police that he had robbed the same store on two previous occasions. Bingham said that he had been released from the Bridewell several days ago.

CHICAGO WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH IN SOUTH

Memphis, Tenn., April 28.—[Special.]—Injured as their automobile overturned near Joiner, Ark., late this afternoon, two Chicago women are in a critical condition at Baptist hospital. They suffered broken backs. Both were unconscious tonight.

Mrs. William P. Doud, 40 years old, of 6930 Greenview avenue, and her niece, Miss Ruth Albrecht, 20 years old, of 3444 Costello avenue, daughter of Otto Albrecht are the victims.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness, Mrs. Doud said that they were driving to Memphis from Chicago to meet two cousins here. As they passed through Joiner, she said, she swerved to avoid a truck ahead of her and the car plunged over an embankment.

FIND GUNS IN CAR; NORTH SIDE GIRL AND YOUTH HELD

Lincoln park police last night arrested Miss Barbara Wallace, 20 years old, 1011 Foster avenue, and Joseph Delia, 24, of 868 North Hermitage avenue, after their automobile had crashed into two cars on the north side.

Two loaded revolvers were found under a seat of their car. They disclaimed knowledge or ownership of the weapons. Police immediately took them to the detective bureau, where they were paraded in the showup. Not identified by any one, Miss Wallance, an attractive brunette, was locked up for the night in the annex of the North Racine avenue station and Delia was held at Town Hall.

REYNOLDS WILL IS ATTACKED BY BANK ATTORNEY

Figures in Controversy on 20 Million Fortune.

Concord, N. C., April 28.—(AP)—Smith Reynolds' will, made in New York after his marital life with Anne Cannon had ended but before he married Libby Holman, figured prominently today in the hearing before Judge Wilson Warlick on disposition of the $20,000,000 fortune left by the young tobacco heir. Reynolds was shot to death at Winston Salem last summer.

E. S. Parker, Greensboro attorney for Mrs. Annie L. Cannon, guardian of Anne Cannon Reynolds, second, in opposing a motion by the Cabarrus Bank and Trust company, a coguardian, seeking to invalidate a renunciation agreement made for little Anne when her parents agreed to a divorce, declared the will might be held legal. If so, he said, the inheritance of the child would be jeopardized.

Terms It Invalid.

On the other hand, John M. Robinson, Charlotte attorney for the bank, asserted the will was invalid because it could be established that young Reynolds was not a resident and citizen of New York.

Robinson's client asked Judge Warlick to direct Mrs. Cannon, mother of the first Mrs. Reynolds and grandmother of their ward, to participate in an action to have declared null and void a pre-divorce agreement made in Winston Salem Aug. 4, 1931. By this agreement the claims of Baby Anne to her father's estate were renounced for $500,000. The same agreement provided a $500,000 settlement for the child's mother, but this is not questioned.

Baby's Share Endangered.

In reply Mrs. Cannon asserted that the agreement had been made in good faith. Further, she contended that her grandchild's right to the $500,000 trust fund, as well as to a $50,000 inheritance provided in the New York will, and $1,500,000 allotted from her father's estate under a recent agreement among the Reynolds, Cannon, and Holman families, might be endangered if the original pre-divorce agreement were attacked.

MERCURY RISES TO 75; WARMEST APR. 28 SINCE '15

Yesterday was the warmest April 28 since 1915. The temperature, with the sun shining brightly, rose to 75 at 2 p. m. and remained there for more than two hours. The day was the warmest since Oct. 15. It was far from a record breaker, however, as the mark in 1915 was 86.

Today, according to Forecaster C. A. Donnel, will be generally fair and cooler. If the wind shifts and blows from the lake, Mr. Donnel said, the mercury may fall to 45. If the blow is from the land side the maximum is expected to be about 60. There is some possibility of showers tomorrow, according to the forecast.

REMODEL HOME LOAN BANKS FOR SMALL OWNERS

House Passes Roosevelt Change in System.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Into the machinery of the Hoover home loan bank system, which failed to function, the house of representatives today inserted a new cog designed by President Roosevelt to speed the wheels of relief for the debt-burdened small home owner.

By a vote of 383 to 4, the administration home mortgage refinancing bill swept through the house and proceded to the senate, where its passage, after some alteration, is virtually certain.

U. S. Guarantees Bonds.

Under its provisions the present federal home loan bank board is authorized to create a new "home owners' loan corporation," which, with a two billion dollar bond issue and a capital stock of two hundred millions, will take over mortgages of small urban dwellings having an appraised value of not more than $15,000.

The bonds of the new corporation may be sold, but it is the basic theory of the bill that they are to be traded by the corporation for mortgages now held by building loan associations, insurance companies or other institutions. The bonds will bear interest at 4 per cent, and the mortgages taken over by the government in exchange for them are to be carried at a rate of not more than 5 per cent interest on the bonds, which would be guaranteed by the government and be tax exempt.

Rural Loan Associations.

Another $100,000,000 is authorized in the measure for the establishment of federal building and loan associations in localities where such facilities do not now exist. A third appropriation, originally fixed at $280,000, for organizing and promotion work and "to encourage thrift," was slashed to $100,000 on a motion by Representative D. D. Glover [Dem., Ark.].

An attempt to place all prospective employés under the new home loan corporation on the government classified list, so that their rate of compensation will be regulated, was defeated.

Find Six Dead in Two Planes; Hinkler, Famous Flyer, Victim

ROME, April 28.—(AP)—The almost simultaneous discovery today of two wrecked airplanes, one in central and the other in southern Italy, cleared up two mysteries of the air and brought first definite knowledge of the deaths of Bert Hinkler, famous Australian airman, and John C. Van Cleef, young American, who was making a world tour.

Hinkler's charred body was found beside the burned wreckage of his plane by charcoal burners in the Pratomagno woods near Florence at an altitude of 4,700 feet. He had been missing since Jan. 7, when he took off from England in an attempt to lower the air speed record to Australia. His body was identified by his passport.

Hinkler was a veteran of many daring flights in all parts of the world. He once held the air speed record from England to Australia. Among his many feats was the first west to east flight over the south Atlantic ocean in 1931.

Five Die in Other Crash.

Van Cleef was one of five persons killed in the crash last Sunday of an Air-Orient liner flying from Corfu, Greece. Three survivors were found near the wreckage of the air liner on Mount Scifarelli, near Saracena, in Calabria.

Both of the planes were wrecked in the same way. They crashed against tall wooded mountains.

The three survivors of the Air-Orient crash were found sitting in the cabin of their wrecked plane, huddled together because of the severe cold and suffering from shock, but otherwise not dangerously injured. They have been identified only as Mme. Gigaudet, a man named Callot, and M. Eteve.

Yank Pinned Under Wreckage.

The body of Van Cleef, a recent Princeton graduate who lived in Montclair, N. J., still was pinned in the wreckage of the ship, as were the bodies of four French passengers and members of the crew.

The nearest town, Morano Calabro, is two hours' distant from the place of the crash by mule. The authorities said it would be impossible to move the dead until tomorrow. It was reported that the three survivors had refused to leave the scene until the bodies of their companions were removed from the wreckage.

The survivors had kept alive on sandwiches, chocolate, and biscuits, which are a regular part of the plane equipment for ships of the line. They ate snow to quench their thirst. Members of the forestry militia found them and gave them cordials and fresh water.

Of the three, Mme. Gigaudet appeared in the best condition. She said she was not able to determine the cause of the accident. She remembered only a sudden crash against the hillside in which the front part of the machine was smashed and the pilot, another member of the crew and three passengers were killed.

A part of the cabin, which was intact, was used by the survivors for shelter at night during the five days they awaited help. During the daytime they tramped through the 15 inches of snow in the surrounding countryside, being unsuccessful in locating aid and receiving no answers to continued shouts.

"The most terrible part of our experience," Mme. Gigaudet said, "was to have to remain night after night beside the bodies of our companions, unable even to extricate them."

Arnot Wilson, Naples manager of the American Express company, arrived at the scene prepared to take charge of Van Cleef's body on behalf of the family as soon as it is recovered from the wreckage.

INFLATION WINS IN SENATE ALONG WITH FARM BILL

Mortgage Refinancing Act Carried with Measure.

serve board whereby the banks shall purchase in the open market up to 3 billion dollars' worth of securities of the government and of such corporations, like the Reconstruction Finance corporation, of which the government is the majority stockholder.

Issue Up to 3 Billion Currency.

To order the issue of up to three billion dollars of treasury notes under the greenback act of 1862, to be used in meeting maturing obligations of the government and in purchasing and retiring government securities; notes so issued to be retired by an annual appropriation at the rate of 4 per cent a year.

To diminish the gold content of the dollar to a maximum of 50 per cent of its weight; to enter into agreements with foreign governments to fix a mutual parity between their currencies on the basis of a devaluated dollar; and to remonetize silver at any ratio he sees fit.

To accept silver at 50 cents an ounce, in a total amount of not to exceed 200 millions, from nations due to make payments of 194 millions on their war debts during the next six months. Against the silver so received the treasury is to issue up to 194 millions of silver certificates.

13 Republicans for Inflation.

Fifty Democrats, 13 Republicans, and the single Farmer-Labor senator voted for inflation. Notable among the Democrats was former Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo of California. The Republicans included members of the radical group and several midwestern agrarians.

True to his pledge, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, Senator McAdoo's successor in the treasury post under former President Wilson, voted against the administration. Three other Democrats, Bailey [N. C.], Bulkley [Ohio], and Clark [Mo.] voted with him, and eight Republicans.

The final vote on the farm-inflation bill followed closely the lines set by the inflation roll call.

The amendment of Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] to require the three billion dollar issue of greenbacks in the inflation amendment to be used to pay the veterans' bonus certificates was amended to make payment discretionary with the President and then beaten by a vote of 28 to 60.

Argue Against Bonus.

Arguments were tossed about the chamber over the question of guaranteeing bank deposits.

Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, in arguing against the bonus amendment and for passage of the inflation measure intact, indicated to what an extent the administration was counting on the inflation bill in order to pay off in fiat money the billions of obligations it has incurred.

In a give and take over the bonus amendment, Senator Robinson and Senator Huey Long, Louisiana radical, tossed unsmiling quips across the senate chamber.

The silver section of the bill was taken up, with its provision for receiving debt payments in silver at 50 cents an ounce, whereas the present price of silver is 36 cents an ounce.

Stir Anti-Revisionists.

The prospect of 28 per cent cut in the payments due from a defaulting government like France stirred the indignation of the anti-revisionist die-hards and for a time the walls rang with thunderous periods of Senator Hiram Johnson [Rad., Cal.] and the bitter phrases of Senator Robinson of Indiana.

The silver amendment was passed, the 100 million dollars originally in the bill changed to 200 million, and a second amendment added, permitting the issue of silver certificates against silver so received.

But with the debt question to be fore Republicans sensed too good a chance to let slip by. From Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip, promises were drawn that the President has made no agreement to enter into any consultative pact, that the President has not agreed to any postponement of the June 15 payments on the war debts, and that the President has no present intention of asking congress to delegate him power to deal with debts or the question of a moratorium.

Bonus Partisans Routed.

The bonus amendment was before the senate as the day's session opened and there was some uneasiness lest the influence of the veterans persuade senators to vote for it.

But the persuasive speeches of the pro-bonus senators were nullified when Leader Robinson of Arkansas rose and declared:

"I am authorized to say for the President that he is unqualifiedly against the amendment. He believes that the incorporation of this amendment will reverse the policy of the pending deal and defeat the purpose in mind in attempting to secure an arrangement by which maturing obligations of the government may be provided for."

President Offers Amendment.

"The President is opposed to the amendment and I think it is safe to say that if the discretion were vested within him he would not exercise such discretion. To be entirely frank with the senate, I think it is unfair under the circumstances as I have stated to shift the burden of responsibility to the President of the United States when it is well known and stated on the floor of the senate that he does not seek this discretion, that he does not believe the amendment should be adopted."

During a speech in favor of the bonus, Harold L. Foulkrod, former chief of staff of the bonus army which invaded the capital last year, broke into such loud applause that he was ejected from the senate galleries.

Senator Robinson referred to the bonus march and said threats again had been made that it would be politically unwise to vote against the present amendment.

Then he told his colleagues of the dependence the President was placing on the bill to redeem the huge debts that have been incurred by issuing greenback money with which to retire outstanding government securities.

"The first two paragraphs of this bill, known as the currency inflation provision," said Senator Robinson, "are intended for the express purpose of enabling the treasury to make provision for maturing treasury obligations. It has been overlooked during this debate that throughout the last year or two, with the authority of the congress, government corporations as well as the treasury itself have been issuing enormous quantities of short time paper and that these short term notes may only be refunded or refinanced through the instrumentality of the banks.

Hundreds of Millions.

"We have assumed literally hundreds of millions of obligations in an effort to stimulate employment, to maintain the banks in operation, to revive and revitalize business, and we are now confronted and must face the problem of making a provision for the obligations thus created."

It was at the close of the Arkansas senator's remarks that Senator Long, a vociferous advocate of the bonus amendment, interjected himself into the discussion, insinuating that Senator Robinson was having trouble in trying to defend his position against the amendment.

Senator Robinson wheeled upon him.

"The senator," he said, "has a habit of getting smart here on the floor. And he has a habit of quoting the scriptures. I think I will give him a little scripture: 'How long wilt thou speak these things and how long shall the words of thy mouth be like a strong wind?'"

Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho] injected the bank situation into the debate in a speech advocating partial payment of depositors in closed banks with federal funds and guarantee of bank deposits during the remainder of the financial emergency.

Senator Borah explained in detail his opinion that if the government is going to force people to deposit money in banks there is a definite obligation to protect depositors.

Refers to Consultative Pact.

Senator Robinson of Indiana referred to recent reports that the President had agreed that the United States should be a party to a consultative pact relative to security.

It was Senator Lewis' turn to enter the debate.

"I am able to inform the senators," he said, "that no such pact exists, either as to any agreement reducing this debt, or changing it, or shaping it through any policy or conversation that transpired between the President and foreign delegates here. Second, I can assure the senator that there has been no agreemnt as to any consultative pact or any other pact that involves this government in any agreement whatsoever touching foreign affairs, ignoring the senate."

"Can the senator assure us, too, that no agreement has been entered into for a moratorium in June?" Senator Robinson inquired.

"I have information," answered Senator Lewis, "which would justify me in saying to any citizen of America that there has been no agreement whatever by the President or any governmental authority of this country with any foreign country contracting for a moratorium at any time."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., April 28.—[Special.]—America can tear up her constitution and histories if pending measures for inflation, farm relief and industrial control pass congress, Ogden L. Mills, Hoover secretary of the treasury, told the Indiana Republican Editorial association here tonight.

Flinging a charge of dictatorial pretensions into the face of the Roosevelt administration, Mills attacked the scope of farm relief bill, the Perkins 30 hour week bill and the section of the inflation program which allows the President to issue greenbacks and cut the gold content of the dollar.

Sees Bureaucratic Control.

"In this land where government was conceived in liberty and where freedom, individual enterprise and initiative have built up the most highly developed industrial and productive nation in the world, we are now to set up an immense bureaucracy," Mills rapped out. "The American working man and the American business man are to become the creatures of a small group of bureaucrats thousands of miles away, and of their countless agents scattered in home and factory throughout the country."

Mills stated flatly that there is no emergency demanding that the gold content of the dollar be cut or that the United States go off the gold standard. He hinted that the Roosevelt administration was using the so-called emergency as a cloak behind which to move toward dictatorial powers.

Says Farmer Will Suffer.

He attacked the contention that the farmer would benefit from inflation.

"The farmer would be among those most seriously affected. With him, too, as currency depreciated and the paper prices of his products rose, the mounting cost of living would close in on his gains. But more important even would be the effect of currency depreciation upon his debts. If his mortgage were an obligation to pay in gold dollars, the increase in its weight by virtue of the decline in his paper currency income would be ruinous.

"But even if his mortgage were an obligation written in currency, depreciation would spell ruin."

PASSAGE OF SKARDA BILL TO AID DRIVE FOR TEACHERS' PAY

Henry P. Chandler, chairman of the "Liberty loan" drive which is to sell tax warrants for school teachers' salaries, expressed the belief yesterday that passage of the Skarda bill and other pending legislation designed to enforce tax collections will prove a boon to his efforts. He said it would assure prospective buyers that sufficient taxes will come in to redeem the warrants.

Mr. Chandler asked school authorities yesterday how soon they could get tax warrants ready to deliver to those who subscribed to them through the Dewey committee. He was told by Roscoe L. Douglas, assistant auditor of the board, that this could be done by the end of next week. Mr. Chandler is now soliciting the Dewey committee subscribers to renew their subscriptions through his committee.

These subscriptions total about $3,750,000, and would be sufficient to pay school employés for last September.

ing back tax payments, rounds out the administration plan for bringing in delinquent taxes. The Skarda act will be applied to tax dodgers. The Jarecki plan, under which taxpayers who keep up their current payments may make up their back payments over a period of seven years, will take care of those who are willing to pay but lack the capacity to meet their bills in full.

H. H. Haylett, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, announced last night that the board will take steps immediately to fight the Skarda act as unconstitutional. Public officials concede that a test of the act's constitutionality will be necessary, but Mr. Nash expressed the hope that the courts will refrain from interfering with the operation of the receiverships while they are reviewing the case.

Bill Would Fine Agitators.

One of the remaining bills in Mayor Kelly's tax collection program to be presented to the legislature provides for a fine of from $100 to $1,000 for any person advising others not to pay their taxes.

Referring to this at the Auditorium theater meeting, Pratt said:

"Only the most asinine people believe that a gag upon me and upon my association will bring an end to the tax strike. This fight is only begun. The way to win it is to refuse to pay taxes."

Then Pratt raised his hand Fascist fashion and, as he backed off the stage, boomed:

"Stand firm!"

Tears Up Tax Bills.

Pratt was followed by a bespectacled youth whose name was given as John Wyle.

"Don't pay your taxes," he shouted. "Let me give you an example. This is what I say to do with tax bills."

He removed several bills from his pocket and proceeded to tear them to bits. The incident had apparently been staged in advance, for some fifty people sitting on the stage produced American flags and began to wave them.

PENALTY DATE ON 1931 PERSONALTY TAXES IS MONDAY

Monday is the penalty date on payments of 1931 personal property taxes, county tax officials said yesterday. The payments of large taxpayers, who wait until the deadline in order to save interest, began to come in yesterday. The Illinois Bell Telephone company paid $4,775,373 and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, $1,929,396.

These payments, however, brought the collections of personal property taxes in the city of Chicago, including those of railroads, to only 19.2 per cent of the levy. Payments to date total $16,088,629, against a levy of $83,841,272. Both levies and collections are exclusive of the country towns, where local collectors are receiving the payments.

Judge John P. McGoorty, on the petition of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday extended the time for filing complaints against 1931 real estate assessments to May 8. The previous deadline was today.

COUNTY HIGHWAY POLICEMAN HIT BY AUTO; MAY DIE

Policeman George R. Osborn of the Homewood county highway police was probably fatally injured last night when his motorcycle was struck by an automobile at Cicero avenue and 115th street, south of Evergreen Park. He was taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital in a critical condition. Police said that the driver of the automobile, Peter Walden, 411 West 182d street, Lansing, driving in 115th street, failed to stop at Cicero, a through street, and crashed into the policeman. He was charged with reckless driving.

The body of a boy struck by an automobile early yesterday was identified last night at the county morgue as that of Paul Berenchik, 13 years old, 1842 Hastings street. He was killed by an automobile driven by Harvey Anderson, 4830 Barry avenue, at 15th street and Blue Island avenue. One death yesterday brought the Cook county motor toll to 274 for 1933. The victim:

George Whiteley, 60 years old, 3519 Adams street. Killed by an automobile at Cottage Grove avenue and 65th street. August Feith, 35 years old, 1025 East 62d street, was held by Woodlawn police.

PRESENTS PLAN FOR BATHHOUSE AT OAK ST. BEACH

State Representative Robert M. Woodward of the 29th district [near north side] arranged yesterday for a conference of public officials in the city hall on Monday to consider the installation of bathing facilities for the Oak street beach. He announced plans for an underground building containing 10,000 locker rooms, comfort stations and rest rooms, showers and refreshment stands, and a pedestrian trunnel under Lake Shore drive.

The plan would solve the legal difficulty which for years has prevented improvement of this beach, Mr. Woodward said. In obtaining the riparian rights to the lake shore property, the Lincoln park commissioners had to agree that no building would ever be constructed on the property east of the drive, but the restriction does not prevent an underground structure, Mr. Woodward said.

"We do not wish to violate the rights of property owners who were promised that their view of the lake would be unobstructed," he asserted, "but bathing facilities are vitally necessary there as a health measure, if for no other reason. I have estimates that this work can be accomplished forf $500,000, or less if it is decided to have fewer locker rooms. The park commissioners feel that the city should pay a part of the cost of the tunnel, which would extend from Cedar street to the east side of the drive."

UNPAID PAPER BILL MAY CLOSE COUNTY OFFICES

An unpaid bill amounting to $20,000 for special paper used by the clerks of the Circuit and Superior courts and by the county recorder in making permanent photostatic files of decrees and deeds, is threatening to close all three offices the public service committee of the county board was told today. Hugh Housum, representative of the Photostat corporation, 185 North Wabash avenue, informed the commissioners that his company could supply no more of the paper until the bill is paid. The committee members replied that they have no money.

Circuit Court Clerk John E. Conroy told the committee that the Circuit judges have ordered him to pay for a new supply of paper out of the fees collected by his office. The commissioners replied that to do so would violate the statutes. Conroy replied that he would be in contempt of court if he refused.

Ultimately the committee suggested that Housum should propose to his superiors that they accept tax warrants or county bonds in payment. Then they ordered Frank Chambers, superintendent of public service, to attempt to purchase small amounts of the paper from other sources to maintain the supply until the Photostat company reports back.

INDIANA BEER LAW ATTACKED FROM 2 SIDES

The Indiana beer control law was under fire from two sides yesterday, a Gary wholesale distributor terming the law a Democratic "political racket" in court proceedings at Hammond, while a judge of the Indianapolis Criminal court declared the measure unconstitutional.

Abe Rosen, proprietor of a Gary bottling plant for 25 years, in an affidavit filed with Superior Judge Virgil S. Reiter at Hammond, swore he was deprived of a wholesale beer distributor's license because he refused to pay $1,000 to R. Earl Peters, Democratic state chairman, and his law partner, Fay W. Leas, Fort Wayne, as well as $500 to the Lake county Democratic organization. Rosen has a temporary injunction restraining Lake county authorities from interfering with his beer distribution, but the state authorities have another injunction prohibiting Rosen from selling beer.

Bases Ruling on Constitution.

In Indianapolis Judge Frank P. Baker held the law unconstitutional because it limits the import and sale of a beverage which the federal statute has declared nonintoxicating. The ruling came in the case of a woman appealing from a conviction for becoming intoxicated on the so-called nonintoxicating 3.2 per cent beer.

Judge Baker struck particularly at the provision for setting up a board of ten to deal with all beer imported, the ten being appointed by Paul Fry, state excise director, whose "unofficial adviser" is Frank McHale, Gov. McNutt's spokesman in the legislature.

"It seems to me that we have been trying to do by legislative act what Al Capone did with a machine gun," Judge Baker observed.

Beer in any form, whether bottled barreled or kegged, may be sold in Indiana, the judge ruled, providing it contains less than 3.2 per cent of alcohol by weight.

Holds Beer May be Imported.

"Any one may import 3.2 per cent beer without any permit of the legislature or of the excise director created by this act, and the legislature has no power to determine otherwise," the decision said.

The decision cited the provision in the federal constitution that "no state shall, without the consent of congress, lay an impost or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for the execution of inspection laws."

The provision limiting breweries to not more than three in each district of the state is also unconstitutional. Judge Baker held, declaring it created a monopoly. Under the act, wholesalers are restricted to one in each county and one for each additional 20,000 population.

"Those engaged in selling may sell in as small a quantity as the consumer desires or as large a quantity as the purchaser wishes," the judge decreed. "The legislature has no more power to say whether this beverage shall be drunk upon the premises than it has to say ice cream soda or lemonade shall be drunk upon the premises."

Ready to Pay License Fee.

Rosen, in his affidavit drawn by Attorney Oscar Thiel of Gary, sets forth that he had originally retained Attorney Leas to obtain him a license and stood ready to pay the $1,000 annual license fee required by the law.

"Attorney Leas told me that in addition to the $1,000 fee for the license it would cost me $500 to be paid the Lake county Democratic organization and $1,000 for him and Peters," Rosen's affidavit states.

"The story of the issuance of the beer licenses is the story of a gigantic conspiracy, formulated by the Democratic chieftains," the affidavit continues. "Every time a license has been issued, it went either to a wholesale company formed by a powerful Democratic group or to an American Legion group.

Pulling the "Right Strings."

"The unorganized distributors, honest but unattached, are being held up by a political machine and do not stand a chance. If the distributor doesn't pull the right strings and lay money on the line, he is sunk."

Filing of the affidavit caught the Lake county prosecutor, Robert Estill, unprepared. He asked and was granted until next Wednesday to prepare an answer to the affidavit and to Rosen's motion that the restraining injunction be made permanent.

Some form of appeal from Judge Baker's decision was expected from the Democratic organization.

Three men were killed yesterday when a pile of limestone caved in on them in the quarry of the Dolese & Shepard company at Hodgkins, Ill., four miles south of La Grange. The dead men were William Schuett, 42 years old of Hodgkins, quarry engineer; Tony Sudowski, 29 years old, Cicero, a truck driver, and Paul Sondregger, Hodgkins, crane engineer.

Company officials expressed the belief that the men were buried beneath the crushed rock for almost an hour before their plight was discovered. William T. Zirzow, quarry timekeeper, discovered the slide and summoned 20 workmen to the scene for rescue work. La Grange police sent an inhalator squad, but the men were pronounced dead when their bodies were recovered.

It was believed that the slide was caused by the heavy wind which struck the top of the pile. Company officials said that the loading machinery had been buried in a similar slide Thursday.

Children, 'Playing Doctor,' Take Poison; One Is Dead

BEG YOUR PARDON

The Seneca Securities corporation was listed in yesterday's TRIBUNE in a table of the cases in which Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward had named the law firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson counsel for receivers. The table prepared by the Chicago Bar association gave merely the title of the case and fees allowed. It was not intended to imply that the corporation is in the hands of a receiver. The corporation secured the appointment of a receiver of the Medinah Athletic club. It is solvent.

THE TRIBUNE yesterday said that papers found in the clothing of Philip Sultan, a disbarred lawyer and former real estate dealer, whose body was taken from the lake, indicated that he lived at 6347 Winthrop avenue. Mrs. J. P. Herweg, owner of the apartment building at that address, said yesterday that Sultan left the building almost three months ago.

COURTNEY VOWS TO AID BUSINESS WAR ON RACKETS

Pushes Trial of 6 Accused in Bombing Case.

Indictments and bullets figured yesterday in the campaign waged against racketeers by State's Attorney Courtney and police. The prosecutor promised aid to every business man who would refuse to pay tribute to any racketeering organization and his first move was against the sheet metal workers' union officials and Sheet Metal Employers' association officials.

James Close and Charles West, business agents of the union, and George Krutchkoff and Fred Pouchot, officials of the Sheet Metal Employers' organization were accused of conspiracy to boycott trade in an indictment returned yesterday. The principal testimony in the case was given by Murray T. Leslie, 5621 South California avenue, a contractor, whose plant is at 36th and Morgan streets.

Contractor Gives Testimony.

"Pouchot came to me first and asked me to join the association," Leslie said. "I told him I would not. He said I would find myself running an open shop if I was able to operate at all. I said I saw no benefits in joining. He said our concern would lose many big jobs. He told me to think it over.

"Later Close and West came to see me and told me to use some sense. I told them I wouldn't join. Finally West came alone and asked me again if I was ready to join. I said I was not. He ordered our employés out on strike. I told him he should tell the men they were striking because I wouldn't pay 3 per cent on each contract to the racketeering organization. He wouldn't tell them that."

The grand jury, after voting the indictment, adopted resolutions commending State's Attorney Courtney for fighting the racketeers and expressing the hope that he would continue to do so.

Pushes Trial of Six Men.

Prosecutor Courtney's next move was to send his assistant, Charles S. Dougherty, before Judge Thomas J. Lynch to ask an immediate trial of six men accused of responsibility for the bombing of the City Dye works plant, 3010 West Lake street, on Nov. 29, 1931.

They are Louis Hollman and Louis Williams, owners of the Michigan Cleaners, 1339 West 63d street; Morris Cohen, owner of a cleaning and dyeing shop at 2202 West Cermak road; Walter Silver, owner of a cleaning and dyeing shop at 1242 North Kimball avenue; John J. Klein, owner of a shop at 6441 South Green street; and J. O. Flanagan, who confessed placing the bomb for a payment of $2,100. Cohen and Silver also confessed and blamed Hollman and Lewis, Prosecutor Dougherty said.

The six men were indicted before Mr. Courtney became state's attorney. He moved for immediate trial because of recent bombings in the cleaning and dyeing industry.

Police Fight Terrorist Gang.

An attempt made yesterday morning to terrorize Carmi Vitullo, owner of the Daily Cleaning and Dyeing shop at 708 South Laflin streets, resulted in a shooting which came in for attention by the state's attorney.

Vitullo had received threats because he cut prices, so he stood guard in his shop on Thursday night, armed with a shotgun. When a bottle made into a stench bomb was thrown through his window he fired at the men in the automobile from which the bottle was thrown. The car sped away, pursued by a police squad. Numerous shots were exchanged, but the terrorists escaped.

Ten minutes later the same automobile passed Vitullo's shop and this time the men fired into the shop, and Vitullo fired at them. Police were closer the second time and two of the terrorists fled on foot. Sergt. John Freichle captured Harry Richman, 708 South Paulina street. Later they found Sam Sabatino, 1847 Washburne street, at the county hospital with a bullet wound near his heart. He told a vague story of having been struck by a stray bullet while walking near Vitullo's shop.

PARTIES CONSIDER PLAN TO PICK REPEAL CONVENTION SLATE

Selection of a repeal slate of delegates for election June 5 to the Illinois convention to ratify or reject repeal of the 18th amendment is to be taken up by the Democratic and Republican organizations. The new law provides for election of 50 delegates. Democrats have proposed that the Republicans pick 25 repeal candidates and the Democrats 25, forming a slate to be backed by both parties. The Republicans will meet Monday at the Sherman hotel to consider how the delegates should be picked.

One view yesterday was that each party might choose a repeal delegate from each congressional district. Another proposal was to make the delegation 50-50 between downstate and Cook county as well as between the political parties.

Nominating petitions require 25,000 signatures. They are to be filed by May 12, and the two party organizations regard it as an easy task to get the signatures through their ward and precinct organizations.

As to a slate of dry delegates, against repeal, indications yesterday were that this will be left to the dry organizations. One report brought back from Springfield was that Representative John P. Devine of Dixon might head the anti-repeal slate.

PREDICT MAY 1 MOVING WILL BE LOWEST IN YEARS

Next Monday, May 1, is traditionally moving day in Chicago. But experts have estimated that there will be less shifting of homes by residents of the city this year than in any recent years.

Henry C. Spiekerman, chairman of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate board, said that landlords have made attractive propositions to tenants who contemplated moving and have held most of them. Also, many leases drawn in the last few years have set expiration dates other than April 30 or Sept. 30.

One of the largest real estate renting concerns advanced the opinion that most of the shifting would be done by families which have been doubled up with relatives and welcome an opportunity to get unscrambled.

Moving costs are the same, according to scale, as they have been in the past. The standard rate is $5 an hour for loading and unloading where two men are employed, plus $1 a mile between the vacated and the occupied residence. Additional men are charged for at $1.25 an hour. A meeting of the Movers' association of Chicago, to consider a reduction to $4 an hour for two men and $1 an hour for additional men will be held on May 12.

Nebraska Senate Passes 3.2 Beer Bill, 18 to 13

Lincoln, Neb., April 28.—(AP)—The Nebraska senate this morning passed a bill for legalization of 3.2 per cent beer. The vote was 18 to 13. The measure failed to get the 22 votes necessary to carry the emergency clause. It now goes back to the house of representatives for concurrence in senate amendments.

POLICEMAN WHO KILLED YOUTH IS HELD FOR MURDER

CRIMINAL COURT.

Sigmund Kolb, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; John Smith and Charles More, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in Pontiac reformatory; William Johns, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory, by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Policeman John J. McDonough, 40 years old, 3839 South Honore street, of the Brighton Park station was held to the grand jury on a charge of murder yesterday and was taken to the county jail. A coroner's jury made the charge at the inquest over the body of Austin Kittredge, 21 years old, 3525 South Marshfield avenue, who was shot by the policeman on April 2.

McDonough testified he was in a soft drink parlor at 3622 South Marshfield avenue that night and that Kittredge and two other young men entered and announced, "This is a holdup." Then, he said, they told him. "We're going to get you for that 35th and Archer shooting."

Recalls Earlier Shooting.

The policeman explained that on March 28 he and other policemen fired into an automobile containing five men who had broken a store window and one of the occupants of the car, John Finnerty, 635 West 46th place, was killed, and another, William Carey, was wounded.

Five witnesses contradicted the testimony of Policeman McDonough. They were Antoni Wapniarski, proprietor of the saloon; Wapniarski's wife and son, Chester, and Robert McCormick, 21 years old, 3507 West 60th place, and Edward Laurencel, 20, of 3429 Charlton street.

These witnesses all said that Kittredge, McCormick and Laurencel, neighborhood youths, came into the place and that Kittredge placed a quarter on the bar and asked for a bottle of liquor, which the proprietor refused to give him.

Shoots Youths in Back.

Then, all said, the policeman drew his revolver and fired at the three, hitting all of them in the back. They fell to the floor and McDonough struck Kittredge on the head several times with his revolver, according to Wapniarski, who added that the policeman said, "Die! Die! You rats!"

The proprietor said the policeman was not intoxicated, and had been in the place only about eight minutes when the shooting began. McCormick and Laurencel testified the policeman staggered. Both have been charged with attempted robbery and McCormick furnished bail of $2,500, but Laurencel, unable to get a bond, has been kept in the county jail.

At the Brighton Park station the commanding officers said Policeman McDonough was a good patrolman. He has been on the force eleven years, is married and the father of eight children. He was off duty at the time of the shooting, his superiors said.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 91; recovered, 71; stripped, 12 [from Chicago police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday].

LAKE CO. BOARD FIGHTS CLOSING OF GREAT LAKES

The Lake county board of supervisors, meeting in Waukegan, yesterday forwarded to President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Navy Swanson copies of resolutions protesting against the threatened closing of the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

"Such action would be unwarranted and unjust discrimination against the midwest," said the resolutions. "The midwest contributes liberally, both in funds and in personnel, to the upkeep of the navy, but has only one major naval activity alloted to this section."

GERMANY JOINS SOVIET RUSSIA IN FRIENDSHIP PACT

Hitler and Moscow Envoy Settle Differences.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 28.—Rapprochement between soviet Russia and Germany was prepared today when Adolf Hitler, for the first time since he became chancellor, received the Russian ambassador, Leo M. Khinchuk, in the presence of Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath. The conference lasted one hour.

The German police raids this month on the offices of the German-Russian Petroleum company, known as Derop, and other concerns, the suicide of a Derop official when threatened with arrest, and the arrest of Russian officials were discussed and a friendly compromise was reached.

Agreement Is Reached.

The Russian companies in Germany, Derop and Derunapht, will be reorganized and equipped with staffs sympathetic with Hitler's government "to eliminate communist elements." In exchange for this Russian concession the Germans promised to assist in increasing sales of the Russian oil companies in Germany.

The German ambassador to Moscow, Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, today called on Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov in an equally friendly visit "to further Russo-German trade."

Nazi newspapers are playing up the fact that Russia canceled 12 million dollars worth of orders she had placed with England before the outbreak of the Anglo-Russian trade war. They indicate that Germany hopes to benefit by further trading with the soviets.

Jews Plan Own Courts.

Jewish associations are considering the possibility of forming their own arbitration courts within their clubs, to which Jews could submit their own differences without resorting to the regular German courts. These club tribunals would provide jobs for Jewish professors, judges, and lawyers ousted and disbarred by Hitler's government.

Prof. Herman Jacobsohn, expert on Indo-Germanic languages at Marburg university, committed suicide today by throwing himself under a train. The 53 year old educator had been ousted from the university because he was a Jew.

To inspire art Hitler's government has offered two prizes for the book and film "expressing most artistically and dramatically the stirring events of the present revolution." The literature prize is $3,000. The prize winning film will be rewarded with works of art. The prizes will be distributed annually on May 1 by a jury of five appointed by Minister of Propaganda Joseph Goebbels.

The rigid censorship which the government has established to stifle opponents of the Nazi dictatorship is now complete. Details of the censorship organization have been worked out by Dr. Goebbels. At its head is Dr. Walther Funk, reich press chief.

The entire German press works under his orders. At his bidding newspapers or periodicals can be suppressed up to a period of six months.

Has Seven Departments.

The propaganda ministry is divided into seven departments. The first is named "Budget and Administration."

The second department is labeled "Propaganda."

The third "Radio." It controls the entire broadcasting system throughout the reich. Dr. Krukenberg, formerly in the post ministry, is at the head.

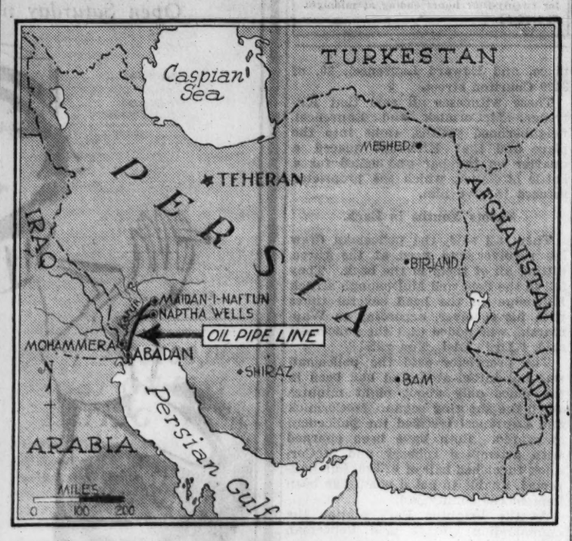
The fourth is named "Press," under Dr. Heide, a former foreign office man.

The fifth department is "Film." No movie may be shown without its approval. Its mission is to "revive the ossified film industry."

The sixth department, "Theater," controls Germany's theatrical life with the purpose of "reintroducing the truly German spirit into the German theater," allegedly undermined by Jewish directors.

The seventh department, "Education," dispenses educational influences in all walks of life.

END ANGLO-PERSIAN OIL ROW



TEHERAN, Persia, April 28.—(AP)—An agreement in principle in the Anglo-Persian oil dispute by which Persia is assured a minimum of £1,000,000 [$4,850,000] in annual royalties was reported to have been reached today.

The Anglo-Persian Oil company agreed to extract at least 5,000,000 tons of oil annually, with the Persian government receiving four gold shillings a ton, it was understood, instead of the 16 per cent of profits hitherto received. The company also agreed to pay £2,000,000 to settle Persia's claims, plus tax arrears that Persia has sought.

The Persian government last November canceled the Anglo-Persian Oil company's concession, alleging that the concession was granted before a constitutional régime was established in Persia and that Persian interests were not satisfactorily protected. Britain took the controversy before the league of nations and two months ago Britain and Persia agreed to negotiate for a new contract.

DENIES KISSING PASTOR WHOSE WIFE SUES HER

Omaha, Neb., April 28.—(AP)—Testifying in the trial of a $50,000 alienation of affection suit filed against her by the divorced wife of the Rev. Oliver D. Baltzly, former Omaha pastor, Miss Gertrude Gruening of Omaha today reiterated denials made by the 61 year old minister that they had ever kissed or embraced.

Miss Gruening also denied that she had ever spent a night in the pastor's former church, as a witness for Mrs. Baltzly had quoted her as having admitted.

Previously, Mr. Baltzly had contradicted the testimony of Jacob Wigender, former church janitor, that he had seen a "swish of skirts" when he entered the church nursery one evening several years ago.

The Rev. Mr. Baltzly explained that he had locked a door of the nursery and placed a chair against the other while he rested. Referring to the evening in question, he said:

"Knowing it was Jake at the door, without delay I took the chair from the door and admitted him. He went through the nursery to the northwest room. He could see everything and everybody in both rooms."

Miss Gruenig's testimony coincided closely with that of the former pastor, who obtained an Arkansas divorce in 1931 on grounds of desertion while his wife was living at Long Beach, Cal.

IOWA TROOPERS HUNT MOB THAT ATTACKED JUDGE

Martial Law Declared in Two Counties.

statement in which he said he resented the governor's criticism.

It is assumed here that the militia will be in full control of all law enforcing agencies and that the sheriff will be shunted into inactivity.

If the sheriff had asked for help there would have been coöperation between the military arm and the civil authorities. As the governor, unasked, rushed in the troops, County Attorney E. P. Murray held that military dominance was intended. Courts marshal may even be set up.

More Trouble at Denison.

There were only slight disturbances among the radical farm element here today. But at Denison, some sixty miles to the southeast, there was a riot when about 1,000 farmers sought to stop a forced sale of a foreclosed farm. They were met by fifty deputy sheriffs and state agents and a fight ensued, in which State Agent William Zelinsky was severely beaten.

Sheriff Hugo Willy telegraphed the governor, stating that his forces were unequal to maintaining order in Crawford county and the state's chief executive promptly declared martial law there also. Troops were moving into Denison this afternoon from Council Bluffs, Shenandoah, Glenwood, Red Oak, and Neola.

During the Denison fighting several of the deputy sheriffs were stripped of their badges. Witnesses declared the battle was started by visiting farmers from Harrison county.

Center of Disorder.

The tier of western Iowa counties has been a center of disorder for many months. Last summer the farmers established patrols along the road and strove to prevent the movement of farm products into Sioux City and other important points. At that time the farmers were trying to enforce an agricultural holiday in the hope of forcing up consumer prices.

That trouble was quelled after a fashion by Sheriff Rippey and his men, but there have been numerous new outbreaks over attempts to sell foreclosed property. Particularly have the farmers been angered over the taking of deficiency judgments when the sale fails to realize enough to satisfy mortgages.

Law Is Contested.

In the mood of placation the Iowa legislature passed a law requiring the postponement of all mortgage foreclosures in the state until March 1, 1935. The constitutionality of the law has been contested.

Judge A. P. Barker of Muscatine only today held the law constitutional, but Judge W. E. Dingwell at Winterset a few hours earlier had declared it unconstitutional, asserting that impairment of contract was illegal. Judge Bradley has several cases of the same nature to come before him.

MILO RENO BLAMES 'WRONGS' FOR ATTACK OF MOB UPON JUDGE

Macon, Mo., April 28.—(AP)—Milo Reno of Des Moines, Ia., president of the National Farmers' Holiday association, said tonight disturbances such as that in which a judge was beaten by farmers at Le Mars, Ia., apparently reflect the existence "of some intolerable wrong."

Speaking to a group of farmers, Reno termed the attack on Judge Charles C. Bradley "deplorable, in fact revolutionary," but added that "the sending out of militia will only aggravate the situation."

"It is deplorable, in fact revolutionary, when people who have been law abiding, conservative citizens ignore the courts and violate the laws even to the extent of mobbing judges," Reno said.

"However, it has occurred a great many times in the world's history. When laws and courts fail to establish and maintain equity and justice they will be overthrown, ignored, and abolished.

"The farmers in that community have been God fearing, law abiding members of society up until the present. I take it that any acts of violence and law violations that may have been committed have been due to some intolerable wrong under which the people have been suffering."

FOUR FARM YOUTHS ADMIT THEY FIRED HAY AND SET OFF BOMBS

Yakima, Wash., April 28.—(AP)—Four farmers—Clarence, Ralph, and James Baker and Ray Burgess—pleaded guilty in Superior court today to charges growing out of recent bombings on the Yakima Indian reservation, which officers attributed to anti-Japanese and anti-Filipino sentiment.

Clarence and James Baker confessed to the bombing of the S. Ito home, James Baker to firing a haystack owned by a Japanese, and Burgess to participating in another bombing.

Asked if they understood the seriousness of their situation the overall clad youths shook their heads as they said, "Well, we done it."

Sentencing was deferred.

Retribution

Two Postoffice Robbers Get 25 Years, One Gets 10

Thomas Jewell, 18 years old, and Joseph A. Hickey, 28 years old, were sentenced to 25 years each in Leavenworth penitentiary yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on charges of robbing the mails with a gun. A third defendant, Lester Patterson, 26 years old, who did not carry a revolver during the robberies, was sentenced to 10 years in Leavenworth. All three pleaded guilty. Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher said the defendants took part in ten robberies of postal substations in Chicago.

4 ROB ODIN BANK OF $3,500; FLEE, BUT ARE CAUGHT

Trapped in Farmhouse by Posse; Recover Cash.

Centralia, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—A posse of twenty-five men surrounded a farmhouse a half mile south of the Marion-Jefferson county line this afternoon and captured four bandits who had looted the First National bank of Odin this morning of $3,500. The money was recovered. There was no shooting.

The robbers gave their names as Coy Meyers and Tom Earley of Centralia and Irvin Kurich and Frank Golasco of Chicago. They were taken to the county jail at Salem.

They had cut telephone wires to the bank when they entered this morning and held two officers of the institution and a customer at bay while an assistant cashier was forced to open the safe.

Balk Wilmington Bank Holdup.

Wilmington, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Three bandits fleeing after an unsuccessful attempt to hold up the First National bank here used a submachine gun to beat off two automobile race drivers who had overtaken them, overturned their own car and kidnaped a motorist to make their getaway this afternoon.

Two of the bandits entered the bank just before noon while the third waited in their car. At the sight of the guns, L. A. Bitterman, the cashier, and Oscar G. Thompson, bookkeeper, dropped to the floor behind the counter and Bitterman set off a flood of tear gas.

The bandits fled without loot, driving their car at break neck speed toward Peotone. A few doors away James and Harry Butcher, who once competed in the Indianapolis speedway Decoration day auto race, heard the alarm, rolled out their racing car and pursued the bandits' car. The chase lasted five miles. When the racer approached the bandits' car, the driver of the latter skidded it to a stop, while another occupant opened fire with a submachine gun. James Butcher was shot in the right shoulder.

The bandits continued their flight until their car overturned on the gravel road at a sharp turn six miles farther. They waited until Edward Peterson, a building contractor of Elwood, Ill., drove up and fled in his car toward Chicago, forcing Peterson to accompany them. Peterson was released on the far south side of Chicago late tonight, and permitted to go away in his own car. He drove to the home of his mother, Mrs. Andrew Peterson, 36 West 107th street, from where he telephoned his wife in Elwood that he was safe.

Four Escape in Hail of Bullets.

Madison, Minn., April 28.—[Special.]—Spraying the streets with machine gun, rifle, pistol, and shotgun fire, four bandits sped out of town today after robbing the Klein National bank of $2,000. Three bystanders were injured by the hail of bullets, and an assistant cashier was slugged by one of the bandits.

PICKPOCKETS GET $130.

Albert Joyce, 53 years old, 2623 West North avenue, reported yesterday to Racine avenue police that his wallet containing $130 had been taken by pickpockets Thursday night on a North avenue street car at Damen avenue.

MILK COMPANIES DEMAND $5 CUT IN DRIVERS' PAY

Union Wage Contract Expires Tomorrow.

A reduction of $5 a week in the wage scale of 5,200 milk wagon drivers was demanded of officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union No. 753 in a conference with representatives of Chicago milk companies at the Hotel La Salle yesterday. The present contract expires tomorrow.

The milk distributors met a committee of the drivers' union and presented the new wage rate on the basis of $5.84 per day, in lieu of the present rate of $6.67 a day. The union is expected to vote on the pay cut of 12½ per cent some time next week.

Face Cut in Pay or Men.

The milk companies were said to have declared they were faced with the necessity of reducing either wages or the number of men employed. They sought the rate of $35 a week last November when retail milk prices dropped from 11 to 9 cents per quart, but the drivers voted down the full reduction from $45 per week, the scale having been $40 since Dec. 1.

Previously when milk has sold for 9 cents a quart in Chicago the drivers were receiving $28 per week without vacations. Each driver now works a six day week and has two weeks' vacation with pay. Their net earning are considerably less than the scale because of union dues, payments to the union unemployment fund and losses from bad accounts.

Labor costs in processing and distributing milk represent nearly 64 per cent of the 9 cents paid by consumers, it was reported. The milk itself costs the companies less than 3 cents per quart.

Farmers Demand Raise.

Officers of the Pure Milk association, bargaining agency for 8,000 dairymen, met with the distributors this week and issued a demand for an increase in price to farmers. They are expected to press their demands with the companies again next week, maintaining that farmers have shouldered three-fourths of the burden of reducing milk prices from the high price of 14 cents to 9 cents in a three year period.

A majority of the dairy companies were found to be advocating a new form of payment for milk wagon drivers in their negotiations with union officials. By operating under a "merit system" the men would receive a lowered salary, while commissions on sales of milk, cream, butter, eggs, and cheese would be increased.

BOY, 7, SAVES 25C TO HELP FEED HUNGRY PUPILS

Jack Baker, 7 years old, 931 Hyde Park boulevard, wanted to do something for the hungry school children. So he saved a separate fund out of his allowance. Yesterday he sent the money he had saved, twenty-five cents, to the Hungry School Children's fund and as a result five needy youngsters will be treated to a hot lunch one day this week.

Contributions dropped to $7.25 yesterday. Donations should be kept up to a higher average, as 10,000 needy children in 100 public schools are dependent upon the fund.

Yesterday's gifts were sent by the following:

$1—Mrs. J. E. D., Anonymous.
25 cents—7 year old Jack Baker.

Total	$ 7.25
Previously acknowledged	23,886.67
Grand total	$23,893.92

BAIL OF $100,000 IS SET ON PISTOL TOTING CHARGE

Judge Thomas A. Green, sitting in the Bond court last night, fixed $100,000 bail for James Allatta, 21 years old, 940 Sedgwick street, on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and of being a fugitive suspect wanted for murder in Wisconsin.

JAMES ALLATTA.

Earlier in the day Allatta appeared before Judge Thomas Lynch in the Criminal court in a habeas corpus hearing, and it was ordered that Allatta should be booked or freed by 10 p. m. At that hour police booked him only for carrying a concealed weapon, and friends of the prisoner later appeared before Judge Green seeking bond, which is usually $1,000 in a gun toting case.

Judge Green recalled, however, that he had fined Allatta $100 and costs last summer and also that police recently had been seeking him for authorities of Madison, Wis., in a murder case. Judge Green then set bond at $50,000 in the gun case and ordered Sergt. Thomas E. Shea to sign a fugitive complaint against him in the Wisconsin matter. This was done, and the judge added another $50,000 bail. Allatta denied he was wanted for murder. He will be arraigned in Felony court Monday.

TWO ARRESTED IN FACTOR CASE WIN NEW TRIAL

Archie Brown and Ted Patterson, who were held last week as suspects of the kidnaping of Jerome Factor, obtained a nullification yesterday of their second conviction in Springfield of robbing the Rochester State bank of $1,600 in November, 1930. They had served part of their sentences when the Supreme court granted them a new trial because a woman served on the jury which convicted them, and yesterday the second conviction was set aside when one of the jurors admitted being only 20 years old.

Hugh Gallagher, the juror, when questioned for jury service, said he was 24. The verdict of guilty was returned late Thursday night and defense attorneys immediately raised the question of Gallagher's age. Yesterday when he said he was 20, Judge Walter W. Wright set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial as quickly as possible. Gallagher was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $500 on a contempt charge. The trial cost Sangamon county $1,653.

Window Smasher Slain When He Flees Police

Leonard Cox, 17 years old, a Negro, of 10813 Glenroy avenue, was shot and killed by police last night when he broke the window of a grocery at 10729 Glenroy avenue, allegedly with the intention of theft. Policemen Louis Berg and John Dorgan of the Morgan Park station were passing in a squad car at the time Cox broke the window. When he fled at their commands to halt Policeman Berg fired one bullet, which struck him in the head.

SHIFTING PRICES FORM FEATURE IN FOOD MARKETS

BY PAUL POTTER.

Fluctuations in wholesale food prices this week have caused many changes, both upward and downward, in Chicago and national retail markets. Housewives shopping for their week-end supplies today will do well to make a careful survey of the foods offered in order to select the best bargains.

Butter prices were 4 to 5 cents a pound lower yesterday than a week ago. Fresh green peas in the pod, from California and Arizona, are lower, as are many cuts of veal, bacon, head lettuce, and oranges for juice.

Some Grocery Prices Higher.

A combination of adverse weather in producing areas and speculative action of wholesale markets served to boost somewhat the prices of sugar, flour, tomatoes, new cabbage, asparagus, and rhubarb. Bakery goods, cereals, canned foods, and many other items widely used continue to be attractively low in price.

Careful shoppers will recall the assurances given a week ago that inflation of the national currency would not send most foods skyrocketing immediately. While butter went up 4 to 8 cents a pound with news of inflation legislation last week, it has come back to the bargain counter in time for today's shopping.

As news of the price increase reached dairy farmers they began shipping larger quantities of butter. This week daily receipts in the Chicago wholesale market soared to 10,000 tubs, compared to 6,600 last week. Packaged butter shipments also have increased.

Veal on Bargain Counter.

In the meat markets of the city all cuts of veal should be found at extra low prices. Steaks, chops, roasts, and leg of veal all are available at a cost which will cause thousands of families to serve veal. Lamb and pork prices have advanced slightly. Chuck and large pot roasts are the best purchases in beef.

Head lettuce is 2 to 4 cents a head lower than a week ago due to increased shipments from the southwest. Some advance in onion prices may be expected in coming weeks because of adverse growing conditions in Texas, where a large crop had been expected.

Asparagus, rhubarb, and early berries are expected in larger amounts soon and at lower prices. Warm weather in southern Illinois and nearby territory is hurrying the harvest of these seasonal foods.

DYNAMITE BLAST LINKS TUNNELS TO CARRY WATER TO WEST SIDE

Two crews of workmen who have been tunneling 160 feet beneath the surface of the ground since last September met yesterday at Central Park and Chicago avenues to complete the Chicago avenue lake and land tunnel that will supply water to the west side. One crew, headed by G. D. Tompkins, engineer in charge of the Kedzie avenue shaft, had tunneled 2,800 feet from the 3200 block in Chicago avenue. The other, directed by Arthur Schutz, in charge of the Lake street shaft, had worked its way 4,000 feet from Lake street. Four hundred pounds of dynamite were exploded yesterday to remove the remaining 16 feet of rock and the two crews met.

WIFE FORCED TO WALK HOME IN RAIN IS FREED

Harvey H. Thormahlen, an official of the Standard Stoker company, 332 South Michigan avenue, forced his wife, Mrs. Marie Thormahlen, to walk 41 blocks in the rain, she testified yesterday before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath, who granted her a divorce.

Continuing her story of the walk in the rain, Mrs. Thormahlen testified that on Dec. 10, 1932, her husband shoved her from his automobile and made her return home in the storm. On Feb. 1, 1933, he removed her from a hospital and put her on a train to New York with only her ticket and $7, she said, and she had to apply for charity in New York to obtain means to return here.

The Thormahlens were married July 3, 1920, and separated Jan. 21, 1933. Mrs. Thormahlen received a $400 settlement and retains the custody of an adopted child, Donald, 3 years old.

THRONGS VISIT ILE DE FRANCE AT NEW YORK DOCK

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—An "added attraction" to Gotham's widely advertised list of places to go and things to see was provided by the French line today when it threw open its refitted flagship, the Ile de France, now in dock at the foot of West 15th street, to the general public.

More than 5,000 visitors, including J. F. Nolan, Chicago agent of the line, took advantage of a general invitation printed in the daily newspapers to acquaint themselves with the latest word in ocean-going palaces. Spokesmen for the line expressed amazement at the size and enthusiasm of the throngs attracted by the announcement.

The Ile de France spent most of the autumn and winter—five months, to be more nearly exact—in a dry-dock being overhauled and equipped with luxuries and improvements introduced since she made her debut as an ocean "queen" back in 1927.

SEAWAY TREATY CONDEMNED BY COUNCIL GROUP

Inimical to Interests of Chicago Is Verdict.

The St. Lawrence seaway treaty, which is pending in congress, was condemned as inimical to the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway in a resolution adopted yesterday by the city council committee on harbors, wharves and bridges. The committee will follow up its action by seeking at the May 10 session of the council to put all the aldermen on record as opposing the treaty.

Article 8 of the treaty, which would limit diversion from Lake Michigan to 1,500 cubic second feet, was specifically assailed in the committee discussions. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], committee chairman, and others stated that the article would be harmful to traffic operations on the lakes-gulf waterway.

Seaport of the World.

"With the development of the St. Lawrence waterway, Chicago, in my opinion, will become the seaport of the world, economically speaking," said Martin Oettershagen, city port engineer. "But article 8 of the treaty would take from congress its rights to prescribe diversion for navigation purposes and give to a foreign power sovereignty over Lake Michigan, which is inside the United States and not a boundary water."

Ald. Rowan also called to the committee's attention the fact that no work has been done on the proposed barge terminal at Damen avenue, although the lakes-gulf waterway was unofficially opened early in April by a boat chartered by THE TRIBUNE. The formal opening is scheduled for June 15. He appointed a subcommittee to determine what became of state legislation that would make available $200,000 for the development of the terminal.

"That amount was to be paid to the state," Ald. Rowan explained, "in a land transfer that gave the state title to the barge terminal site. But if no terminal is ready when the waterway is opened it will be the city officials who will be criticized. The committee, therefore, should exert itself to have the development of the terminal placed in the council's hands."

Get Requests for Dock Space.

The committee had before it also numerous requests for dock space along the river for old prison ships, show boats, pleasure craft and freighters. These requests were referred to subcommittees for investigation. A protest was lodged with the committee by William C. Calvert of the North Central association, against leasing dock space for large boats between Wabash and Michigan avenues.

"If large boats are to be permitted to dock west of Michigan avenue," said Mr. Calvert, "there will be constant interruption of traffic over the boulevard bridge. That will mean increased traffic for Wabash avenue and interference there with street car traffic."

CALLS HUSBAND 'MAMMA'S BOY'; WINS DIVORCE

Mrs. Dorothy Heiden, 24 years old, 3542 Schubert avenue, testified yesterday before Judge Joseph Sabath in superior court that her husband, Elmer W. Heiden, was a "mamma's boy" and preferred the maternal household to his own home.

Judge Sabath granted her a divorce on grounds of cruelty. She also received a $500 settlement, according to her attorney, Harry X. Cole, and waived alimony.

Heiden, who lives at 6043 North Austin avenue, is an employé of the Commonwealth Edison company. The couple were married April 30, 1932, and separated last Oct. 21.

Two Husky Cops Guard Four Grams of Radium

Four grams of radium valued at more than $250,000 was guarded by two husky policemen from the First district yesterday when it was removed from the old offices of the Radium Service corporation of America, at 25 East Washington boulevard, to new offices at 180 North Michigan avenue. The radium was in the form of a radium sulphate, platinum and radium chloride, being contained in tubes, needles and a solution. The actual radium transported was about one-fourth of teaspoonful.

Brett's Book on Lawrence Tale of Slave

Writing Reflects Devotion Turned Blind.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Lawrence and Brett," by Dorothy Brett. [Lippincott.]

The articles and books about D. H. Lawrence since his death have been like mushrooms after a heavy dew. They have been so prolific that there is almost distinction in NOT having known D. H. Lawrence intimately enough to write intimately about him.

DOROTHY BRETT. [A self-portrait.]

Two books about Lawrence in America dovetail in a peculiarly interesting way—Mabel Dodge Luhan's "Lorenzo in Taos," published last year, and the Hon. Dorothy Brett's "Lawrence and Brett, a Frienship," just published. With the aid of letters of D. H. Lawrence to and about the Hon. Dorothy Brett [as Lawrence always naïvely refers to her even when writing to such an intimate friend of both of theirs as Middleton Murry] the pattern of Lawrence's life in New Mexico is further clarified.

"Lawrence and Brett" is a naïve, somewhat stupid record of an adoration which made of Lawrence a god, the stupidity of which is actually fascinating in its utter meticulousness. It is a day by day record of "Brett's" life with Lawrence and his wife, Frieda. It records the day by day moods of one of the moodiest men that ever lived. Every single marital battle that took place either about her or about something which she did not understand, "Brett" sets down with its attendant outbursts.

"Brett" is obviously writing to glorify the memory of the man who, to her, was the essence of genius, but she only rarely records a sentence from his lips that is more than commonplace, and she certainly gives a day by day fever chart of a nature that was far more devil than god. The tantrums in which he indulged (and which always had their aftermath in another tantrum on the part of his wife because Brett always stood up for her hero) were often as unprovoked as those sudden violent tempests in the mountains when rain descends upon one with a clap of thunder from a blue sky.

She makes him out (obviously wholly unintentionally) the most unattractive kind of human being—the sort who never can get along with any one for more than the running of the sand through the fingers of the day. She finally painted him (she is fundamentally a painter and came to America with the Lawrences as his secretary only to be with them) as both the Pan and the Christ in a strange "Crucifixion" which she conceived and, when she showed the picture to him, said, "It is you," to which he grimly replied, "Perhaps."

Occasionally she is allegorical, but again without intent. When she tells about the way he rode a horse she writes: "I naturally look up at the trees and the sky, but you seem always watching the ground. And then it suddenly dawns on me: you are looking for flowers—and flowers there are among all the tangled undergrowth."

That sentence lets you into another secret about "Lawrence and Brett." The entire book is written to Lawrence. He is always referred to in the second person, as if she were telling over to his departed spirit every separate moment which they had spent together—her rosary. The effect is of the most incredible oddness. The book takes on a sentimental, almost erotic wooing quality which seemingly from this book and plainly from Lawrence's letters their friendship did not have. One published letter proves it.

After they had parted in Mexico he wrote her what is to my mind a masterpiece of cruelty. He berates her for her sexless devotion to him and says after months of accepting what sounds in her book—and in Mabel Dodge Luhan's—like the devotion of a churchman for his religion: "No, Brett, I do NOT want your friendship till you have a full relation somewhere, a KINDLY relation of both halves, not IN PART as all your friendships have been. That which is in part is in itself a betrayal. Your 'friendship' for me betrays the essential man and male that I am and makes me ill. Yes, you make me ill, by dragging at one-half at the expense of the other half. And I am so much better now you have gone. I refuse any more of this 'delicate friendship' business, because it damages one's wholeness. Nevertheless, I don't feel unkindly to you. In your one-half you are loyal enough. But the very halfness makes your loyalty fatal."

In Mabel Dodge Luhan's book there is scathing unkindness about Brett, not the least of which is "He (Lawrence) told me almost at once that he had brought Brett along to be a kind of buffer between him and Frieda (his wife)."

"Lawrence and Brett" is more the record of that buffer-ing than it is of Lawrence himself. When the book is finished, however (and the reader finds himself strangely fascinated by it, page after page), it is neither Lawrence nor Frieda whose fate has touched the reader's heartstrings (for a good fight seems to have been a nice, juicy beefsteak and a jug of ale to them), but the Hon. Dorothy Brett's, who laid at the feet of her god her fumbling typing and her ear trumpet and her good right arm to saw wood and her two sturdy feet to run errands and was finally repaid by being able to see, even after everything, the essence of her genius whole and untarnished. It is perfctly wonderful that any one could, under the circumstances, so have seen a human being and could for 300 pages be ecstatic about the daily contact with irascibility and selfishness and unpredictable mood. But "Brett" can. Page 301 ends with "I could go on writing of you forever."

Pick Mottram as Successor to Galsworthy

Swinnerton Seeks Reason for Many Claims.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Claims are still being staked in London to the Galsworthy succession. The latest writer to be named is R. H. Mottram, whose first novel, "The Spanish Farm," had an introduction by Galsworthy [Mrs. Galsworthy has known Mr. Mottram from his earliest childhood], and whose publishers advertise his new novel with the inquiry "Galsworthy's Successor?" I do not know whether Mr. Mottram will approve of the claim; but the list of those who are in the succession is now a long one.

R. H. MOTTRAM.

I wonder why this question has arisen in the case of Galsworthy, when it did not do so after Arnold Bennett's death. The truth is that the men of the generation immediately following that of Wells-Galsworthy-Bennett are W. B. Maxwell, Somerset Maugham, Oliver Onions, and J. D. Beresford. In the next generation, which includes Hugh Walpole, Francis Brett Young, and Compton Mackenzie, at least two or three women novelists would have to be considered—for example, Rose Macaulay and Sheila Kaye-Smith.

But in so far as these writers are good writers, they are decidedly not "successors" to Galsworthy or anybody else. They are themselves; and the only resemblance any one of them has to Galsworthy lies in the combination of general popularity with some literary standing. They are all prewar in mental attitude and technique; and it is not until we reach the underforties, who as yet have had less time to become persistent novelists, that rating and ranking becomes seriously interesting. It is a curious fact that, as far as I know, all the writers I have named above are mutually tolerant, whereas the amount of mutual contempt lavished upon each other by the under-forties, if placed end to end, would reach annihilation.

The Hogarth Press has just published an excellent and very interesting and unusual critical study of the "difficult" French writer, Paul Valery. This is the work of Miss Theodora Bosanquet; and it is a fact worthy of remark that Miss Bosanquet is already known to fame as the secretary and amanuensis of another "difficult" writer [though of a "difficulty" quite different in kind]—Henry James.

It was to Miss Bosanquet that Henry James dictated many of his later novels, walking about the room, endlessly elaborating those strange convoluted, fascinating sentences which so profundly bore some readers and so exquisitely reward the faithful. I wish Miss Bosanquet would somewhere set on record her memory of Henry James' methods of dictation. It might greatly assist future literary historians.

An April volume is a small book of autobiography by Herbert Read. It is called "The Innocent Eye" and it relates the first impressions of a childhood spent on a remote Yorkshire farm. Mr. Read's eye is by no means so innocent nowadays, for he is considered decidedly highbrow, is a professor and is an exponent of very modern esthetic theories. I suggest two further volumes in a trilogy: "The Less Innocent I" and "The Sophisticated High."

JAPANESE SMASH CHINESE DEFENSE NORTH OF PEIPING

8,000 Slain and Wounded in Big Battle.

PEIPING, China, April 28.—(AP)—The Japanese war machine was reported today to have smashed tenacious Chinese defenses south of the Great Wall after bitter fighting, in which 4,000 on each side were killed or wounded.

That the Japanese intend to drive the Chinese beyond artillery range in the sector, but that they do not plan to advance on Peiping, were advanced by foreign military attachés as possible reasons for the determined Japanese onslaught.

Town Taken from Chinese.

The Japanese legation announced tonight that the Japanese forces had taken Nantienmen, between Peiping and Kupeikow pass through the wall, after a terrific advance on three sides and a withering bombing from airplanes and artillery.

Chinese fortifications, which had withstood eight days of fighting, were said to have been demolished, and the Japanese mastery of the Peiping gateway to Jehol province was believed assured.

From Kaigan came Chinese dispatches saying Chinese volunteers under Japanese leadership were preparing to invade Chahar province, west of Jehol province. Fresh supplies had reached the volunteers, the reports said, and the Japanese were preparing to attack Dolon—nor the regular Chinese garrison at the latter place was ordered to resist.

Move for Showdown With Russia.

TOKIO, April 29 [Saturday].—(AP)—Repeated accusations and demands exchanged between Manchukuo and soviet Russia producing only a deadlock, Li Shao-Keng, Manchukuoan chairman of the Chinese Eastern railway, today notified the soviet authorities that he is summoning a meeting of the directorate of the railway early in May to attempt a compromise.

According to vernacular newspaper dispatches from Harbin, Manchuria, Li was reported to have significantly told the Russians that the prospective meeting would furnish an opportunity for the soviet government to show whether it sincerely desired to coöperate with Manchukuo in joint operation of the railway.

The directorate consists of five Russians and five Manchukuoans.

Change Name of Railway.

The Manchukuoan ministry of communications announced today that the Chinese Eastern has been renamed the North Manchurian railway.

[Russia has sent several stiff protests to Japan in recent weeks, charging that interference with the operation of the Chinese Eastern is threatening soviet interests. The connection between the Chinese Eastern and the Russian line was recently broken by Manchukuo, crippling international traffic, and there have been many wrecks and other incidents on the line. Russia in its protests demanded that Japan fulfill the obligations it assumed when Manchuria was seized and protect soviet interests].

ISLAND BLOWS UP

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, April 28.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports reached here today that Augustine island, at the mouth of Cook inlet, on which aviators had previously sighted a dormant or extinct volcano, had blown up during an eruption. The island, 160 miles south of here, was about five miles in diameter and one or more trappers lived on it.

SEIZES ROBBER IN LOOP CHASE AFTER HOLDUP

George Kacmin, 20 years old, was captured in a loop chase last night a few minutes after he had stolen $35 in a robbery in a De Met's candy shop at 11 West Madison street.

The youth stole the money from Miss Ellen Hart, 4425 Deyo avenue, Congress Park, the cashier, after threatening her with a revolver. As he fled, Miss Hart followed, screaming for help. The chase was taken up by Stewart Slack, 1943 Greenleaf avenue, a De Met employé.

Slack followed Kacmin through alleys, and persisted in the pursuit even after the bandit turned to fire a shot at him. Kacmin then sought refuge in the Raklios' restaurant at 59 West Madison street. Slack followed, and with Harry Lang, 5349 Kenmore avenue, a patron in the restaurant, seized the robber. Lang disarmed him and a moment later Traffic Policeman Leo Koch placed Kacmin under arrest. He said the robbery was his first.

Electric Eye to Guard $500,000 Gem at Fair

A glass cabinet within which is a burglar proof safe will be used in the jewelry display at A Century of Progress to display the 78⅝ carat Nassak diamond which will be a principal exhibit. The safe is protected by an "electric eye." Any blow on the glass case will automatically cause the gem to retreat into the safe, while at the same time tear gas will be loosed. Guards in gas masks will be stationed there. The gem is valued at $500,000.

Fair to Display $50,000 Model of San Francisco

A miniature model of San Francisco constructed entirely of California red wood and illuminated with tiny electric lights which will show the narrow streets of Chinatown and the broad boulevards of the city, will be on display in the California section of the Hall of States at A Century of Progress. Theodore Hardee, commissioner to the fair from California, visited the exposition grounds yesterday. The miniature was built at a cost of nearly $50,000. It is 27 feet long and 15 feet deep, he said.

"HOLLYWOOD AT THE FAIR" SEEKS MOVIE TALENT

Chicago girls and youths may apply for try-outs in the movies and talkies to be made at "Hollywood," on A Century of Progress grounds, where a school for acting, filming, and sound recording will be in progress during the fair, J. D. Keener announced yesterday. Keener is technical director of the fair's miniature reproduction of California's Hollywood. He announced the appointment of four district representatives through whom applications for try-outs may be made. Miss Madeleine Glynn, a founder of the Little theater at the Austin High school, who will receive applications for groups and individuals from the west side. The north side representative is Miss Diana Munger, 53 East Elm street; the south side, Philip Crane, 9436 Bishop avenue, Beverly Hills, and the north shore, Miss Alicia Pratt, Winnetka.

START ERECTING LIGHT FOUNTAIN FOR WORLD FAIR

Installation of the spectacular fountain of light and other lighting effects of the court of the Electrical building at A Century of Progress is under way.

The display was designed by engineers of the General Electric and the Westinghouse companies, which are sponsoring the displays within the Electrical building. Searchlights, mercury vapor tubes, and fountain lighted by 140 floodlighting projectors to create a series of multi-colored steps will be employed.

From the center of the 70 foot basin a 50 foot fountain of light will rise. A synthetic waterfall will be effected by means of mercury vapor tubes at the rear of the court. High above the court seventeen 36 inch searchlights, each of 21,000,000 candlepower, will play in a silver fan of huge proportions, the source of light being virtually concealed.

200 MILES AN HOUR SPEED FORECAST FOR AIR LINERS

Lester D. Seymour, president of American Airways, Inc., declared last night that commercial air transportation speeds will reach 200 miles an hour this year. He spoke over W-G-N on the American air races to be staged at Chicago airport July 1, 2, 3, and 4 under the sponsorship of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. He described air racing as the proving ground for the aviation industry.

Mr. Seymour's comment on commercial air transportation speed was considered by air transport authorities as confirmation of rumors that a 200 mile an hour transport was being developed for American Airways for the struggle between the country's three largest air lines for the lion's share of the passenger, mail, and express business. United Air Lines recently placed air liners which travel three miles a minute into service, and Transcontinental and Western Air Lines are understood to have two new types of transport planes, both capable of more than 180 miles an hour, ready for adoption.

"With the new 200 miles an hour transport planes in service, New York and Los Angeles will be separated by a single daylight flight; Chicago and New York will be but a morning's run apart," Seymour asserted.

SLUGGED, ROBBED WHILE HE CASHES WORKERS' CHECKS

Four bandits slugged E. H. Manasee, one of the owners of a currency exchange, and robbed him of $600 yesterday in the sanitary district service building at Howard street and the north shore channel road, where he had gone to cash pay checks of district employés.

Three of the robbers herded five employés into another room while the fourth struck Manasee over the head with a pistol and took his money. Charles Halket, a clerk, was robbed of $54. Manasee had cashed $1,000 worth of checks when the robbers arrived. His office is at 3944 Lawrence avenue.

Employés of the sanitary district got their pay checks yesterday for the last half of January. The pay roll amounted to $109,000.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE IOWA OUTRAGE.

Iowa offers the crowning outrage in the disorders throughout the country committed by persons who assert that any sense of injury is sanction for any lawlessness. A mob of farmers dragged Judge C. C. Bradley from his courtroom in Le Mars, north of Sioux City, and took him, with a rope around his neck, to an electric light pole on a road out of the town. They beat him and choked him. They rubbed grease and dirt in his face and crowned him with a hub cap. Then they told him he would swear never to sign another foreclosure order or he would be swung up by the neck.

The veteran judge in this peril of his life, covered with indignities and facing ruffians, refused. He was hoisted off his feet, but when the noose was loosened he again refused to surrender his judicial honor to a mob. The courage of the judge was too much for the spirit of his captors. They forced further indignities upon him, but released him.

It happens occasionally that one incident so dramatizes a situation that it precipitates opinion. It brings out the true import of actions. It crystallizes sentiment. It points to consequences and it forces correction. This incident of Iowa ruffianism is such an episode.

The majority of the people of the United States have not lost their heads. In trying years they have been doing their duty, meeting their obligations, struggling against hard times or adversity, working for what they get and conducting themselves properly and decently. They have made it possible for the country to carry the load. They have been sympathetic and helpful. These people have seen their laws contemptibly treated, their security invaded, and their rights discarded.

Elsewhere it has been assumed that grievances set aside laws, that a sense of injury suspends government, that violence and disturbance obtain a sanction in the temper of the times and the temper of the disturbers and that the desire of any set of persons to squat upon a community, to destroy or seize property, to riot in the streets, or to stop the procedure of law is in itself their right to do so. This has proceeded with more tolerance than challenge. It has been threatening the order of the country.

No part of the land has been wholly free from such manifestations, but Iowa has been particularly unfortunate in submitting to lawlessness as if to a new and higher form of justice. When the expectable, if not inevitable, consequences of this ripened into the crowning outrage upon the law the state was fortunate to have in the person of the judge humiliated, abused, and threatened with lynching a man willing to lose his life, but not willing to abdicate to masked ruffians. Administrative government in Iowa is not in an enviable spot, but Judge Bradley's act reflects the highest credit on the honor and courage of the bench. Where officials responsible for the maintenance of public security have been afraid of political consequences he was not afraid for his life.

His conduct must cause people the country over to reflect that they have been much to blame to permit the development of a situation of which the outrage to him was a logical outcome. Seeing the conditions and perceiving their own passive responsibility for it they should assert everywhere their determination that laws shall prevail and shall not be merely eggshells in the hands of any persons who want to break them.

WILD LIFE IN WISCONSIN.

Soliloquizing on the unappreciated and difficult life of the angleworm, Editor Halbert L. Hoard writes to The Tribune and reminisces over his full life at Fort Atkinson, Wis. "The angleworm has no choice in the rain," he ruminates. "He must get to the top or drown, and if he gets to the top the ducks get him. There are a hundred angleworms now to one back in 1870, and only one duck now to a hundred then, and a hundred sportsmen waiting to shoot that duck."

This leads the Wisconsin editor to think of a drive he has just enjoyed and the sights he saw down the east valley where the Scuppernong joins the Bark river, hundreds of little groups of bluebills, mallard, teal, blackheads, widgeon, butterballs, pintail, and mudhens. "All scattered about," he writes, "all busy with the earthworms and snails in the flooded lowlands."

Out of all this comes the hopeful thought that Wisconsin can double its income from tourists by making game preserves of farm lands, marginal or worse, that revert to the counties for nonpayment of taxes. It will cost nothing but the taxes, and they no longer are paid, anyway.

Editor Hoard believes Wisconsin can build up an income of half a billion dollars a year and contribute substantially to the farm relief program by cutting down its farm acreage and increasing its wild life at not too great distances from the centers of population. His thoughts wander from the sorrowful angleworm to protected acres well filled with native birds which a nature hungry city people will pay well to see and, under decent regulation, to shoot.

Almost any person, city or farm bred, would enjoy an hour with the bluebills and mallards and snipes along the Scuppernong, not to mention the earthworms and snails.

His idea seems both picturesque and practical, and Wisconsin could do a worse thing than to put it to the test. Its apparent objection is that it might require an army of political wardens to insure the wild birds a start in life. The poacher and the pot hunter would have to be obliterated, or few birds would survive.

WHICH CHINA?

Recent reports from Shanghai said that the Japanese advance in a triangular section of Hopei province to the sea had isolated a part of the 15th United States infantry at Camp Barrows, near Chinwangtao, by the cutting of the Chinese railway and telegraph lines. The American detachment is a part of the force stationed at Tientsin under the terms imposed on China after the Boxer war.

The United States in dealing with Japan recognizes China as an integrated, competent government, but in dealing with China recognizes a status inconsistent with the pretenses of the stand taken as to Japan. The United States holds that Japan is not respecting the sovereignty and integrity of an orderly and peaceful country. At the same time the United States maintains army and navy forces in China to police various areas and waterways. China is the permanent station of an American regiment, and America builds specially designed gunboats for use on Chinese waters.

It is awkward to maintain both these positions. Japan says it is protecting not only its own people and their lives and property but the interests of all nations in China by sending in large bodies of troops to occupy Chinese territory. The United States maintains a small force under the same pretense. China opposes the one attempt with its own forces, but accepts the other condition as a treaty stipulation, although the consistency of it is occasionally protested.

In the distracted conditions of recent years the American soldiers have often found themselves on the line of fire between two hostiles. The probabilities of trouble are very real on such occasions. It would seem to be only common sense to get these American soldiers off other people's battle fields before their presence precipitates some international episode of consequence. It would also seem that it would be the first requirement of a sensible program to determine just what the United States thinks China is. It can't very well be one thing in its relation to the United States and a totally different thing in its relation to Japan if the United States and Japan are to have anything but misunderstandings.

MAKING FOR BRIGHTER BASEBALL.

In a recent American league game between the Senators and Yankees the players and a number of the spectators endeavored to take each other apart. Shortly before this Balkanized episode several of the Chicago Cubs were dissuaded by the management from undertaking to pull their former manager, Rogers Hornsby, now a Cardinal, out in the arena and make an early martyr of him.

The more recent Washington event grew out of an attempt of a New York player to spoil a double play at second by cutting down the man at the base with his spikes. The player at fault says he was merely playing baseball as it is expected to be played. The offended player says his enemy is a well-known Dyak. An incidental inquiry from outside the profession might be why the management of the game does not take the spurs off these fighting cocks. Sabotage is something real and earnest when the sabot is spiked. What would be lost in footing might be compensated by increased security and amity.

Preceding these battles and attempts at battles there had been admonitions by managers that they wanted more ferocity and less fraternity in the games. When wrestling was in a slump the promoters decided to brighten it up with a little touch of butchery and an increase of agonies. Upon the adoption of this box office policy the sport of wrestling became the most incredible pastime which has been offered since the best days of the Roman amphitheater and it profited accordingly. Then hockey took on a modified form of fury to increase its attractiveness and the cash customer got a combination of hockey, football, German student dueling, prize fighting and common alley brawling to delight him.

Although the baseball management appears to frown upon the growing ferocity of the game the situation is not without some evidence to indicate a policy to inject some of the brighter elements of prohibition enforcement in its best days as an added attraction for the customers. Professional football, having many opportunities of outdoing all the other sports in gory exhibits, wisely decided that there were enough bumps in the ordinary playing and the players who had to meet each other ofte during the season should not be encouraged to carry meat axes and brass knuckles into the wings back formation. After all, American sports haven't, as the Roman sports had, a constant supply of rugged but negligible individuals from the conquered provinces. In our case the survival of the players is an essential part of the survival of the game.

SALES TAX PSYCHOLOGY.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

Annoyances resulting from collection of the state sales tax threaten to put the measure into disrepute here.

Objections do not spring, it appears, from the 3 per cent tax in itself, although no citizen welcomes any addition to the burden of the costs of living.

The antagonism being created has its source chiefly in the collection of tax on the articles which run well under $1. A purchaser who buys a small article, pays one cent tax, then does a little mental arithmetic to figure that he has been charged at the rate of 7 per cent, instinctively resents the imposition.

The penny does not mean much to the average buyer, but the realization that he is paying more than twice the required tax aggravates him. Then, too, the necessity of breaking into a bill for an extra one or two pennies is often annoying.

Many other cities have avoided this difficulty by issuing fractional currency. Small tokens, stamped in metal or printed, have been provided by business associations in other cities for items retailing at less than 15 cents.

Many Rockford men who have seen them are considering the possibility of introducing the system here. No sales tax is charged locally on items retailing for less than 15 cents.

Purchases which amount to hundreds of dollars, and upon which the tax would run into several dollars, are being driven into Wisconsin, it is claimed here.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

SPRING DAY.

Could sky be bluer
Or sun more mellow?
Were ever daffodils
As yellow?

Did earth ever smell
As it does today?
Was any wind
Adrift as gay?

Oh, speak your wisdom
Of long years' learning,
And tell me nothing
Is worth the yearning.

Oh, tell me the folly
Of loving too much,
Of being too happy,
Too hopeful, and such.

Oh, say what you will,
But nothing you say
Will ever make me
Listen today.

FERRY ADAMS.

NOW THE GOVERNMENT is going to take over the railroads. So what? So, for one thing, as the owner of a couple of parcels of r. r. dogs, we are going to wait a bit before we begin to give three rousing cheers. For, while the railroads have been going into the scarlet for some time, we haven't noticed the government cutting its orders for red ink any, not on your life. And until the government can run its own business without going into the red we're going to be slightly skeptical about its ability to run everybody else's.

But Which One Was Which?

"Upon inquiry I discovered they were war correspondents. One was about medium size and the other the tallest and thinnest man I had ever seen. He was almost six and a half feet high and appeared even taller on account of his thin body. His name was Little and his companion's name was McCutcheon."

MR. MAC DONALD has come and gone; M. Herriot is still conversing, but is going, and there remain only fifty-five more nations to converse with Franklin Delano before the London conference. It doesn't look as though talk would swing around in the direction of third class postmasters and dam-keepers on the upper Mississippi for quite some time yet.

UNLESS . . .

I understand the technic
Of a goodly score of men . . .
I'll not be disappointed
If you never call again.

Love and life have put me wise . . .
Don't think I'm going to weep
Because I had a quarrel with you,
Or lose one wink of sleep.

Oh, no, that's not the way I play,
I'll buy a smarter hat,
And paint my lips and kiss and flirt
And love, and this and that.

I'll go to parties every night
With other men I've known . . .
I mean that's what I'm going to do

HELEN WELSHIMER.

STYLE IN BURMA as illustrated by the Giraffe-Neck Princess at the circus requires parents to keep encircling the necks of baby girls with bands of copper, so that in time their necks are drawn out like a sausage. And our girls with red paint and lip rouge daubed on thick and no eyebrows to speak of whatever and with heels on their shoes anywhere from three inches to half a foot high stand around and stare in amazement at the Giraffe-Neck Princess. If the w. k. depression keeps pegging along guess we'll gather up some American gels and take 'em out to Burma in a circus.

"HANDKERCHIEF LINEN the Latest for Summer Dresses."—Headline. Dear, dear! We have finally grown accustomed to bathing suits made out of handkerchiefs, but dresses, on the boulevard, and everywhere. Well, may we live till summer.

"IT'S IOWA, IOWA, we'll have you understand, it's the best state in the land." And in Iowa they dragged a judge from the bench and put a rope around his neck and threatened to let him swing there until he was dead if he didn't promise to be false to his duty in the future. "Iowa, Iowa, that's where the tall corn grows."

TO A SILENT MAN.

You, who have a deep conception
Of all values, won't you tell
How you came about this knowledge;
Was it that you listened well?

You, who find the words of others
Of the deepest consequence,
For your patience, and your calm,
Have you realized recompense?

When you were young perhaps you learned
That men who talk must give;
That wise men imitate the sponge,

HAY FEVER AND MOLDS.

PHYSICIANS who specialize in hay fever and that group of disorders are finding that molds and sometimes yeasts and other fungi can take the place of pollens in tormenting man. In a recent meeting where a considerable number of hay fever specialists were discussing their problems nearly everybody present was able to contribute some experiences with molds or some opinions about them.

Molds have considerable resemblance to pollens in size and shape and in their chemical makeup. Since they are found so widely distributed in nature it seemed rather natural that they should come under suspicion. They are found as an added and attractive ingredient in some types of cheeses. They grow in breadstuffs that are kept a little while. Many cereals contain them. They are found on floors, walls, mattresses, and in room dust.

The yeasts are used in bread and in some beverages, as well as for the cure and prevention of pellagra. This group of organisms is so widely distributed that physicians and biologists must be very careful in handling cultures and laboratory specimens lest they be contaminated from or by handling.

Drs. H. S. Bernton and Charles Thom report some cases with all the symptoms of hay fever in which the causative agents were some molds rather than pollens. Dr. Thom, who is the author of a book on molds and fungi, identified the specimens that caused the trouble. It was found that these molds could be recovered from room dust and the dust extracted from mattresses. In some cases the infection of the nose and eyes seemed to be due to contamination from the raw places on the feet of a man with athlete's foot. Ringworm of the toes is due to infection with ringworm mold. In this disorder the mold lives in and around the nails, usually causing but little trouble there, or on the inside of the shoes and, from this location, infects the skin, preferably between the toes.

There is a difference between infection of the skin with a mold and the condition of allergy resulting from sensitization to molds, and causing symptoms similar to those of hay fever. This being so, there is no great danger that a person with athlete's foot will also become asthmatic.

The writers were quite successful in curing this form of asthma by desensitizing the patients. They used for the purpose extracts of the molds responsible for the disorder in a given case.

Avoiding exposure to fungi is of service in effecting a cure. This consists in using a vacuum cleaner, discarding old mattresses and old rugs and, at times, avoiding such foods as contain those under suspicion.

NEEDS TREATMENT.

Mrs. G. H. S. writes: I have hay fever and my husband bronchial asthma, so I guess my 5 year old son, who also has bronchial asthma, inherits it from us. He eats and sleeps well enough unless he gets a cold, which he does easily, and then the asthma begins. I use mustard plasters, which seem to help. Can he ever be cured of asthma? How and what can I do? Would a change of climate help? He gets excited easily at play and if we have company, and he sweats so. Is this bad? What is the cause? Would he ever get consumption from same?

REPLY.

A child 5 years old with an inherited nervous instability and asthma is not in a good position. Cure should be possible, but it will not be very easy. His danger of getting consumption is no greater than the average. His tendency to sweat unduly is not the cause of his trouble. He needs to be trained in pose and tranquillity. He needs good medical treatment from a physician with experience in these troubles. Changing climate should help to cure him.

DIZZY.

A. J. B. writes: Many times when I get up after sitting down I become dizzy. What is the cause of this? Do I need glasses?

REPLY.

There are many causes of dizziness. Among them is eye strain. If exertion causes the symptom, heart disease and anemia are thought of as possible causes.

PIGEONS.

Chicago, April 25. — [Friend of the People.]—I am writing to find out what can be done about pigeons owned by people across the way. These pigeons are destroying my garden and I would like to know if there is any way of stopping this. C. W.

The officers assigned to investigate this complaint report that they interviewed the owner, who states he has about 40 pigeons and only allows them to be out for half an hour each day, as they are breeding pigeons. The owner also stated he is under a doctor's care and uses these pigeons for a diet, as he has just been operated on for a serious illness. He stated he will do everything possible to prevent his pigeons from destroying any property. JAMES P. ALLMAN, Commissioner of Police.

STORE IN RECEIVERSHIP.

Chicago, April 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a furniture store collect a bill after the store has been in receivership for two years? 2. Can the man from that store after two years come to me and say he will sue me if I don't pay him at once? Two years ago I bought furniture off this party for $78 and owed a balance of $41.50. I sent a check which came back as no party there and I found out they went in the hands of receivers. Now after two years this furniture man comes to me and wants to sue me for that amount. 3. Can he do that? R. G. W.

1. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.

2. Yes, if he is the present owner of your account.

3. In the course of receivership or bankruptcy the assets of a concern, including accounts receivable, are usually sold for the benefit of creditors, hence you should not pay to the original creditor without making sure that the account has not been sold in this way. This is subject to the qualification that if your debt was evidenced by a negotiable instrument then you are protected in dealing with a person who appears to be the legal holder of the instrument.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 29, 1893.

CHICAGO.—For the opening ceremonies at the World's Fair on May 1 the official program has already been announced. The order of the military escort to the presidential and ducal parties, which will move at 8:30 a. m., May 1, follows: Platoon of mounted park police; twenty-seven mounted police under the command of Lieut. Healy; Company B, Seventh U. S. cavalry, under command of Capt. E. A. Barnum; Company K, Seventh U. S. cavalry, under command of Capt. L. R. Hare; Chicago Hussars, under command of Maj. E. L. Brand; First and Second regiments, I. N. G.

With its grim old sides lurid in a blaze of pyrotechnics the Liberty Bell made its triumphant entry into Chicago last night. The journey through the city and suburbs was as brilliant as Roman candles, skyrockets, and Greek fire could make it. Crowds gathered at every station and street crossing to get a glimpse of "Old Liberty" and greet it with cheers on its journey to the World's Fair grounds.

Fifteen hundred men in red fezzes and storm coats took possession of a portion of Midway Plaisance yesterday noon and gave their aid to Effendi Robert Levy and the priests of Mohammed in the work of consecrating the mosque of the Turkish village. Up in the minaret—the muezzin mast, as one facetious befezzed man dubbed it—a priest in flowing robes called the faithful to prayer, while crowds of curious people looked on.

The work of preparation in all the buildings and throughout the World's Fair grounds goes ahead with a rush and a roar. Operations have reached that point where every minute counts. Boxes and packages arrive by hundreds of wagon loads and car loads. Every effort is being made to have the exhibits in shape for the flood of visitors on opening day.

APRIL 29, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson and the general army staff have won their fight for the building of the American army on the system of selective conscription. Congress late last night gave its approval by majorities in both houses which were much larger than expected even by the most ardent supporters of the measure. The vote in the house was 397 to 24. That in the senate was 81 to 8. The senate wrote into the bill an amendment designed to permit former President Roosevelt to raise four infantry divisions for service in France. It was adopted 56 to 31. A similar amendment was defeated in the house.

WAR SUMMARY.—London reports British troops have captured Arleux-en-Gohelle and German positions, including part of Oppy, on a front of more than two miles. Paris reports progress on Chemin-des-Dames and the capture of 20,000 Germans since April 19. Berlin says that the British attacks at Monchy broke down, and reports infantry battles on the whole front. Sofia reports heavy losses for the enemy between the Vardar river and Lake Doiran. Repulse of the foe south of Doiran station is also reported. Paris reports British troops defeated the Bulgars at Lake Doiran. Rome reports the destruction of a small Austrian fort on the slopes of Monte Sperone. Italian troops penetrated the foe's line on the Assiago plateau. Petrograd admits a defeat by Turkish troops on the Persian frontier, but says the positions lost were later recaptured.

CHICAGO.—No message Theodore Roosevelt ever brought to Chicago stirred a more enthusiastic audience than that which with wild yells for "Teddy, Teddy, Teddy," last night choked the stockyards pavilion and the streets for blocks around. The message was spoken amid scenes perhaps not approached before in the history of Chicago. "Put the flag on the firing line" and "repay the debt to France" were the gist of his patriotic sermon, which stirred the souls of the great concourse to a frenzy. Col. Roosevelt pleaded that he and his closest by blood be given a chance to be sent under the flag to France.

CONTEMPT.

Chicago, April 24.—At the present time there is a bill pending in the legislature that seeks to change the present antiquated and out of date alimony laws of Illinois. One aspect of the law that needs revision is that portion of it that causes alimony row in the county jail to be filled with husbands. I have never been able to reconcile the justice of a law that continues to keep a husband in jail for failing to pay alimony, although he is penniless. In fact, the situation is so absurd that you can't convince some people that the law is interpreted in this manner. One person said to me, "You don't mean to say that judges order husbands to jail in such cases?"

Other states are as extreme in this matter of interpretation as Illinois, but recently Judge Bonynge in New York broke through the ice of precedent, and, although other justices had refused to release Mr. Politano from alimony row, sensed the injustice of keeping a penniless husband in jail for two years and seven months and ordered him released. The court said: "The correct disposition of this case requires only a candid answer to a single question. Punishment for contempt is a deserved and salutary rebuke to one who has affronted the dignity of a court. If an evildoer invades my courtroom and reviles me or my ancestors or my country with indecent or blasphemous utterances, a penalty of thirty days is the straitjacket of my righteous wrath. Can I truthfully say that this defendant who shouldered arms when the need was great, and now, through poverty or misfortune, omits to pay alimony to a vindictive and relentless wife, has offered my court an affront more than thirty fold greater?"

In Illinois one has only to visit alimony row to see the law taking its unjustified toll. Moral: Interpret the law, don't follow it. JOHN W. CURRAN, Professor of Law, De Paul University.

MISTRESS SECRETARY.

Chicago, April 18.—I understand the women recenly appointed by our President to high official position will be addressed as Madame Secretary, Madame Treasurer, Madame Minister. If such titles are most appropriate, then why not confer upon men, holding similar positions, such titles as Monsieur Secretary, Monsieur Treasurer, Monsieur Minister?

Why ape any foreign nation? Does not just plain "Mr." and "Mrs." indicate membership in a mighty commonwealth, the greatest nation on earth? Or why not resurrect the complimentary title "mistress"—dignified and appropriate and invariably applied to our Pilgrim women? Let us ask our President to confer upon these women the appropriate and dignified title as follows: Mistress Secretary, Mistress Treasurer, Mistress Minister.

ELEANOR GRIDLEY.

FROM AN INDIGNANT CITIZEN.

Chicago, April 24.—The teachers of the city of Chicago who have identified themselves with recent strong arm methods of collecting their past due salaries apparently believe that they have been carrying all the burdens of this abnormal period. Regardless of the foundation of their demands, their manner of petitioning for a redress of grievances has been that of an ignorant mob.

They classify themselves as teachers, yet they have often shown themselves to be idiotic. They insult and intimidate well intentioned public officials. They parade and disrupt the ordinary business of the city. They march on large banks and create scenes of disorder. They invade the city hall and break up conferences intended to benefit them. They have only succeeded in making perpetual pests and nuisances of themselves. While they seek public sympathy they are rightfully receiving condemnation.

These teachers have seen fit to threaten us with a closing of the schools. It is difficult to imagine our children learning much at present anyway. Let us then close the schools. Apparently we cannot afford them at present. As soon as past due salaries are paid let us scale down the future salaries of those teachers that desire to be allowed to continue their duties. Those responsible for recent mutinies among students and those of poor conduct must be dismissed.

GREEN WAVE.

JOBS IN THE BREWERIES.

Chicago, April 17.—For their present prosperity the brewers have only to thank President Roosevelt. The best way of thanking him is to coöperate with him by dividing their work and giving employment to a greater number of men and not to a favored few.

UNEMPLOYED.

AN ANCIENT JEST REVIVED.

Chicago, April 17.—The small town humorist used to think he was funny when he said that the price of a certain article was 8 cents each or three for a quarter.

Today if I buy three cigars they cost me 10 cents. If I buy six I must, however, pay 21 cents. This leads me to the conclusion that the world is making progress after all.

Tonight I am going to try a new one. I am going to ask for three cigars twice and see what happens. C. H. CALLIES.

IN REVERSE.

Chicago, April 10.—May I submit a paragraph for the columns of The Tribune one hundred years from now, which I hope you will not find too imaginative: "The broadcasting of the ball game from Wrigley field was unavoidably cut short yesterday on account of the opening of the New York Philharmonic's symphony concerts under Arturo Toscanini."

But Arturo Toscanini will not be living then, so it does not matter.

OPPOSES STUDENT COMMUNIST CHARGE OF COL. M'CORMICK

Princeton, N. J., April 28.—[Special.]—Few of today's college students have radical or communistic tendencies, Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton university asserted today in reply to an attack on Princeton, Yale, and Harvard made by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in a speech to the Advertising Club of New York on Thursday.

Opposing Col. McCormick's statement that "the pink doctrines which I find taught in the high schools and colleges throughout this country find their origin in the old established institutions of learning along the Atlantic coast," Dean Gauss said that among the 2,200 undergraduates at Princeton he knew only one Red and a few pinks.

The Princeton dean also replied to the accusation of Col. McCormick that the luxuries at the universities were carried to excess by stating that "the same contrasts which exist in the world around us are bound to exist upon a college campus."

SAYS BAY STATE IS NO HAVEN FOR NEGRO FUGITIVES

Gov. Ely Will Continue to Honor Requisitions.

Boston, Mass., April 28.—[Special.]—Discussion over the case of George Crawford, Negro, under indictment in Virginia for the murder of two white women and freed here on a habeas corpus writ by U. S. Judge James A. Lowell, grew more heated tonight when Gov. Joseph B. Ely entered the controversy. Meanwhile Crawford is in jail pending an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

If Negro fugitives from the South, where common practice leaves their racial brethren off juries, look to Massachusetts as a sanctuary, they had better reconsider, the governor warned.

"Any fugitive will be deluding himself to think that Massachusetts will prove a refuge for all those who might be able to fight extradition along the lines followed so far in the Crawford case," he said.

Will Honor Extraditions.

"I honored the requisition from Virginia in this case and I shall continue to honor such extradition papers as are in proper form. The state of Massachusetts will continue to follow the same policy on extradition always heretofore maintained.

"Until the court of last resort changes the law of this jurisdiction as we now understand it, we shall consider such fugitives extraditable. Each case shall be decided on its merits."

Scottsboro Boys Calm.

Birmingham, Ala., April 28.—(AP)—After twenty hours of rebellion, the nine Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case" today capitulated and went peaceably to their cells for a good meal and slept most of the afternoon.

HORNER PONDERS COURT ACTION TO CUT CEMENT COST

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner is considering court action to determine what price the state highway department will pay for cement to be used for this year's road building. Attorney General Kerner has been asked for an opinion on whether condemnation proceedings can be brought against the cement manufacturers to obtain the highway material at a price to be fixed by a judge or jury.

The governor has three times rejected all bids from sixteen companies on the state's 3,300,000 barrel order. The bids were identical and listed an average price of $1.62 a barrel, as compared with an average price of 94 cents a barrel paid by the state last year.

Director of Public Works Kingery, in his request for an opinion from the attorney general, also asked whether the state could take over and operate cement plants. The governor recently proposed to the manufacturers that they lease their factories to the state, but the proposal was turned down because this would destroy their businesses as private industries.

Asserts Social Ideas Crowd Out Education

Van Doren Says Students Are Too Serious.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

University students are worrying over new social theories and their responsibility to society to the detriment of their education, Mark Van Doren, literary critic and poet, declared after a week's study of students at the University of Chicago.

Mr. Van Doren stated his impressions during an interview last night. He will depart tonight for his home in Great Falls, Conn.

Member of a literary family, Mr. Van Doren was chosen as the first of a number of literary men and other celebrities who in a new experiment are visiting the university with the idea of providing intellectual stimulus for the students. It is a project financed by a wealthy woman in the east, an anonymous contributor.

Mr. Van Doren, however, found the students too intellectual for him, he said. In visiting them informally in dormitories and fraternity houses he urged them to be less serious.

"I often found it difficult to understand what they were talking about," he said. "Not that they were much different from students in the east. I have the same difficulty in reading some of the new intellectual magazines. I can't understand them."

"There's a solemnity about these students," he went on. "They know, for one thing, that their parents have sent them at a sacrifice in these times. They feel that society expects a lot of them. I think that it will make them more limited in their education. They aren't learning how to have a good time with their minds.

"They don't want freedom. They want order. That's why you hear them saying they believe in dictators. Actually, they'd hate to have Mussolini or Hitler over them. But they like the idea of a dictator. They say we have no sense of social justice. It may be true; I don't know. But I don't know why we should do anything about it if it is."

The University of Chicago students were "self-conscious," Mr. Van Doren found. Some of it he attributed to the new curriculum there and the resulting feeling that they are on trial.

"When I was in school we used to have talk fests, and talk about everything under the sun," he said. "But the students now have no time for conversation, I understand."

BY JUDITH CASS.

SIMPLICITY was the keynote of the wedding last night of Miss Margaret Dawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, and Beverly Jefferson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jefferson, which took place at the town apartment of the bride's parents at 305 Fullerton parkway. The young couple exchanged their marriage vows in the presence of about one hundred relatives and friends before a screen of smilax in front of the bay windows in the drawing room.

Five and seven branched candelabra furnished the soft light in which the guests heard the Rev. Paul Austin Wolfe of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston read the service. After the ceremony there was a simple buffet supper served and then the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip, destination unannounced. Upon their return they will be at the Evanston hotel while they are finding an apartment in the north shore town which is the Daweses' home. The wedding would have taken place in their handsome Sheridan road residence if it had not been that it was necessary for Mr. Dawes to be nearer A Century of Progress, of which he is president, so he and his family moved to an apartment in town for last winter and this summer.

Miss Betty Brown Maid of Honor.

Miss Betty Brown of Indianapolis, the maid of honor, wore white batiste embroidered in blue flowers. Her sash of "ciel" blue taffeta and her slippers matched in color a bouquet of delphinium. Mrs. Sherman and the bride's younger sister, Miss Helen Dawes, who had come from Vassar for the occasion, wore sky blue organza and carried white sweet peas, snapdragons and stock.

Neither Mrs. Dawes nor Mrs. Jefferson wore flowers, although, as Mrs. Dawes explained, the bridegroom had done his part in sending them lovely corsages. Mrs. Dawes was gowned in gray chiffon and Mrs. Jefferson wore peach taffeta.

Frank W. McCulloch of Evanston acted as best man for Mr. Jefferson, and ushering were the bride's brother, Palmer Dawes; the bridegroom's brothers, William and Carl Jefferson Jr., and George Seward of New York. Mrs. Herbert Maynard of Waterloo, Ia., Mrs. Dawes' sister, was one of the several out of town guests here for the wedding.

Edward F. Swift Will Wed Today.

Out in Pasadena today a wedding of great interest to Chicago society takes place, but it will be a very quiet one indeed, witnessed only by ten or fifteen relatives and close friends of the bride, Mrs. Kathryn Thompson Mather. None of the Chicago relatives of the bridegroom, Edward F. Swift, went west for the marriage because of the long trip and the fact that the family is in mourning, but they will be waiting to give a warm welcome to the bridal couple when they arrive in Chicago around June 1.

The service is to be read at noon today by the Rev. Robert Freeman of the Presbyterian church in Pasadena at the Oak Knoll residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Thompson. Mr. Swift and his bride will sail from San Pedro tonight on the Santa Elena for Havana via the Panama canal. From Havana they will go to Florida for some tarpon fishing before coming to Chicago.

Mr. Swift has taken the John C. Mechem house in Lake Forest for the summer.

Earle-Walton Rites in East.

Today at 1 oclock in handsome St. David's Protestant Episcopal church in Roland Park, Baltimore, Miss Juliet Gover Streett Earle, daughter of Swepson Earle of the eastern city, is to wed Arthur Dorman Welton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Welton of Chicago.

Miss Earle will be attended by her sister, Miss Louise Earle, as maid of honor and Mrs. Edwin Rich as matron of honor. The bridesmaids will include Mrs. Hope H. Barroll II., Mrs. Clinton C. Waters, Miss Norton Carroll, and Miss Elizabeth Earle, the bride's debutante sister.

Two of Mr. Welton's Chicago friends have gone to Baltimore to serve him as ushers. They are Thomas Underwood and James M. Hopkins Jr. Henry H. Reed of New York will be best man and the other ushers will include Fred A. O. Schwarz and Harris C. Parsons, also of New York, Haven Parker and Dr. Miles P. Baker of Boston, and Dodge Crockett of St. Louis.

After the ceremony there is to be a wedding breakfast for the bridal party and the immediate families at the Woman's Club of Roland Park. The bride and bridegroom will leave immediately for New York, where they are to sail for Bermuda. Upon their return they will make their home at 45 Bellevue place, next door to the senior Weltons' home.

Picnic Lunch for Marjorie Horton.

Mr. and Mrs. John I. Shaw have invited a group of ten or more young people to hop in cars and ride out to the country this afternoon for a picnic lunch that they are giving for Miss Marjorie Horton and her fiancé, Winston Elting.

Another party for Miss Horton and Mr. Elting is being given tomorrow.

Being Engaged Does Not Bar All Companions

BY DORIS BLAKE.

About this business of engaged folk going out with young men and young women other than fiancé or fiancée.

We think it a bit Victorian to try to hold girl or boy down to one companion and one only. It hardly fits in with the times and with women working alongside men, meeting them daily in this and that kind of easy social contact. Nor does it fit in with the modern frankness about heart affairs. A girl, say, chooses from a number of young men one who appeals most. Or, she is chosen. There's no secret made of this choosing.

Consequently, if occasion arises when an outside man or woman seeks the companionship of an engaged one, he or she does it knowing that the party is already spoken for. Another thing: Wives are not "monopolized" as they once were. They may have decidedly individual interests in which contact with other men is unavoidable. It will make them no less loyal a wife, necessarily. Perhaps a much more interesting one.

In any event, this business of being an individual, not a piece of property, must be recognized.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

You've heard of the mysterious Mr. Zilch? And of all the cock robins that wage bitter battles with their reflections in window panes? Meet, then, one who is a combination of the two—the mysterious Mr. Walton who starts out to put his own shoe business on the blink!

This mysterious Mr. Walton is, really, NOT Mr. Walton. That's why he's mysterious. He is, in fact, one Mr. John Reeves, who went fishing and caught a couple of children—wild youth at their wildest—and brought them home and harnessed them to good sense and, in so doing, played one of the most fascinating games of "big business" ever caught by a camera.

"The mysterious Miss Tinée . . .!" mutter you, groping to gather meaning from the above.

Even so! And determined to stay that way. For to let in light on this amusing narrative would be to perform a cruel act for which I should be reported to the humane society.

Mr. Arliss hasn't had such an intriguing vehicle since "The Millionaire" which, in some ways, "The "Working Man" resembles. It provides a green and grassy field for his droll genius to play in, and John Reeves is George Arliss as we love to see and applaud him.

He dominates the film and his skill and absolute naturalness cause even farcial and overdone situations—of which the film has several—to seem perfectly logical.

Bette Davis and Theodore Newton—new find, this boy!—do admirably as speedy young generationists. Gordon Westcott is most convincing as rogue manager of a rival shoe company. Hardie Albright's not so good—or, rather, he's TOO good—as Reeves' capable, smug nephew. He piles on the priggishness to an exasperating degree. Other rôles are well handled and director and photographer, knowing well what to do—did it most excellently.

"The Working Man" departs from the present popular trend which would prove that the world will emerge blithely from chaos if only left for management to the younger generation. As John Reeves, Mr. Arliss would prove that there's still a lot of pull left in the old hosses.

See you tomorrow!

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters; Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father—have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior, after losing their fortune in Chicago. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girls' school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past. Flint and his friend, Ned Bremner, hope to build up a great export business. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. When Blake returns to Agate Bay he takes Meryl with him to be his bride. Meryl learns, after the wedding ceremony, through Lucia, a snobbish cousin of the Lawrences, that Blake married her as an escape from Christine, the wife of Julius Greer, with whom he had been in love. Meryl prepares to return home. Theresa, Blake's sister, persuades her to stay for six months, for Blake's sake, whom she still loves, and not to hurt her people. Theresa promises to teach her social service work. Greer at one time saved the Lawrence fortune and Blake feels honor bound not to interfere with the crooked schemes he knows Greer is engaged in. Meryl believes Blake won't fight Greer because of Christine. Greer causes the death of Ola Palka, an old friend and neighbor of the Hendersons. Theresa and Meryl go to New York to attend a charity conference. Blake's separation from Meryl makes him realize he is in love with her, though he thinks Meryl is now interested in his friend, Cy Granville, whom Meryl has met in New York. Meryl returns home with a determination to fight Greer herself, with the aid of Cy. Meryl learns, through one of her charity calls, that Blake's business partner is allied with Greer. Blake and Cy are having a conference when Meryl calls on Blake with her discovery. Blake immediately goes into session with Inglis, then Greer. Meryl is called home by the illness of her aunt.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

MURDER SUSPECTS.

Although his summons had been urgent enough Flinty was inclined to speak with less seriousness of Aunt Letty's condition when he met Meryl at the station. There was no doubt whatever that the old lady felt sure that this was the end, but Flinty was skeptical though he was pleased that Meryl had come down to humor her.

Aunt Letty, indeed, seemed far from dead, or even dying. She was propped up on her pillows and appeared to be taking an unusual amount of interest in life for one who had been convinced only a few hours earlier that all was over.

They sat late into the night, Meryl, her father, Flinty and Margaret, and talked of all that had happened during the winter. Of how Ned Bremner had married Yvonne Benoit, and of how he and Flinty had increased their business so that it had been necessary to build a new storehouse on the point. And of poor Ola Palka and his older brother, Pete, who had been drinking heavily of late and had refused to work and never ceased talking.

"Just crazy talk," Flinty said, "and it's going to get him in wrong one of these days."

Meryl suggested that she might visit him in the morning.

before yesterday. He's been going off for a week at a time—ever since Ola died."

Poor Pete Palka! Meryl could not get him out of her thoughts, even after she had gone to bed in that cozy little room that had been hers for so long, and that might be hers again unless——

In the morning she was out early, roaming about the yard where all the old familiar objects of another life still remained unchanged. Yet not unchanged, for she was looking upon them all now with different eyes. There was, of course, the new freshly-painted storehouse which Flinty and Ned had built during the winter and which stood now gleaming in the morning sun. Blake's money had built that structure, she reflected. Blake's money had secured the new nets, the new launch and the new facilities for the packing and transporting of the lake's yield.

She went out and sat on the flat rock overlooking the water. It was here she and Blake had breakfasted together one morning in October. Her heart felt suddenly empty. Where now were the things she had dreamed of on that morning.

She went back to the house and spent most of the day reading to Aunt Letty, or playing the piano with the door open to the old lady's room. Once she slipped away to the Benoits' and telephoned the Lawrence home. Theresa spoke to her reassuringly. Blake had come in very late and had gone to his room without a word to any one. He was gone again in the morning and they had not heard from him since. There was nothing to worry about, however. Meryl promised to call again on the following day and went back to Aunt Letty.

It was late that night when one of the Benoit boys came over and told Meryl she was wanted on the telephone. She threw a wrap about her and hurried away. A mist had drifted in from the lake and had shrouded the shore.

She reached Theresa at once.

"I'm sending Chet out to bring you into town. Can you get away?"

The note of alarm in her voice was unmistakable.

"What has happened?" Meryl asked.

"I can't talk to you over the telephone, dear," Theresa replied. "Chet will tell you everything."

"But I must know—I can't—"

"Can you come in?"

"Yes, yes, of course. Has anything happened to Blake, tell me."

"Blake is fine. It's Julius Greer. He's dead!"

"Tess!"

"Don't ask any more, dear. Just get ready. I'll have Chet on the way in ten minutes."

Meryl went back to the house and called Flinty aside.

"I've got to go back to the city," she told him.

"What's up?"

"You mean—tonight?"

Flinty's low whistle was his only reply.

They kept the news from Aunt Letty. It would be enough to tell her in the morning that Meryl would be away for the day. When they had made her comfortable and had seen her fall asleep at last, they sat around in the living room and waited for the sound of Chester Hyde's car. Now and then Andrew Henderson went softly to the door and looked out into the fog that covered the lake and the shore.

"It's been pretty thick going for the last fifty miles or so—especially along the lake," he observed.

They sat in silence, waiting—the drone of the fog horn coming from the lighthouse on Split Rock—an eerie ghost call across water and air that had become indistinguishable as a legion of ghosts.

Presently the silence was broken by the distant hum of a motor and they got immediately to their feet. Outside they saw the two eyes emerge from the nebula of mist and the car lurched to a stop beside the house.

"Where'd you come from, Pete?" Flinty asked.

"I come back," Pete grunted.

"I almost ran him down in the fog a couple of miles back," Chet explained. "Somebody had dropped him there and he was walking the rest of the way. Says he lives somewhere near here."

"Of course," Andrew Henderson said. "He's a neighbor of ours. Come on in, Mr. Hyde. Come along, Pete."

They went together into the house, softly, so as not to disturb Aunt Letty and drew up about the table, Pete seating himself in one corner where the shadows were deepest.

Chester Hyde plunged at once into the story he had to tell them. Christine had come back from Chicago on the morning after Meryl's departure. Julius had waited for her at home. He was in a sullen humor. No one knew exactly what had passed between them but there had been a scene and Christine had announced that she was leaving him. Julius had left the house and Christine had summoned Blake. Chet had heard her speak to Blake over the telephone. She wanted Blake's lawyer to take charge of her affairs. She was going away on the following day and would not be back. She had asked Blake to come to see her any time after dinner.

Julius had left and would not return until she was out of the house. Blake had arrived at the Greer home a little after eight and had gone to the library with Christine. Chet had taken Lucia to the theater in order to be out of the way. When they returned a little before eleven they found an officer at the front door who questioned them before they were allowed to enter the house. Before the entrance, only a few feet from the doorstep, lay a still shape under a white sheet. An officer stood guard beside it.

Within the house they found three more police officers and a couple of detectives—and with them Blake and Christine. Chet lowered his voice and grew hesitant.

"Naturally, they're holding Blake and Christine—until they have had a chance to investigate."

"You mean—Blake is under suspicion?" Meryl asked in alarm.

"I'm sorry, my dear," Chet said gently, "but——"

"I must go—at once," she interrupted.

"I must go to him," she repeated.

Garbo Arrives Today; Expect Spirited Scene

Rumor Pay of $350,000 for Two Films.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 28.—[Special.]—A spirited scene between actress and questioners is anticipated tomorrow when Greta Garbo is expected to arrive, disguised in dark spectacles and under an assumed name, on the Swedish steamer Annie Johnson at San Diego. Greta is to draw $350,000 from two MGM films she is coming back to make, according to report, and will start the first, "Christina of Sweden," about May 15.

Mary Carle, Ann Harding's stand-in girl for several years, nearly lost her job when she showed up at Radio studio yesterday with her hair bobbed. Miss Harding interceded for her and now the studio is having a wig made for Miss Carle so that she can continue to look like the actress.

"Dinner at Eight," which was finished this week by MGM and already has been previewed publicly in Berkeley, Cal., may not be released until September or later, due to the film company's agreement with holders of the rights that it would not put out the film version of the story until after the various stage companies touring in "Dinner at Eight" had all completed their runs.

Helen Hayes rearranged her plans to do a New York stage play and is announced as due here next Tuesday to resume her screen work. More money in Hollywood than on Broadway.

Maureen O'Sullivan had a pair of buckskin shorts made for the next "Tarzan" picture, in which she again plays opposite Johnny Weissmuller, and she likes them so well she's been using them for beach and bicycle wear.

Marquis Henri Falaise; his friend, Gaston Glass, French actor-director; William Howard Green, film writer, and others are booked to sail from San Pedro for Surabaya, Dutch East Indies, on May 2 to take some scenic motion pictures for an unannounced purpose as well as spend a tropical vacation. Constance Bennett, the marquis' spouse, will not go along.

Olaf Hytten, who is English despite his name, has been picked to play Sir Joshua Reynolds in "Berkeley Square," being filmed by Leslie Howard, Heather Angel, and others at Fox. Hytten was the only man in Hollywood who seemed to have a close natural resemblance to portraits of Sir Joshua.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented today by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 for Miss Meade's mar-Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Bread questions head the list this morning as the Saturday question clinic opens for business. But don't let that disturb the "something else" you were perhaps about to ask. We'll tackle anything. Then, if we don't have on hand your desired recipe or the answer to your special question, we'll vastly enjoy running it down for you.

First from Mrs. M. H., who writes: "Lately my cakes and muffins have had a gummy feel—have been sticking to the gums and the roof of the mouth. Can you tell me what could be wrong?"

That "gumminess," Mrs. H., is not likely to have been caused by the same mistake in making the muffins and in whacking up the cake. So first for sticky muffins. Almost always this tackiness will result from too long mixing of the muffin batter, especially if a good deal of the mixing comes after the baking powder has been added. This is because we're beating out gas from the powder and it is this gas which is needed to give us light, tender muffins. Also, at the same time, we are stretching and toughening the gluten—the strong part of the flour. Overbeating means that our muffins may be sticky—even soggy—and will likely have small volume, flat, smooth tops and tunnels. The ideal way to make muffins is to mix all the ingredients together, stirring barely enough to blend them. Thirty strokes of the spoon, or even less, should be used. This leaves a lumpy dough, which is as it should be. It makes a muffin with a rough, glossy top, and a delicious tender inside with no hint of gumminess.

Then, one other thing. A doughy muffin will also give you that "gummy feel." Doughiness comes from underbaking. Either the muffins came out of the oven too soon or the temperature was too high and the tops baked over before the inner parts could rise and bake. The muffin looked done, so we took it out, broke it—and found it doughy. If your oven does not boast a thermometer, for safety's sake get a small portable oven thermometer. About 410 degrees F. is the right heat for the baking of muffins.

Cakes also may get their gumminess from underbaking. Or it may come from letting the batter stand too long before baking, from too little leavening, or even from damp flour. If you ever suspect that your flour may be the trouble with some of your baking try this: Heat the oven, then open the door and sift the flour back and forth between pans several times in front of the oven door.

Next a query from S. W. M.: "What makes yeast coffee cake coarse grained?"

It's a bit hard to tell just what might have made yours coarse grained, Mrs. M. It depends so much on the method you used. But here are some general factors that will cause coarseness in yeast breads: Too long periods of rising at too high temperatures will do it. Three risings with two punchings are usually enough for most bread flour products. The dough should rise until doubled in bulk. It should spring back readily when touched with a finger. Then, too little salt will give the yeast too much of a growth and the bread will be coarse and husky. Third, while bread needs a thorough beating or kneading at the beginning, the treatment we give it in punching it down after it has risen should be gentle and quickly over or a coarse bread will result.

Miss Ruth Hunter, daughter of Mrs. Robert H. Hunter, and Harding Wilbur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Wilbur, who are to be married next Saturday at the Fortnightly club, will be very occupied from this week-end until their wedding with parties. Miss Jeanne Beeson is having a luncheon and bridge today at the Georgian hotel in Evanston. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. William Berryman of Pittsburgh (Margaret Graffel of Chicago), and Mr. and Mrs. Robert David Mathias are giving a dinner dance at the South Shore Country club.

Tomorrow evening Mr. and Mrs. George Davie Jr. are having a Dutch supper for about twenty in their Evanston apartment. Monday afternoon Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson is having a tea for her niece at the Wilsons' south side residence, and Tuesday Mrs. Louis J. Wilbur and two daughters, Mrs. William Penn Budd and Mrs. Justin Webster, are giving a luncheon at the South Shore Country club.

The bridal dinner will be given Thursday night at the Fortnightly club after the wedding rehearsal, and the guests will go downtown to dance after dinner.

Madonna Center Party Tonight.

An old-fashioned bar and a beefsteak dinner are two important reasons why the Madonna Center dinner-dance this evening in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman will "go down in history" as one of the gayest and most successful parties of this spring season. In talking of the dance yesterday Mrs. Frank M. Gordon explained that Madonna Center parties are always delightful, but beer and beefsteak seem to be sufficient incentive this year for guests answering the call of the committee in bigger numbers than ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour are to have one of the large parties and Mr. and Mrs. David F. Bremner [Mrs. Bremner is president of the Madonna Center board] another. Others who will entertain are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cutten, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Fortune, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Kellogg, Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lawlor, Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., Mrs. George F. McLaughlin, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Mullaney.

Mrs. Hurley is one of those who have worked the hardest for the success of the party. Others are Miss Marie Plamondon, Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Miss Mary Agnes Amberg, and Miss Betty Kellogg, chairman of the junior committee.

A second dinner dance of equal interest this evening is the much heralded party at which the Southern Woman's Educational alliance will christen the Old Heidelberg inn down on the grounds of A Century of Progress. Yesterday Mrs. Hubert Burnham asked us to assure all of the 1,100 ticket holders that they will receive the welcome hand tonight.

The 500 or 600 persons who have been turned down because of lack of space in the quaint German inn were never sold tickets, so there is nothing to the report that "700 tickets had to be canceled." In fact, 50 lucky persons among those previously turned down will be able to get reservations this morning owing to illnesses, absence from town and one thing and another.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs are having dinner at home before the party and then moving on to Old Heidelberg. Others who will take both their dinner and dancing at the inn are Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell, Miss Florence Otis, Miss Barbara Senn, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, Mr. and Mrs. Sewell L. Avery, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Loring Coleman, Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Miss Helen Dawes, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward Dodd.

Final Parties of Polo Meet.

The official closing parties for the polo games which take place tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory are sure to be among the pleasantest yet given. Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Haffner are having twenty guests for dinner before the games, among them Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker, Gen. and Mrs. Thomas S. Hammond, Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, Maj. George Mathews Jr., Maj. and Mrs. Richard Hunter, Rockefeller Prentice, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bering. The Officers' club of the 124th has invited 250 polo enthusiasts for a reception and dance which they are giving after the games for the visiting polo players.

At 3 p. m. this afternoon the hounds will leave the Longmeadow kennels for the first informal meet of the Longmeadow hunt of Winnetka. The new master of the hunt, Clark J. Lawrence, and Mrs. Lawrence will entertain the members of the field at tea at their home in Hubbard Woods immediately after the run.

Paint Pictures for Charity Sale.

The first of the pictures to be exhibited on May 25 in the Amateur Art show that the Lower North Community council will hold in connection with a benefit buffet dinner dance at the Blue Ribbon casino at A Century of Progress were painted last night at two dinner parties given by members of the committee. Out in Lake Forest the Adlai E. Stevensons had the Stephen Y. Hords, the junior William R. Odells and the Shreve Badgers for dinner and then each one did a water color of his or her interpretation of the title "Blind Love." Mrs. Badger and Mrs. Odell are not professionals, but neither are they amateurs, so they had to do their pictures with their left hands.

In town at the Division street apartment of the junior Henry H. Porters the Ogden Kettings and the young Arthur Farwells and the host and hostess each painted a picture, and tonight the Roger Q. Whites are going to ask their dinner guests to make line drawings—something on the order of Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins' much talked of Diagramatics. There are to be some very distinguished judges at the art exhibit who will choose the prize winner for each group and then a professional auctioneer will dispose of the prize winners to the highest bidders.

Animal Shelter to Open Today.

The North Side Animal Shelter is having a housewarming in its newly erected building at 5450 North Damen avenue this afternoon, and Mrs. Dorothy Eagles, founder and president, and members of the board will be on hand to escort visitors through the shelter and tell them about the work being carried on there.

The philanthropic and public welfare committees of the junior auxiliary of the Winnetka Woman's club will hold a dog show at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Winnetka Community house.

Harlan Ware's "Return to Folly" is to be presented in the city at Cohan's Grand on the afternoon and evening of Friday, May 5.

Under the auspices of the Radcliffe Alumnae of Winnetka, Miss Janet Fairbank is singing at 8:30 tonight at the residence of Mrs. Harry J. Dunbaugh, 993 Green Bay road, Hubbard Woods.

Graham Aldis will preside at the luncheon of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations today at the Palmer house. Stephen Duggan, director of the Institute for International Education in New York, will speak on "American Policy in Latin America."

New interest in the tea the woman's college board of A Century of Progress is to have this afternoon in the trustee's room of the Administration building was aroused yesterday with the announcement that Dr. Allen D. Albert is to speak.

The May-Day cabaret-supper party of the South Shore Country club is being held tonight in the ballroom of the club.

Navy Blue Frock and Plaited Cape Express Quiet Distinction of Lelong

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS, [Special.]—The woman who wants to look smart in a quiet and elegant way this season is choosing from the variegated styles, one of the simple, dark, satin ensembles that the best of the French couture are featuring. They are so practical for the city lodger that they are having a success in distinguished circles.

The simple satin frock and a matching wrap that may be a cape or a jacket will out-last several outfits in printed materials or in cotton, and stay smart all the time.

The wrap, shown in the background is a short cape with a little yoke along the top of the shoulders and a soft satin tie in place of a collar, tied in a bow in front. The cape is plaited on to the shoulder yoke at the sides only, and the plaits are carefully pressed so they do not flare.

The dark blue satin frock has a straight bodice that closes in a V in front, with two rhinestone buttons, and has a little satin fan tucked in at the left side. Satin fans trim the three-quarter length sleeves, being set above the band cuffs. The skirt is cut bias and is straight, but not narrow.

Synthetic Gems Add Brightness to Fashions for Spring Time

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Did you know that you can pick up pearls, garnets, sapphires, and rubies for a mere song nowadays? Well, not real ones, but excellent synthetic gems that give just about as much pleasure and lots less worry. (You don't have to bother to insure 'em.) And if you happen to lose a ring or bracelet your heart doesn't do a rapid tap dance against your ribs, for there are more where that came from, and at a price that's as easy on the pocketbook as the jewel is on the eye.

Take, for instance, the perennially fresh white blossoms of all the springs—lustrous, gleaming, creamy pearls. It's a rare woman, indeed, who does not like and never wears these little balls of beauty. And you don't have to hop over to Paris to get the best imitations any more. They're to be had in great variety in our own shops. The three strand necklaces are still being worn, as are chokers and the longer, graduated strings.

Quite new and most artistic are sets made up of earrings, necklaces, and bracelets of dull gold links outlined in small imitation pearls. Charming to wear with pastel lace dinner gowns or with the new satins.

Pearls strung on a flexible wire and wound round and round the wrist are highly flattering and make pretty accompaniments to the single strand necklace. And earrings of the button variety are just as popular now as they were ten years ago and we'll probably be buying them another ten years from now, too. Any gal can wear 'em, that's why.

The newest bracelets fall into two groups: bangles, little ones worn by the half dozen or gross, and large, brightly colored circlets that come singly or in pairs. The former may be of gold, silver, brilliants or of imitation sapphires, rubies, and emeralds. Six or seven are fastened together with a decorative jeweled clasp and are just the touch that the new spring suit is needing. They're as feminine as a powder puff.

For horsey and doggy folk are the flexible wrist ornaments decorated with a crystal medallion, the base of which is the painted miniature of a Scottie's head or a horse's profile. Also a bracelet of sterling silver that closely follows a bridle bit, fastening with a hook clasp in back and displaying a large buckle in front. Stickpins there are a-plenty for wear with riding togs also.

For ultra-fastidious women who simply won't wear anything that is not genuine there are fascinating semi precious stones set in 14 karat gold rings or strung on knotted cords. Black onyx, green and Blue agate, and carnelian are used in some of the rings, and long necklaces of rose quartz, amber, white coral, and a chalk white bead are stunning accessories with spring and summer gowns. Even strings of jade are within the reach of the average buyer today. Lapis lazuli, blue as Italian skies, strung with crystal is another annual favorite.

Especially smart and intended as the finishing touches for heathery tweed costumes are wooden clips, bracelets, and long, daggerlike pins. Some of the articles are touched with scarlet, blue, or white, or a bit of chromium; others are simply given a glossy natural finish showing the grain of the wood.

Clips are prettier than ever this season. Have you seen the lovely crystal and black ones, little bouquets of berries and leaves, that are so effective on a black gown? And the white and gold ones? The rhinestone designs are not so new, but they're ever so attractive, especially when the clip is fairly small. The larger ones are too apparently imitation and a bit garish.

Lovely woman, they say, needs no adornment, but it is a very Venuslike creature, indeed, who can pass by the spring jewelry counters with her nose in the air. Selah!

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933, By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

CLASS DAY.

"While I was at the postoffice assisting the federal authorities in their investigation of the theft of $7,500 in currency from the registered mails, Mrs. Thorndyke called to see the chief auto dispatcher." Prof. Fordney's students had been following the theft case closely.

"Mrs. Thorndyke," he continued, "was very indignant over an accident to her new car. One of the United States mail trucks had smashed the left rear fender and badly dented the body while passing her on Marsten street that afternoon.

"She kept up a steady stream of chatter——" 'She could easily identify the driver—she knew exactly what he looked like—what's more, here was his license number,' thrusting a card on which was written A 31-467 ILL. '33 under the dispatcher's nose. 'Perhaps the driver wasn't aware of the damage he had done—but she seriously doubted that and she intended the United States government to pay for it—if they didn't—well, she most certainly would have the matter in the hands of her husband's attorney!'

"My friend, Attorney Samuel Rautbord, told me that night that Mrs. Thorndyke had placed the action for damages in his hands, but as soon as she had recounted her experience he told her she didn't have a case!"

"A clever hypothetical case, professor," interrupted Barry. "I'll bet most lawyers would have been fooled. Not me—I've got it!"

Pre-Wave Care of Hair Repays Time Involved

Start Three Weeks Before Permanent.

"West Point Exercises," an illustrated booklet outlining the series of exercises recently presented in these columns through the courtesy of the United States Military academy, may be obtained by sending five cents in coin or stamps to Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Or call at The Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn Street.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You'll be getting a permanent one of these days, if you haven't done so already. Permanents are not a luxury any more. They're as necessary as a makeup kit. And if you don't believe a makeup kit is necessary, try going without makeup once!

Is your hair in condition for a grand permanent? Of course, hair can be waved without conditioning it—but if you want to come forth a perfect masterpiece, do go in for reconditioning of hair that needs attention. Your wave money will then be well spent.

The beauty shops are going in strong for this hair reconditioning preparatory to permanent wave giving. If their object were only to increase their business it would still be a humane movement on their part. They know better than anyone else how much more beautifully a permanent takes with hair in good condition. And, naturally, they want every wave to be an ad for their particular shop.

You can do a lot of this reconditioning yourself. Suppose you say: "I will have a permanent three weeks from today. In the meantime I'm going to do something about this hair of mine. Every night it is going to 'get it' from the hair brush. I'll oil it and salve it and make it something worth looking at."

Then, go ahead and do what you promised. Brush the hair. It's the first step in reconditioning treatment. Part the hair at intervals of an inch or so, so that the strands being brushed are easily penetrated by the bristles, also so that the scalp gets brushing. Instead of brushing the old fashioned way, be modern. Brush the hair upward, up from scalp!

If the hair and scalp are dry, before you begin brushing, grease with warm oil—not too much unless you intend to shampoo the hair in the morning—but enough so that you can feel the hair soften as you brush. If your hair is in a very bad way—dry, much dandruff, stringy—steam it with hot towels, and then brush it dry. This will give you a good excuse for brushing more than you ordinarily would.

Don't leave the hair wet on your head at any time. If the brushing doesn't completely dry it, rub it dry with a coarse towel. This will improve the scalp condition, too.

Tinning Fans Side in Ninth.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Red Lucas and the Cincinnati Reds, who licked Lon Warneke and the Cubs no longer ago than last Sunday, did it again yesterday in the Cubs' homecoming at Wrigley field, this time by a score of 6 to 1. The defeat, the third the Reds have hung on the Chicagoans this week, dropped the champs back into the National league cellar, in a tie with Boston.

The Reds made all their runs in their eighth inning and forced Lon, not quite so pompous as he had been earlier in the season, to limp from the arena, shorn of all the great stuff which made him the league's leading pitcher last year.

It was a great pitcher's duel until Warneke lost his skill. Neither side made any progress until the Cubs broke through with their run in the fifth. In this inning the Cubs were halted in an incipient riot by a miracle fielding play perpetrated by Leo Durocher. After their hopes had been thus thwarted the Cubs never seemed the same, though hopes for a time ran high that Warneke would prolong his classy performance long enough to emerge a 1 to 0 victor.

Tinning Ends Uprising.

Then came proud Lonnie's foldup in the eighth, with consequent deep sorrow to many of the 27,000 ladies' day friends. After Warneke's collapse Roy Henshaw went in, but couldn't get the side out. His failure in part was due to Bill Herman's second error of the day. Bud Tinning effected the third out in the tragic eighth and brought a measure of solace to the hearts of the Cubs by striking out Moore, Roettger, and Rice in the ninth.

Unpleasant task though it be, there seems no need to delay any longer the recitation of that terrible eighth. So here goes: Jim Bottomley, who knocked a homer to accord the Cubs a licking last Tuesday, started the Red romp by leading off the eighth with a double to right. He immediately tied the score when Ernesto Lombardi made his third hit of the year, a fierce line single to left. Johnny Moore forced Lombardi for the first out. Roettger bounced to Koenig, who made the old mistake of trying to start a double play without being in possession of the ball. This fumble obviously completed the softening up of Warneke. Harry Rice, whose triple beat Lonnie Sunday, lined a single into right, scoring Moore.

Warneke Walks Out.

When Lon walked the weak hitting Durocher to fill the bases it was obvious that the startled and depressed Mr. Warneke was through for the day. Manager Grimm called in Rookie Roy Henshaw, and Lon showed his good sportsmanship by giving his successor several hearty slaps on the back.

But Lon's good wishes didn't do the mite ex-Maroon much good. He promptly walked Lucas, forcing in Roettger.

Grantham rolled a double play ball toward Bill Herman, but Bill made the same mistake that Koenig had made earlier in the inning. He tried to start the double play before he got hold of the ball, and as a result drew his second error of the day. The error permitted Rice to score and the bases remained loaded.

Morrissey fouled to Hartnett, but Bottomley delivered his second hit of the inning, a single to right, scoring Durocher and Lucas. Tinning came in and made Lombardi tap to Bill Herman.

Lucas' Third Victory.

Though the Cubs made nine hits, to greatly exceed their daily quota, they stayed well under their conventional limit of three runs per game. Three of the nine hits came in the fifth, to produce the Cubs' lone marker, and two came in the ninth, when Lucas was willing to kid the lads along a bit, his third victory of the year being safely in the bag.

The aforesaid run on the aforesaid three hits came about thuswise: Grimm led off with a single to right and reached second on Koenig's sacrifice. Hartnett then drove a fine single to center, scoring Grimm. Warneke got his second single to put Hartnett on second, but Lombardi threw out Demaree while the runners advanced. Bill Herman then shot what seemed a certain hit to left, but Durocher dashed far back into the grass, grabbed the ball, and with superb artistry heaved the ball to Bottomley for the third out.

In making nine hits yesterday the Cubs improved their batting average for the last half dozen games, which include five losses. In the six games the team has batted .201.

GRIMES PITCHES TODAY

Manager Charles Grimm, who previously had announced that Charley Root would pitch for the Cubs today, has switched to Burleigh Grimes for the final with the Cincinnati Reds in order to have Root and Pat Malone on deck for the double header with the Cardinals tomorrow.

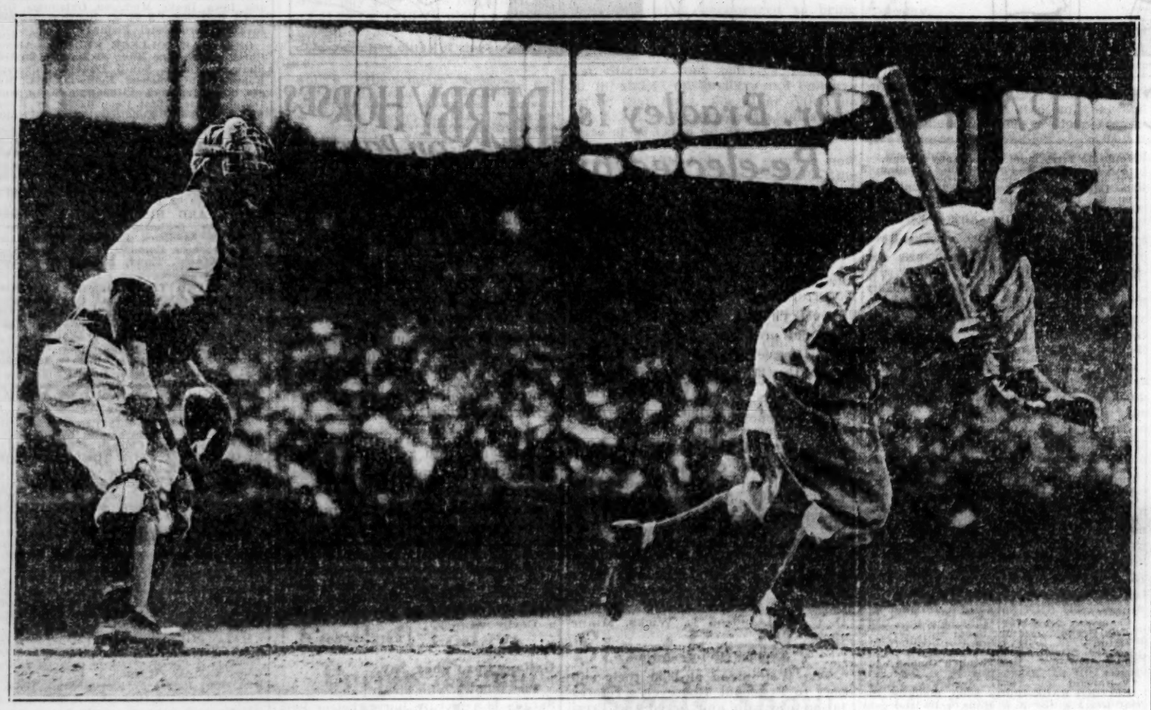
NO USE AND JIM KNOWS IT



Sunny Jim Bottomley knew when the ball left his bat in the first inning of yesterday's game at Wrigley field that it was useless to strain on the way to first. The drive was right into Charley Grimm's hands, and the Cubs' manager and first baseman just stepped over and touched first. The Reds eventually won the game, 6 to 1.

LADYSMAN CUT TO 3½-1 IN DERBY FUTURE BOOK

New York, April 28.—(AP)—Future book odds on W. R. Coe's Ladysman, favorite for the Kentucky Derby, have been cut to 3½ to 1 by Tom Shaw, New York betting commissioner.

The withdrawal of James J. Johnson's Repaid and the Adolph Pons filly, Swivel, were the principal reasons for the shortening of odds on Ladysman's chances in the Churchill Downs classic, which will be run May 6.

Ranked behind the Coe horse in the revised quotations, announced by Shaw tonight, were Charley O., owned by the R. M. Eastman estate; Mrs. W. Crump's Head Play, and F. A. Griffith's Sarada, all at 10 to 1.

Keller Wins Hurdles Again in Penn Relay Carnival

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28.—They ran off 31 events of the old annual Penn relay carnival and leg show at Franklin field this afternoon. Much pleasure was had by all present, including those enviable beings who are young enough to run quarter miles, half miles, and miles on foot and not die at it. A rather general, helter-skelter statement of the proceedings as they took place is as follows:

The races were run with and against a funneling wind, which dipped down over the towering brick structure and swept around the lot, kicking up whirlpools of gritty dust and cinders, doing the athletes no good in their work.

The little kids who swarmed all over the yard enjoying their annual big day of heroics made up most of the first afternoon's program and it was well for the show that there were plenty of them because the high spirited college boys were not out in sufficient numbers to keep a continuous performance going very long.

Manhattan Wins Medley.

There were only 10,000 or so people dotted about the plant in little bunches and they had more jobs than the numbers were equal to imitating a crowd in a place built to accommodate 80,000. They kept up a babble of collegiate chatter between the heats and put on the crescendo every now and again as the boys in the heats came by chewing on their hearts in desperate closing drives to the little white string.

Manhattan college won the college distance medley relay race in which the first men run a quarter mile, the next batch a half, the third group three-quarters, and the last runners a full mile of ground.

The runners were McGeough, J. M. Burns, J. Ryan, and F. H. Crowley. New York university was second and Cornell, third. The time was 10:14, six seconds under the old record established in 1914 by a Yale team whose miler was Johnny Overton. John Overton was killed in the war, and among those who watched his old record fall this afternoon was Bill Bingham, the Harvard graduate manager, who ran a historic race against him in their undergraduate days. Bingham lost.

King Runs for Cadets.

Dick King, the great West Point end, who disappeared from view with a broken ankle in the Harvard game last fall and did not bob up again until just in time to earn his letter in the December game against the Navy, ran the quarter mile for the Army in the distance medley and bobbed along very nicely on his reconstructed trotter.

Bill Carr, the great Penn quarter miler and hero of some very hurried footwork in the Los Angeles Olympics last summer, was present somewhere around the premises, but not visible and, of course, not in competition, having been badly smashed up in an automobile accident a few weeks ago. He was the subject of many sentimental inquiries among the spectators and could have drawn a loud round of cheers if he had presented himself on the infield in his wheel chair. But Carr was reported to be tucked away in some corner of the gym, glaring at the spectacle through a window.

Keller Takes Hurdle.

J. A. Keller of Ohio State, for the third time in succession, won the 120 high hurdles, at least ten yards in front of C. O. Pessoni of Manhattan. E. G. Bath of Michigan State, was third, but that is immaterial as there was nobody close enough to Keller to give him a shove and he had to draw on his own ambition to leg himself over those high gates in 14:3.10 seconds, just one tenth slower than the world record.

The 3,000 meter steeplechase was the picture race of the afternoon, with the boys bobbling around and around the park, heavy legged from hopping over the gates and begrimed with the black dust of the track, which caked on their shanks wet from splashing in the puddle at the water jump. Pete Walsh of Manhattan did a dive for himself in the water hazard and swam out to continue the weary trudge, looking like a fugitive leading the hounds through an Alabama swamp.

HERE'S A RECORD: NONE IS BROKEN IN DRAKE TRIALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., April 28.—Despite perfect weather, none of the army of track and field athletes, individually or as members of relay teams, was able to break any of the records here today in the preliminaries of the 24th renewal of the Drake games. This, in itself, constituted the outstanding record of all time and furnished positive proof of the superiority of the records rather than inferiority of the competitors.

This impotence probably will not continue tomorrow when the championships are decided. Interest tonights centers on Ralph Metcalfe, the Negro sprinter from Marquette university, who is the 1932 intercollegiate champion and who has just finished an indoor campaign during which he tied or broke all of the world's marks for the shorter distances.

Last year Metcalfe tied the Drake 100 yard dash record, which had belonged to Roland Locke, former Nebraska runner, when he was timed in the finals in 9.5:10 seconds. Today Metcalfe, in his first outdoor competition, led his qualifying heat home in 9.9 seconds. The best time in the trials, however, was made by Hall of Kansas, who covered the century in 9.8 seconds.

Cunningham Drops Baton.

The finals of the university medley relay, held this afternoon, were a disappointment to those in the crowd of 8,000 who had expected to see a duel between Glen Cunningham of Kansas and Dean Woolsey of Illinois in the anchor mile. Illinois scratched its team and Cunningham, off sixth and last in the field, dropped his baton. Recovering, he ran only a half lap, then quit the race.

Indiana's team of Harpold, half mile; Fuqua, quarter mile; Hornboestel, three quarters of a mile, and Watson, mile, won the race in 10 minutes 20.4:10 seconds, more than a second slower than the record for this event, which the Hoosiers established last year. Purdue maintained a slight lead over Indiana for the half and quarter mile, but Hornboestel, the Big Ten half mile champion, came in first at the end of the three-quarters, with Sears of Purdue second and Funk of Nebraska third. Watson then had no difficulty heading the runners to the tape while Nebraska pulled up to second. Kansas State nosed out Purdue for third place.

Dees Leads in Shot.

Elwood Dees, representing Kansas university, one time interscholastic shot put champion, led the qualifiers in the shot put today. Dees' best mark was 48 feet 1 inch, two feet behind the Drake record. Dave Cook and Chin Kamm of Illinois qualified for the finals, as did Pacetti of Wisconsin and Orson of Chicago.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—The Derby meeting, high spot of the racing season in Kentucky, will get under way at Churchill Downs here a few minutes after 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

A typical Kentucky spring day sun beat down on several hundred railbirds today while final arrangements were being made for an excellent opening program. The same sort of delightful weather has been promised for tomorrow.

Among the railbirds gathered at the spacious racing grounds, where the first of these Derby meetings was held in 1875, there was a continuous buzz about the 59th Derby, now only a week away. And when the names of 13 western Derby candidates appeared in the entries for tomorrow the Derby talk spread over all of Louisville and rolled on out into the rural sections of the blue grass country.

Forget World Affairs.

Yes, suh, the folks in old Kentucky know that Derby day is drawing near and it will take something more than inflation, war debts and visits of foreign statesmen to attract more than passing interest among the hoss-wise blue grass natives.

The Clark handicap, as old as the Derby and worth $5,000, will be the featured number tomorrow. Three of the overnight field of 14 are Derby candidates. They are Interpreter, Fair Rochester, and Knockaway, a colt imported from Ireland by W. E. Smith, president of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky. Knockaway has given signs in his early preparations of being a stayer of note.

Neither of the 3 year olds was able to gather much of a following in the overnight speculation, however. It was expected that Osculator, which arrived from the east yesterday, will go to the post as the favorite. The older horses, Playdale from Thomas D. Taggart's French Lick Springs stable, and Dr. Freeland, owned by Mrs. A. M. Creech, also came in for considerable backing. The Clark handicap is at a mile and a sixteenth.

The real pre-Derby scramble tomorrow will come in a dash at six furlongs for which ten Derby eligibles will parade postward. They are Red Whisk, Shepherd Boy, Jessie Dear, Pot au Brooms, Friend Charley, Flying Cadet, Spicson, Strideaway, Technique, and Isaiah. Also in the tussle are 3 year olds that are not eligible for the Derby—Col. Hatfield, the Louisiana Derby winner, and Bold Lover.

Col. Hatfield may rule the favorite. At New Orleans he hung up one victory after another, but he may find these hardy western colts, which did not race much during the winter, more difficult to conquer. Shepherd Boy and Flying Cadet, which will run as an entry, were attracting much attention tonight.

Bradley Horses Eased Up.

When Col. Edward R. Bradley arrived at Churchill Downs early this morning, it was expected that some serious training moves among his six Derby eligibles were on the program. Nothing like this happened, however. Boilermaker and Brokers Tip were sent only three furlongs in 37 seconds. Beefsteak went the same distance in :35 2-5, and Bobsled was worked a half mile in 49 seconds. It was reported that all the Bradley candidates will be tested over a distance tomorrow.

CONNALLY PUTS JINX ON DYKES, SIMMONS, HAAS

Cleveland Hammers Gaston, Murray.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., April 28.—A well aged gentleman by the name of Sergeant George Connally, a charter member of the White Sox alumni association, stepped in today to ruin the season's début of his former mates in these parts. The Sergeant made the Chicagoans wonder just what bats are for and, while so doing, pitched the Indians into an easy 5 to 1 triumph. It also was Cleveland's first victory in four starts against the Sox this year.

Connally, who regards life as an endless round of pleasure except when the Sox are in the neighborhood, did just what Milt Gaston couldn't do to the Cleveland batters. The tall right hander was good enough, as five hits during his six inning régime attest. But it so happened that four of these were bunched in the third to provide two of the three runs scored against him. What happened after that was the fault of George Murray, who made his first appearance as a relief worker.

Big Three Gets Single.

The futility of the Sox's bat swinging was particularly distressing for Al Simmons and George Mule Haas. The gay Sergeant apparently concentrated on them. The best Haas could get was a walk. On three other occasions he couldn't hit the ball past the infield.

Simmons didn't even get a walk. Once he flied to the outfield. Three times he poked into the hands of an infielder. The painful part of Simmons' case was the fact that he was up twice with a runner on base. However, the ex-Athletic trio derived some consolation when Jim Dykes singled and lost an extra base drive only because of a startling running catch by Porter in the second inning.

Kress Gums Up Detail.

Another feature that provided no satisfaction for Lew Fonseca, the crutch ridden manager, was the labors of Red Kress, who is understudying at first base. Kress messed up a play that made things more difficult for Gaston in the third. He also dropped a throw. This, however, didn't hurt anybody. His hitting was just another day at bat. He got one single, but it was a scratch. That gave him a record for the last nine games of only four hits in 34 times at bat.

Hayes opened the game with a double along the right field line, which gave the Sox a short lived lead, as well as their only run of the day. Hayes moved to third on Haas' infield out to Cissell and scored when Swanson was retired on a similar play. This slim advantage lasted only until one was out in the Indians' second. Vosmik tripled into the right field corner for the first hit off Gaston and scored while Hayes was tossing out Boss.

The Trouble Starts.

The Indian uprising which netted two runs in the third began when a high fly by Spencer fell close to the right field line for a double. Connally's bunt put him on third. Porter sneaked a single past Kress to score Spencer. Burnett also singled to right. Averill rolled to Hayes, but Kress, thinking he could make the stop, left the base unprotected. Gaston tried to get over to cover, but was too late and Averill drew a hit, filling the bases. Simmons dashed back to pull in Cissell's fly and Porter scored. Then Dykes fumbled Vosmik's easy roller and the bases were filled again. Gaston wriggled out of the jam without further trouble.

Connally gave the Sox a chance to start something if they were able in the fourth. He walked Haas, but three such experts as Swanson, Simmons, and Appling were set down in order. The fifth also promised to develop something interesting. Kress opened with an infield single and was forced by Dykes. Berry popped out and Gaston tried to help his own cause by singling to left. But Cissell tossed out Hayes, retiring the side.

The Sarge Escapes.

The seventh found Connally in his worst fix of all, but he escaped again. The Sox made the mistake of not taking after him before the first two men were retired. Dykes started the mixup with a single to center. Berry also singled. Grube was hustled in to bat for Gaston and Connally unintentionally walked him, filling the bases. This put matters entirely in the hands of Hayes and you can imagine the smile on Connally's face as he watched a lazy fly sail into Vosmik's hands.

Murray put himself on the spot as soon as he appeared in the seventh by passing Spencer, who moved up a peg on Connally's sacrifice. Porter singled to right to score Spencer. Swanson, whose arm is none too strong, foolishly attempted to throw to the plate. This gave Porter a chance to run to second, thus getting himself into position to score on Burnett's single to center. A double play on Averill's bounder to Appling put an abrupt stop to things.

Murray ran into additional complications in the eighth, but on this occasion proved that he could take it. Cissell opened the inning with a triple to left center. He hugged third while Dykes was disposing of Vosmik. Boss then walked and stole second. The runners remained at their posts on Kamm's roller to Dykes and were still there when Spencer hoisted to Haas.

BROWN WISDOM WON'T GIVE UP; IN INAUGURAL

Sprinter Tries Comeback at Sportsman's.

Swivel May Not Run

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALTIMORE, Md., April 28.—Swivel, giant filly owned by Adolphe Pons, one of the leading eastern contenders for the Kentucky Derby, which will be run at Churchill Downs, May 6, became a doubtful starter today. Trainers said Swivel had fever of 103 degrees last night, but was somewhat improved today. Announcement that Swivel had contracted a bad cold and probably would be withdrawn from the Blue Grass classic followed word that Repaid, owned by James F. Johnson, had been withdrawn.

Old Brown Wisdom, which once ran with the best sprinters on the American turf and defeated them, is going to try a comeback. The Reichert brothers of Belleville, who own the 8 year old son of Brown Prince II.-Prodigy, have picked Sportsman's Park, the half mile track in Cicero, as the place where Brown Wisdom will make his last stand.

The Reichert entry of My Dandy and Brown Wisdom has been bobbing up in rich handicap affairs for several years. Last winter, on the Florida tracks, Brown Wisdom started out to try for some purses by himself. He faced the barrier in $3,000 and $2,000 claiming races. Still he couldn't win.

He Wins a Race.

Finally they dropped him into a $1,000 claiming affair at Miami with horses that Brown Wisdom wouldn't even let stay in the same stable with him a year or two ago. He won, but only because the horse that beat him was disqualified.

So now the old fellow has been nominated for the Inaugural handicap at Sportsman's Park Monday. The distance is seven furlongs, just about right for Brown Wisdom, if he wants to run and can get those aging legs of his around the sharp turns.

Twenty Are Named.

Twenty have been nominated for the Inaugural, and only 10, under the rules of the half mile track, will be allowed to start. This morning Secretary Robert Shelley will pick out the starters, placing the others on the preferred list for later engagements.

Although Aurora has announced free admission to the grandstand, Edward O'Hare, general manager of Sportsman's Park, said yesterday that general admission will be $1.10 and clubhouse admission $1.65, including tax.

The elevated lines have announced special service from the loop to Sportsman's Park. Connections will be made with the Chicago and West Towns railway at the 52d street stop on the Douglas Park line. The Illinois Central will run specials direct to the gates.

ASSIGNS WEIGHTS TODAY

Racing Secretary Dick Leigh will assign weights today for the $1,200 Inaugural handicap, feature of Monday's opening day program at the Aurora race track. A field of star sprinters has been nominated for the event.

Hillsborough, 5 year old son of Hourless, which races in the colors of Tom Flippen, is expected to parade to the post favorite, but may have to share the honors with Chrysostom, a 3 year old owned by J. J. O'Bryne. Chrysostom, because he is two years younger, will get a big pull in the weights.

Other potential starters are War Plane, Zenka, Dollar Princess, Supreme Sweet, Gracious Gift, Nyack, Zekiel, Pigeon Hole, Uncommon Gold and Bill Orange.

Some support has developed for Gracious Gift since the veteran gelding worked 5 furlongs in 1:03 at the Exposition Park course Thursday. He made the move in easy fashion.

Another that might lead home the Inaugural field is Mrs. Emil Denemark's Pigeon Hole. At one time a stake horse of the first rank, Pigeon Hole dropped down and down until he was racing with platers last season. Then, at Arlington, the veteran suddenly found his racing legs, and when he was moved on to Hawthorne and Lincoln Fields he became one of the season's sensations by winning seven races in a row.

The Burlington will run two special trains daily from the Chicago Union depot to the track gate. The Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin Electric lines will have several specials.

PURDUE TIES NOTRE DAME, 9-9, ON WALK, ERRORS

Lafayette, Ind., April 28.—[Special.]—Purdue and Notre Dame battled two hours and 45 minutes to a 9 to 9 tie here this afternoon in a wild baseball game that was called at the end of the ninth inning on account of darkness.

Purdue, with Hunsl holding Notre Dame in check, piled up a 7 to 1 lead, only to have Notre Dame score eight runs in the last three innings when Hunsl became wobbly and his support went to pieces. With Purdue trailing, 9 to 8, and two out in the last half of the ninth, Zelko drew a walk, stole second, raced to third on the catcher's wild throw, and scored when Rascher, in center field, fumbled the overthrow. The teams will meet again tomorrow afternoon.

6th Corps Trio PlaysOptimists for Polo Title

The most coveted honor of polo, the Charles E. Danforth trophy, is at stake. The Optimists won it last year and also in 1930.

Riding Club Meets North Shore.

In the opening match of tonight's double bill, starting at 8:30 o'clock, Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening will pit his Riding club team against North Shore. In addition to Capt. Corpening it will bring into play such stars as Bill Nicholls, Boston star; Barney Balding, Prentice Porter, Herbert Lorber, and Jim Hannah.

The fact that Guest will be seen in action has raised interest in tonight's title game to a high pitch, and indications are that the record crowd of the tournament will turn out to pay homage to the world's only 10 goal indoor player. Guest will be supported by Michael Phipps and Stewart B. Iglehart.

Determined to avenge themselves for their defeat by the Optimists Tuesday in the class A title game, the Sixth Corps trio of Maj. Smith, Capt. C. A. Wilkinson, and Capt. C. E. (Stub) Davis is set to battle stubbornly.

PIRATES DEFEAT CARDINALS, 2-0, IN MOUND DUEL

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 28.—(AP)—A combination of timely hitting and flashy fielding behind Larry French, who bore down expertly in the pinches, enabled the Pirates to turn back the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 0, in the series opener today.

Each run came from a single hit, behind a walk, plus an outfield fly in one case and a sacrifice in another, but it was a fielding feat that finally settled the game. The Cards had runners on first and third with one out in the eighth inning. Frank Frisch lashed a drive toward right and Tony Piet made a neat stop and converted a near hit into a double play which ended the St. Louis threat. Score:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: In 1880 Tobin & Booth had a packing house at 18th street and the viaduct, butchering hogs only. You could buy a pork loin with the tenderloin in for 4 cents a pound and pork chops for 4½ cents. Liverwurst, frankfurters, and blood sausage were 3 cents a pound. If purchases amounted to over $1 they would throw in pigs' ears, liver, and lights.

Often women and children from Canalport avenue would take home enough to last the family for a week.
A. S. Knowlton.

Recently Harry D. Choate of Marinette, Wis., wrote of manual training days at old Brown school, 1895-'96. I recall those trips to old Tilden school for manual training classes. I wonder if he remembers playing full back on the Brown school football eleven with Percy Powles, Sam Wright, Marcellus Meek, Al Benson, whose sister, Albertina, made a hit on the stage with Montgomery and Stone; Ray Helm, Clarence Rautman, Fat Stoat, Porter Smith, Charley Lamb, and the undersigned. We practiced on the lot behind Dave Schaffer's house on Wood street, just south of Madison.
Jim Stanton.

Helper Mrs. M. M. had a short paragraph in your column furnishing information some one had asked concerning the old Eagle hotel. She spoke of a stout woman who conducted a haberdashery at about 33 West Kedzie, which was owned by William Gilmore.

Mrs. Rebecca Gilmore Welch, youngest daughter of Mr. Gilmore, is still alive and said a lady named Maggie Irwin conducted the haberdashery. Mrs. Welch is anxious to visit about the old days with one who knows so much about them. If Mrs. M. M. will send her address to The Wake I would like to get in communication with her. Rebecca M. Gilbert.

Football in April.

There'll be a regular football game out at Dyche stadium this afternoon between Northwestern's prospective 1933 eleven and alumni stars of recent years. It's a regular game except that only a SMALL admission fee will be charged for the benefit of some university fund. Despite present thoughts of Derby candidates, White Sox, and Cubs, that's where we'll be this afternoon to get a line on what the Purple will have to offer this fall. What a life—football in April!

MILLER PICKS UP 67 PINS; LEADS WATSON BY 640

Miller now leads by 640 pins at the end of the fifth block of ten games. Last night's totals were: Miller, 1,945; Watson, 1,878. Grand totals are: Miller, 10,271; Watson, 9,631.

The new alleys evidently bothered both bowlers. Miller ran into six splits and was charged with three errors. Watson had thirteen splits and five misses. They will bowl again tonight.

CROWE SPECIAL PROSECUTOR LAW REPEALED

Barred Appointments of State's Attorneys.

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—The Crowe-Carlstrom act of 1927 which several times blocked the appointment of special state's attorneys in Cook county and elsewhere was wiped off the Illinois statute books today when Gov. Horner signed a repeal bill introduced by Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes of Hubbard Woods, wife of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Under the Small régime former State's Attorney Crowe and former Attorney General Carlstrom pushed through the general assembly an amendment to the statutes erasing the former provision permitting a court to appoint a special prosecutor when the state's attorney was disqualified because of personal interest in a matter or for any other reason. Their amendment provided that in case the state's attorney was disqualified the attorney general would step in and not unless he was disqualified could a special prosecutor be named. The Ickes bill cancels this provision.

The governor also signed the bill recommended by the commission on expenditures reducing the membership of the board of pardons and paroles from 10 to 7 and the Thon bill providing that the office of village treasurer in villages over 35,000 population—such as Oak Park and Cicero—shall be filled by appointment instead of by election.

RESCIND WBBM STATION ORDER, COURT DIRECTS

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Heeding the contention of Station W-G-N, operated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia today ordered the federal radio commission to rescind its recent decision authorizing Station WBBM of Chicago to synchronize with Station KFAB of Lincoln, Neb., the effect of which was to give the station full time on the air.

On motion of Louis G. Caldwell and Arthur W. Scharfeld, W-G-N counsel, the court granted a stay order, restraining the commission from allowing the synchronous operation until the court adjudicates the case. W-G-N appealed from the ruling, rendered March 24, on the ground that all other Chicago stations face an increased hazard in protecting their present facilities.

The appeal brought out that Illinois, and particularly the Chicago area, now has more than its equitable share of broadcasting facilities, and that all other stations in the state suffer an actual loss through the granting of increased facilities to WBBM, which is owned and operated by the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Granting of the application, W-G-N counsel claimed, also would prejudice the request of W-G-N, now pending before the radio commission, for an increase in power from 25,000 watts to the maximum of 50,000 watts, since it would use up more of the facilities available to Illinois.

PLAN MEMORIAL ON MONDAY FOR SUICIDE TEACHER

Plans were completed yesterday for a memorial program to be held by school teachers at 4 p. m. Monday near the Grant park band shell to commemorate the death of Paul C. Schneider, a teacher, who killed himself Thursday in his home at 5944 South Campbell avenue while despondent over financial troubles.

The program is scheduled to follow the funeral of Schneider, which will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at his home. Burial will be in Bethania cemetery. Scores of teachers are expected to attend the funeral. The Grant park services were arranged yesterday by the Illinois Teachers' association.

John M. Fewkes, a leader of the teachers, announced he would seek to have teachers and pupils remain silent for three minutes in their classrooms at 11 a. m. Monday "to think things over that caused our fellow teacher to end his life." Mr. Fewkes added it is hoped to take up a collection in the schools for Schneider's family.

Serhant testified Mayor Cermak was of sound and disposing mind and memory when the bill was executed on Jan. 25, 1929.

Serhant and Edward J. Kukac, 2440 South Clifton Park avenue, and Dr. Charles D. Besta, who has since died, were witnesses to the will. Kukac testified on Thursday. Personal bonds for $500,000 were signed for the mayor's three daughters—Mrs. Helen C. Kenlay, Mrs. Ella Jirka, and Mrs. Lillian Graham—as executors of the estate. The Lawndale National bank, also an executor, is protected under its $2,000,000 bond filed with the state auditor.

The three daughters share the bulk of the $250,000 estate under the provisions of the will, disclosed several weeks ago.

Louis K. Cleaveland, 61 years old, president of the North American Life Assurance society, 32 West Randolph street, and a resident of Moline, died at the Moline City hospital yesterday after an illness of two months.

Mr. Cleaveland formerly was assistant insurance commissioner for the state of Illinois for nine years. He was also a member of the Elks and Masonic lodges. He was a brother of H. H. Cleaveland, former head of the Illinois highway department.

JEWELRY FIRM LEASES FLOOR IN HEYWORTH

To Occupy Same Space It Once Had.

BY AL CHASE.

What is claimed to be Chicago's oldest wholesale jewelry concern, the A. C. Becken company, yesterday signed a lease for the entire sixth floor of the Heyworth building, at the southwest corner of Madison and Wabash, for a term of years. The lessee, now in the Pure Oil building, will take possession of its new quarters about the middle of May. W. N. Murray, manager of the Heyworth building, negotiated the lease.

The A. C. Becken company, established in 1887, took over in 1929 the jewelry firm of Otto Young & Co., which was founded in 1865, and the C. H. Knights-Thearle company, established in 1867. Basing their claim on these dates, the officers of the leasing company assert it is the oldest establishment of its kind in the city.

Returns to Old Quarters.

An interesting angle to yesterday's deal is the fact that the space just leased was occupied for many years by Otto Young & Co. P. T. White, general manager of the A. C. Becken company, was vice president for many years of Otto Young & Co. James W. Clark is president of the Becken company. The space just leased comprises approximately 11,000 square feet.

The Woolworth company yesterday renewed its lease on the store at 2933 Milwaukee avenue for two years from May 1 with an option of renewal on a minimum guarantee and percentage basis, Coen-Berkson & Co., brokers, also report leasing the store at Lincoln, Barry, and Greenview to the Motor Tires Sales corporation, for one year and option for four. The rental is on a minimum guarantee of $2,400, plus a percentage of profits. A. Krom was associate broker.

Lincoln Avenue Lease.

The Central Furniture company has leased the store at 3069 Lincoln avenue for one year and option for four on a minimum guarantee of $1,800, plus a percentage of profits. Coen-Berkson & Co. were brokers. This will be the lessee's second store.

Mrs. Anna M. Reis has sold the twelve apartment building at the southwest corner of Newgard and North Shore avenues through John J. Kern to Marie McArthur and Estelle McMahon for an undisclosed consideration, subject to a $28,000 first mortgage.

On May 1 D. L. Toffonetti will open another Triangle restaurant at 130 South Clark street. This is directly across the street from his former restaurant in the Standard Trust building, which is to be wrecked. There are six Triangle restaurants in the loop.

Western Electric Officer to Retire After 44 Years

E. R. Gilmore, assistant treasurer of the Western Electric company, will retire next Monday after nearly 44 years of service in the telephone industry, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Gilmore began his business career with Western Electric in 1889, shortly after his graduation from the University of Rochester.

FOUR CHICAGO REBATES MADE ON INCOME TAX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Two Chicago companies and the estates of two former Chicagoans were granted tax adjustments aggregating more than $698,000 today.

The largest was an abatement of $578,151 in favor of the estate of Reuben H. Donnelley, former president of the Reuben H. Donnelley Publishing company. The abatement was because of state inheritance taxes paid by the estate.

The estate of Edward C. Waller, former president of the North American Accident Insurance company, received an outright cash refund of $33,784. The refund resulted from a revaluation of some of the assets included in the gross

But He Knows as Much as Experts.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The strange and untimely death of Lukasey not so many years ago provided a month's work for Canadian "mounties" at Port Burwell, on the northern tip of Labrador.

Lukasey was one of many docile Eskimos upon whom a band of itinerant missionaries practiced for a while and then abandoned. About all that Lukasey gathered out of all the complicated things the missionaries told him was that unless you could read a certain book and make your squaw wear over her sealskin knickers a skirt that dragged in the mud certain dire things might happen to you. And the departing missionaries left Lukasey a book.

After days of trying to absorb wisdom by steadily staring at pages that he couldn't read Lukasey came to the conclusion that if he could shake up his brain a little it might perform better. So he called in a friend and asked this friend to tap him stoutly on the head.

The first tap hurt, but didn't improve Lukasey's ability to read. The second hurt more, but still didn't help. The third permanently removed Lukasey from the necessity of reading.

John Doe "Lukaseys."

Up and down La Salle street and Main street and in banks, barber shops, and sewing circles there are pepole who, like Lukasey, believe that their inability to understand the subject of currency inflation is due to their own mental shortcomings.

The outpourings of explanatory literature full of strange, high sounding words, only deepen their conviction that somewhere above the wave length of the ordinary human being, in the rarefied band in which only intellectual giants commune, such mystifying things as currency inflation are being properly taken care of by people who know all about them. Inflation, like a radio set, is something to be accepted but not understood.

Perhaps it will be some consolation to these brain weary ordinary mortals to discover that not only do the noted experts differ sharply in their opinions but they change their minds from time to time.

Just before the biggest stock market collapse in history one expert said stocks couldn't fall. Another said they would. One was right and the other was wrong, but the one who was right has been pressing his luck ever since and causing the public to wonder whether an economist, like a stopped clock, is right only once in a while.

When Doctors Disagree.

We have, likewise, the case of a Yale professor who was an anti-inflationist now embracing inflationism and at the same time the case of a Princeton professor who once urged adoption of a managed currency more recently opposing it.

A friend of mine who prefers to be regarded as a former economist, or perhaps an ex-expert, makes this admission:

"I can't make head or tail out of some of these learned treatises on economics. It seems to me there's a tendency to hide ignorance in verbosity.

"I admit that I don't know what inflation will do, what form it will take or whether it can be properly controlled. I don't see how any one can say with certainty what inflation will do.

"Furthermore, it seems to be idle at this stage to argue whether inflation is right or wrong. It isn't a question of morals or logic. The only logic these days is the logic of political action. We're on our way and it's useless to argue about whether we should have started. We didn't start. We were shoved. We had no choice."

A Few Words on Inflation.

For a sane, dispassionate and easily understood explanation of inflation the following paragraphs are offered. They were written by a man whose opinions are much sought after but who prefers no publicity.

"Inflation," he says, "has various meanings. Probably the correct way to use the word is to apply it merely to the undue increase of currency largely by use of printing presses and without any reference to the gold basis. This was the inflation practiced after the war by Germany, Austria, Russia, and a number of other countries.

"The word, however, has been always used in two other senses; namely, in connection with credit inflation, and lately even in connection with a rise of prices regardless of how this rise is brought about.

"The placing of an embargo on gold, which in the last few days has resulted in an increase in prices of stocks and raw commodities, has been termed inflation. It is not a true inflation at all. Great Britain placed a similar embargo upon gold in 1931 and it did not bring about a rise in the internal price level.

Means Palpitating Dollar.

"The effect of an embargo on gold in the long run merely results in producing somewhat wider fluctuations in the value of any currency in terms of others than is true when the free export of gold is allowed.

"At the present moment we are practically on an irredeemable paper currency basis. As long as the amount of money in circulation is not increased unduly, the value of the currency in terms of others will depend on the international balance payments. As these are in our favor in respect to practically every country in the world, the chances are that the present rise in the price of other currencies in terms of the dollar will not be maintained.

"Of course, if we should begin to use the printing presses and produce currency ad lib, there is no question that the value of the dollar would de-

Oak Park and Edgewater Banks to Open

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Oak Park Trust and Savings bank, one of the largest banks in the Chicago suburban territory, will reopen for business in the next few days, according to reliable reports.

Ellis H. Denny, president, said last night that the bank had received permission from the federal reserve authorities to reopen and were awaiting only final word from State Auditor Edward J. Barrett.

Depositors agreed to freeze 50 per cent of their claims and stockholders put half a million dollars of new money to meet the conditions laid down by the banking authorities.

Frees $2,225,000 Deposits.

The free deposits of the bank will amount to $2,225,000. Slow assets have been set aside against which depositors will receive certificates of beneficial interest in return for waiving half of their deposits.

Only a few technicalities remain to be ironed out before the bank receives its state license, it was learned. Reopening Monday morning is probable.

The bank is located in the center of the suburb's business district, being the largest bank in the village. It is one of the 11 banks in the Chicago district with a capitalization of a million dollars or more. The bank's capitalization of $1,000,000 will remain unchanged.

Edgewater Opens Today.

The Edgewater Trust and Savings bank, 5545 Broadway, will open for business this morning, Arthur F. Albert, chairman of the board announced last night. The bank will open with $45,000 of new money of which $20,000 was posted by stockholders and the balance represented by deposit waivers. The bank has deposits of $90,000.

The I-C Bank and Trust company, Lake Park avenue and 53d street, yesterday was taken over by the state auditor for liquidation. It has been closed since the beginning of the bank holiday. The action was taken at the request of directors who failed in their efforts to raise the $200,000 of new money needed to reopen. Deposits are $520,000.

In addition to the Edgewater bank State Auditor Barrett last night gave permission to the Farmers' State bank of Chadwick, Ill., to open today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—The treasury department's current half billion dollar offering of three year 2¾ per cent notes was oversubscribed a little less than two and a half times, Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin announced tonight.

Although the total oversubscription was not considered large in financial circles, especially since the treasury had endeavored to attract an unlimited amount of small subscriptions, the treasury failed to take this view.

Total subscriptions were one billion 200 million dollars, Secretary Woodin said.

He announced that allotments would be made as follows:

Exchange subscriptions, as well as cash subscriptions in amounts of $10,000 or less were allotted in full.

Allotments on cash subscriptions exceeding $10,000 were made as follows: Subscriptions in amounts over $10,000 but not exceeding $100,000 were allotted 80 per cent, but not less than $10,000 on any one subscription; subscriptions in amounts over $100,000 but not exceeding $1,000,000 were allotted 50 per cent but not less than $80,000 on any one subscription, and subscriptions in amounts over $1,000,000 were allotted 35 per cent, but not less than $500,000 on any one subscription.

SPEED UP TRAINS ON ROCK ISLAND AND MILWAUKEE

Faster passenger train schedules continue to be reported. The Milwaukee road announced yesterday that it is reducing the running time of the Southwest Limited from Kansas City to Chicago by thirty minutes and of train No. 58 from the Twin Cities to Chicago by forty minutes, effective tomorrow.

The Rock Island has announced that it is reducing the running time of its suburban trains between the La Salle street station and Blue Island and Joliet and intermediate points from two to five minutes. Trains from the suburbs will leave from two to five minutes later than heretofore and they will depart in the evening from the La Salle street station at the old time but will reach their destinations from two to five minutes earlier.

Chicago Area Steel Plants Recall 1,500

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

About 1,500 men have been recalled to work within the last two weeks by the steel industry in the Gary-South Chicago district. A number of furnaces are being put into operation, which will increase employment still more, although no great advance in the number of jobs is expected in the near future.

However, steel production in Gary this week will pass 20,000 tons weekly for the first time in more than a year, according to reports from this steel center.

It is reported that the Illinois Steel company, subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, has experienced an increase in its production for the sixth consecutive week, with each week progressively better than the preceding one.

A favorable sign is said to be the fact that there is some stability to orders now, instead of the up one week and down the next condition which has prevailed hitherto.

Best Demand from Auto Plants.

Orders from the automotive industry continue to give the steel industry the greatest amount of work. However, the railroads are increasing their orders a little. Small orders are continuing to come in in greater numbers, which steel officials interpret as a favorable sign of increasing business throughout the country.

The Inland Steel company, large Chicago independent concern, is stated to be running at about 35 per cent of capacity.

The executive committee of the United States Steel corporation is reported to have authorized the expenditure of $500,000 on a new tin plate mill to be erected by the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, its subsidiary, at Gary. The company now has one mill under construction at Gary, which is costing a like amount, making the second unit of this type.

Illinois Steel Adds Furnaces.

The Illinois Steel company fired another blast furnace yesterday and will blow it in today, making two in operation at Gary. It has fired another open hearth furnace at the Gary works, which will make four open hearth furnaces in operation.

Reports from other parts of the country tell of improvement in the industry. The magazine Steel announced yesterday that it will report in its weekly statement on Monday that steel ingot production throughout the nation this week has been at the rate of 29 per cent of capacity, or almost double the rate reported on April 1.

CHARGE PUBLIC LOST 25 BILLION IN BAD STOCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—American investors lost 25 billion dollars in the purchase of worthless securities during the last ten years, the senate banking and currency committee asserted today in a report urging passage of the administration's security control bill. The committee report was submitted by Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] in support of the bill which was reported to the senate yesterday and which will be taken up in the immediate future.

The necessity for the bill, the committee stated, arises out of the fact that "billions of dollars have been invested in practically worthless securities through incomplete, careless or false representations." The report also declared that the United States government "lags far behind other nations" in protecting the investor against such frauds. As these other nations have such laws this "legislation cannot be regarded as of an experimental nature," the report added.

Gives Commission Power.

"Despite the state blue sky laws," the report continued, "the losses of investors have been appalling. Those who have considered the matter place such losses in this country at 1 billion 700 million dollars annually even before the depression.

The bill would place control of securities issues in the hands of the federal trade commission. But, while full facts regarding stock issues must be given to the commission the report specifically states:

"Care has been taken to prevent the public from being led to believe that the federal government under the proposed law passes upon the soundness of any security."

Six main features in the bill concern the registration of necessary information with the commission; supervision of advertisements of securities; revocation and suspension of registration of the stock issues; exemptions of certain stocks from registration; personal responsibility of corporation directors as to stock issues; and remedies for the purchaser in case of fraud.

ILLINOIS LAW OUTLINED.

A number of amendments to the Illinois securities law designed to give new protection to investors will be introduced in the Illinois legislature next Wednesday, according to an announcement made yesterday by Rupert F. Bippus, head of the Illinois "blue sky" department.

The amendments to the law, which in effect constitute a new law, remove many of the exemptions which have prevailed in the listing of securities. Included in this category are utility issues, which hereafter will have to undergo much closer scrutiny for qualification if the amendments pass.

Real estate bonds, if the bill is adopted, will be placed under the closest scrutiny.

WALGREEN NETS 51 CTS. A SHARE IN SIX MONTHS

The semi-annual report of the Walgreen company, released last night, showed net earnings of $522,152 for the six months ended March 31, as compared with $787,546 in the same period of the preceding year.

The earnings are equivalent to 51 cents a share on the common stock, against 78 cents last year.

The report states that the company has closed 13 stores which had proved unprofitable. Other economies were made in the renewal and modification of leases, it was stated.

U. S., Britain Lay Basis for Return to Gold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—The economic foundation for a simultaneous return to the gold standard by America and Great Britain has been laid in the Bank of England and the federal reserve banks, official figures revealed today.

The Bank of England now holds more gold than ever before in its history, the department of commerce announced, and, according to reports received by the department, the bank holds all the gold it wants before returning to the gold standard.

Entrenched by Gold Holdings.

At the same time the anti-gold hoarding campaigns in America have driven so much gold into the reserve system that the excess gold reserves are only about 200 million dollars short of their pre-bank holiday peak.

Entrenched behind these gold holdings, the central banks of both countries would be in a position to resume the gold standard and meet foreign demands for gold. Simultaneous devaluation of the dollar and the pound, supposedly agreed upon during the Roosevelt-MacDonald conversations, probably would precede such action and multiply the usefulness of the gold reserves in the two countries.

Gold holdings of the federal reserve banks continue to be the largest of any central banking system in the world, three billion 396 millions. Of this gold one billion 206 millions is "free gold," unobligated as either note or deposit collateral. Before the beginning of the banking crisis the banks had free gold of about one billion 400 millions.

Want More Reserves.

In Great Britain the Bank of England has accumulated more gold than it ever before has had in its long history, $853,743,000 at standard rates of exchange. According to reports reaching the department of commerce, the bank wants gold reserves of $1,217,500,000 before it will be willing to return to the gold standard.

This additional amount of gold which the bank is believed to want is said already to exist in the equalization fund in the form of gold exchange.

Four hundred building and loan association managers who represent middle western organizations holding about 375,000 mortgages in their communities will meet today in the Stevens hotel. Their attention will be focused on the practical operation of the Roosevelt home mortgage refinancing plan, which was approved yesterday by the house.

Inflationist Vote Hits Dollar; Plan for Control Fund Denied

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—The two day rally in the dollar, fostered by news of the Franco-British agreement for combating the depreciation in United States exchange, came to a sudden end today as the first repercussions of the news died down and the United States senate, by its vote on the gold clause of the Thomas bill, again demonstrated the strength of inflationist sentiment here.

The pound sterling, which had been forced down to $3.72 on indications of the determination of the British government to oppose a rise, rallied to $3.80 and closed at $3.79½, up 7½ cents. Francs went to 4.38 cents and closed at 4.37 cents, up 6¼ points; guilders rallied 65 points to 44.70 cents, belgas rose 14 points to 15.46 cents, and Swiss francs were up 35 points to 21.50 cents.

The exchange market was active all day, with substantial amounts traded.

No Plan to Stabilize Dollar.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—In responsible administration quarters it was said today that no thought has been given by government officials to establishment of an equalization fund to maintain the stability of the dollar in the exchange markets.

It was pointed out that the suggestion of creating a stabilization fund carried the intimation of an exchange war between nations of the world, which was a situation the American government is seeking to avoid.

In announcing the ban on foreign exchange President Roosevelt said he had cut the dollar loose to seek its own level in foreign markets. This has been construed as meaning the administration would take no steps to stabilize the dollar unless later developments made it necessary.

English Banks Lend to France.

PARIS, April 28.—(AP)—A loan of £30,000,000 [approximately $114,000,000 currently] for six months to the French treasury at 2½ per cent interest by a group of English banks was negotiated today.

Although earlier in the week the information was that the Bank of France and the British equalization fund would play a part in the negotiations, it was stated that the loan, as finally arranged, was purely between individual British banks and the French treasury.

STOCKS STRONG; RALLY FOLLOWS BONUS DEFEAT

Most Groups Higher, but Rails Lag.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—Befuddled traders kept out of the stock market again today and activity was once more confined to the activities of a handful of professionals. Turnover was somewhat in excess of 2,000,000 shares.

It was the seventh consecutive day the market has spent floundering about in the rut into which it bogged after achieving its top for the inflation boom last week. Brokers do not anticipate any very great change in the picture until something definite is done about inflation at Washington.

There were hopes in some quarters that the senate vote on dollar depreciation after the close of business yesterday might give a mild fillip to dealings today, but it did not take long after the opening gong to realize that the public could find no incentive to action in the vote considering the gantlet it has yet to run before becoming a law.

Stocks Rally Toward Close.

Trading got off to the same old singsong pace and prices backed and filled. A late rally developed on the senate vote downing the bonus grab once more and this boosted quotations a point or so higher.

All groups moved more or less in unison and little aggression was in evidence in any quarter. At one time a wave of selling that was a bit more pronounced than its predecessors bore prices down as much as 3 points, but the reaction was short lived and the late afternoon recovery was broad enough to restore virtually all the lost group in all departments. Final figures with few exceptions were the best of the day.

Railroad shares, contrary to expectations, paid little attention to the over night news detailing the "high spots" of the administration's coördination bill. The trade regards the measure with mixed feelings, a fact made apparent by the disposition of the whole rail group to lag behind the rest of the market most of the day.

Await Better Rail Earnings.

Brokerage house commentators said that only a sharp recovery in the volume of traffic and earnings could save some of the weaker and overcapitalized roads from threatened "reorganization."

News of sharp gains in some of the steel centers enabled United States Steel common to replace an early loss of nearly 2 points with a fractional gain, and also had a mildly stimulating effect on the whole market. Persistent buying in General Motors, Southern Railway, Du Pont and one or two other issues impressed market followers most of the day.

Farm implements were able to swing with the general list in spite of a drop of about 2 cents a bushel in wheat. J. I. Case scored a net gain of more than a point.

Oils closed stronger after dragging in the early dealings. Coppers, foods and chemical did likewise.

IMPROVED TRADE PROSPECTS LIFT FOREIGN BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28. — Interest in today's bond market was monopolized by Argentine and Australian issues, which rose from 1 to 3 points on buying from London based on prospects for improvement in trade affecting the two countries.

Irregular declines were the rule in government and other high grade bonds, as well as in the speculative class, although selling was desultory.

A feature of trading in domestic bonds was selling of Consolidated Gas and American Telephone issues, evidencing nervousness over the outlook for lower utility rates.

A measure of support was given speculative railroad bonds in early dealings on the news that the Roosevelt railroad bill will soon be in the hands of congress.

Lawyer Gets Even with Box Office Man

Nobody loves a box office man—at least, not many—but few have the opportunity to express their feelings as well as a prominent Chicago attorney did a few days ago. Six months ago he amiably asked for "two of your best seats" at the Whoompsis theater. The box office man was so hard boiled and the seats so poor that the edge was taken off what might have been a pleasant evening.

Last week he was offered a case by a landlord of a man who had failed to pay his rent and was to be ousted. He told his client he didn't handle matters of that sort, but natural curiosity prompted the question: "Who is he and what does he do?"

"He's box office man at the Whoompsis theater."

"What! Well, that's different," said the attorney. "Certainly I'll take the case."

He did. The man was ousted.

Life insurance business is improving, according to members of the board of trustees of the National Association of Life Underwriters who are holding their midyear meeting at the Stevens hotel.

"The faith of the people in the 'new deal' for our country is reflecting itself in an upturn of our business the same as in many other forms of business," Roger B. Hull of New York, general counsel of the association, stated yesterday. "Although figures have not been completed we know already that we have sold more life insurance than we did in April of last year."

The trustees discussed plans for the annual meeting which will be held here from Sept. 26 to 29.

A novel method to prevent severe losses to life insurance policyholders through company failures is being tried in Colorado. Under a new law, when a company's assets become impaired a lien is placed on all policies sufficient to offset the impairment. The lien is then entered as an asset on the company's books. The law is criticized on the grounds that while it may prevent costly receiverships it is no guarantee against loss. It might also foster incompetent management, its critics say, because the losses fall on the policyholders rather than the management and stockholders.

Associated Breweries of Canada has made investments in two U. S. breweries, the annual report reveals. "These investments should certainly add materially to the company's future," the report states. The company earned $349,450 last year, against $433,435 in 1931.

$100,000 Salary Not Enough, He Says.

Sewell L. Avery, president of Montgomery Ward & Co., told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that a salary of $100,000 yearly "was not a sufficient inducement" when he was first offered his present job more than a year ago.

He accepted the position, however, when given an option to purchase 100,000 shares of the company's stock at $11 a share, in addition to the salary.

The stock closed yesterday on the New York exchange at $19.25. If Mr. Avery exercised his option and could liquidate the 100,000 shares at the current quotation, he would have a profit of $825,000.

Answers Stockholders' Protests.

Mr. Avery discussed his salary arrangement with the company after reading letters from several stockholders protesting against the stock option. He stated that he did not initiate the plan which had been authorized by the board of directors.

Mr. Avery told the 50 odd stockholders who attended the meeting that, with any reasonable recovery in business, the period of unprofitable operation would come to an end.

"As to the resumption of dividends," he added, "this matter is naturally in the future, but I hope it will not be in the too distant future."

Tells of Cutting Expenses.

He pointed out that one of the important changes was the return to centralized management and the discarding of the regional system had resulted in a reduction in managerial expense. Another was the weeding out of unprofitable stores and the retention of only the best units.

Robert G. Bear and Raymond H. Fogler were elected directors to succeed Thomas Reardan and Harry E. Hughes. Mr. Bear was elected vice president in addition to his position as treasurer. Mr. Fogler and Frank M. Folsom were also elected vice presidents. Stuart S. Ball was elected secretary and Abbott D. Churbuck assistant secretary and treasurer.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Standard Telephone Company

First Lien Collateral Trust, 5½% Gold Bonds, Due November 1, 1943

On April 19, 1933, Standard Telephone Company was placed in receivership. The parent company, Associated Telephone Utilities Company, went into receivership on April 1, 1933.

In the opinion of the undersigned committee, earnings of Standard Telephone Company for the year ended December 31, 1932, while inadequate to cover interest charges on the total funded debt of the Company, are sufficient to cover interest on the Company's First Lien 5½'s of 1943. However, the receivers have stated that it is not their intention to make funds available for payment of the interest due May 1, 1933, on these bonds.

Because of this situation, owners of a substantial amount of these bonds have agreed to form a committee to protect their own interests and those of other similar bondholders who may wish to join with them. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that this committee will act only for the First Lien Bonds.

This committee is composed of actual holders of the securities concerned and includes men of recognized experience and ability in the telephone business and in the general operation of public utilities.

The undersigned committee invites the cooperation of other bondholders for the protection of mutual interests. This committee believes that it will be necessary for bondholders to take immediate action if they are to protect their interests during the reorganization of the capital structure of Standard Telephone Company.

Copy of the deposit agreement will be sent to bondholders upon request, also an explanatory letter showing: (1) The original properties pledged. (2) The pledged collateral as now constituted. (3) A description with earnings statement and balance sheets of the pledged properties. (4) Other pertinent information in complete detail.

Bonds for deposit may be sent direct to the depositary or, for further information, address the Secretary of the Committee.

At the suggestion of holders of substantial amounts of Bonds, this Committee has beeen formed, consisting of representatives of houses whose clients hold a large proportion of this issue. This Committee will act solely in the interest of First Lien Bondholders.

Because of the fact that the individuals comprising the Committee have, for some months, kept closely informed of developments, it has been possible to quickly formulate a plan of reorganization designed to protect the First Lien Bondholders to the fullest possible extent. Complete information relative to the plan will be forwarded to known Bondholders within a very few days, together with instructions relative to the deposit of Bonds.

RAIL MEN STUDY NEW BILL WITH HOPE AND DOUBT

Expect Reforms; Question Scope of Economies

New York, April 28.—(AP)—The administration's proposed legislation to meet the railroad problem was greeted with mixed emotions in Wall street railway financing and operating quarters today.

Railway executives were inclined to take a hopeful attitude toward the bill, expressing the belief that it opened the way for desirable reforms.

Some important railroad banking quarters, however, were critical of the measure, taking the stand that it does not go far enough in granting powers to the coördinator to effect economies.

Under the terms of the proposed legislation, as now drafted, these bankers said, the railway labor act cannot be modified and contracts entered into under that act cannot be changed by the coördinator. This means, they asserted, that no saving can be expected in labor costs, which normally absorb about 50 per cent of every dollar of operating revenue.

Other Savings Doubtful.

The only other substantial saving which would be effected within a reasonable time, railway bankers explained, would be in materials and supplies, and a saving in this field is out of the question because the railway plant has been undernourished for several years due to the depression.

In transportation circles, however, the belief was expressed that the railroads themselves now would be able to initiate many reforms. While the carriers would obviously prefer no further governmental supervision, they are resigned to the fact that some additional grant of federal power is inevitable, and they would rather work in conjunction with this authority than in opposition to it.

The provision of the bill curtailing the power of the interstate commerce commission to authorize loans to carriers drew the study of executives.

This provision was regarded as particularly drastic, in that no new loans or bonds could be authorized unless the commission is satisfied that the carrier "can without reorganization survive the existing economic depression and provide for its capital needs thereafter."

Unions Attack Bill.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—Labor, fearful that thousands of railway works will be forced out of work, today announced its opposition to the railway reorganization bill now on President Roosevelt's desk awaiting approval and transmission to congress.

Though the bill contains various safeguards for labor, it was attacked vigorously today in a statement from the Railway Labor Executives' association, which said:

"We see no justification for drastic reductions of essential transportation service in order that unearned interest may be paid on idle capital."

The labor safeguards in the bill are: Protection of all labor union contract rights; creation of labor boards to consult with the coördinator; preservation of rights to collective bargaining and maintenance of the railway labor act.

Caterpillar Tractor.

Will you kindly advise me concerning Caterpillar Tractor bonds and stock?—C. H. A.

Earnings of Caterpillar Tractor company, the largest manufacturer of tractors using the track laying principal, tend to vary with general industrial conditions. Principal outlets are the roadbuilding, mining, quarrying, lumbering, and construction industries.

Smaller losses in the face of decreased sales indicate that the company is making headway in adjusting manufacturing costs to present volume. March, 1933, sales totaled $1,059,000, and profit was $8,573. Sales in the first quarter of this year amounted to $2,257,000, which resulted in loss of $304,000. Sales in the corresponding 1932 quarter totaled $3,502,000, and loss was $510,000.

Sales in 1932 amounted to $13,286,000. This was 45 per cent less than 1931 sales and 75 per cent under record 1929 sales. Decline in volume caused the first loss in eight years.

Net loss for 1932 was $1,617,000. This was after extraordinary expenses incidental to moving the Minneapolis road machinery operations to Peoria and after $433,000 refunds to dealers to protect them from price reductions. Deficit after dividends was $2,793,000.

Net income in 1931 was $1,361,000, or 72 cents per share. Net for 1930 equaled $4.63 per share, against $6.16 per share in 1929.

On Feb. 28, 1933, current assets were $23,184,000 and current liabilities were $685,000. Cash assets alone were $6,293,000.

In 1930 the company sold $10,000,000 of 5 per cent notes, due April 1, 1935, to retire bank indebtedness and for other corporate purposes. To date $3,191,000 of them have been retired.

There are outstanding 1,882,240 shares of no par common, on which nothing since the 12½ cent disbursement on Nov. 30, 1932, has been paid.

WHEAT LOWER; BULLISH NEWS COMES TOO LATE

Events at Capital Boost Offers for Today.

WHEAT IN U. S. FUNDS

Wheat prices in leading markets reduced to United States funds at rates of exchange when they closed:

Chicago, May	65⅛	.67⅛
Winnipeg, May	48⅜	.49⅛
Do No. 2 Manitoba	46⅞	.47⅝
Liverpool, May	53⅜	.53¾
Do Argentina	.55	.55¾
Buenos Aires, May	39¾	.40⅛
Rotterdam, May	46¾	.47⅜

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation of a large line of wheat futures, regarded as having been for eastern account, put sufficient weight on the market yesterday to force a decline of 1⅞ to 2¼ cents from Thursday's finish and to a new low for the current week. While the market showed little disposition to rally and closed within a fraction of the bottom, there was excellent support in evidence at 66 cents for July wheat, which checked the decline.

There was nothing in the news to account for the selling of wheat futures, the greater part of the developments during the day being favorable to a higher level of prices. Commission houses were aggressive buyers in small lots on the break, with some reinstating of recently sold out lines by traders who took profits on the recent advance to 70⅞ cents for the July option. Net losses at the close were 1⅝ to 2 cents, with May finishing at 65⅞ to 65½ cents, July 66⅛ to 66¼ cents, September 66⅞ to 67 cents, and December 69 cents.

Big Demand for Offers.

It was not until after the close that the important news of the day developed. This was the defeat of the bonus amendment to the farm relief bill in the senate and announcement that the United States had accepted an invitation to attend the world's wheat conference. The conference is expected to be held next month, and is said to aim at acreage control by the four leading exporting countries. This, according to recent announcement, would be done in an effort to remove permanently overproduction of wheat as a world market factor.

There was a keen demand for offers on wheat good all day today, as the result of the late developments, and they advanced sharply.

Winnipeg wheat closed ⅞ to 1 cent lower, in Canadian funds, while Liverpool was ¼ to ⅜ cent higher, an advance in sterling having considerable effect in causing the upturn in the English market.

Corn Market Weakens.

Scattered liquidation was on in corn and other grains from the start, and the markets showed a heavy undertone. Monday is first delivery day on May contracts, and liberal quantities of corn, oats, and barley are expected to be sent out by cash interests.

Corn closed at the bottom, with net losses of 1¼ to 1⅝ cents, with May showing the most weakness and finishing at 32¾ to 32⅞ cents.

A good class of buying was in evidence on the decline in the leading grains. Oats finished ⅜ to 1 cent lower, rye lost 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents, and barley dropped 1¾ to 2½ cents.

SOUTH SELLS COTTON; PRICE RANGE LOWER

Cotton was sold by professionals and southern traders yesterday. The lower range induced trade and investment buying sufficient to make a rally. Evening up at the last made a finish with net losses of 1 to 5 points on futures in Chicago and 6 to 9 points in other markets. Spots were off 10 points in New York at 7.50 cents; New Orleans, 5 points lower at 7.35 cents, Galveston, 7.20 cents and Houston 7.25 cents. Liverpool closed 8 to 9 points net lower.

In the late trading a sharp rally in the New York security market brought in fair buying and the close was with a sentiment favoring buying on declines.

"If, however, such a thing should happen, then, of course, the prices of stocks and second rate bonds would rise. Second rate bonds would rise in value simply because the debtor could more easily liquidate the dent if money became relatively valueless, since the nominal amount of his debt would not change as a result of the inflation.

Stocks Jump; So Do Fleas.

"Stocks would rise in value simply because presumably the gross receipts of the company in question would increase in a ratio somewhat equivalent to the decline in the value of the currency. In other words, though the value of the currency would decline, the stockholder presumably would receive a greater amount of currency and thus offset the decline to a certain extent.

"The same would be true of commodities which would go up in price as inflation continued, and, likewise, real estate.

"There is another feature to all this and that is that if the present movement continues long enough it is conceivable that business machinery will start up and thus release from the banks the excess credit now available."

It will be noted that the above explanation is shaded by many qualifications. This is necessarily the case because so many things may happen to alter the course of inflation—no matter how carefully charted—that definite prediction is foolhardy.

The expert who cannot resist the temptation to make flat statements might find it safer to abandon economics, which is more a study of human behavior than a science.

He might, perhaps, get a job with the department of agriculture and help the fellow who wrote the department of agriculture bulletin from which the following paragraph was taken:

"It has been determined that the greatest horizontal distance fleas can jump is about 13 inches, and they cannot jump more than one-half this distance vertically. It is possible, therefore, to prevent them from gaining access to a bed by placing sticky fly paper about 13 inches wide on the floor around the bed."

OCTOBER EGGS LOWER

Heavy selling pressure caused a decline in egg futures of ¾@⅞c on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday. Butter was unsettled, closing ½c lower to ¼c higher. New selling and liquidation was a factor in eggs but new buying and covering continued heavy and the market reacted slowly. Statistical news was again bearish. Receipts were heavy and the four markets stored 15,000 cases more than last year. Butter was nervous. The opening was steady but the market broke ⅝c within a short time. A rallying at mid-session, but selling at the close brought about another reaction. Receipts gained and the four markets stored 92,000 lbs more than last year. Sales: butter, 73 cars; eggs, 98 cars. HOG PRICES SAG; DEMAND HOLDS UP AFTER DECLINE

Cattle Quality Ordinary, but Market Is Steady.

On the heels of the many bullish news reports issued during the week hogs turned abruptly lower yesterday, finishing the session in the sharpest break in nine days. The top for load lots and average price at $4.00 and $3.85, respectively, were off only 5 cents from the day before, but final transactions showed numerous instances of as much as 15 to 20 cents loss compared with the high point Thursday forenoon. A small lot sold early at $4.05.

Sentiment, however, is not on the weak side of the market. Large local packers again displayed their usual willingness to absorb supplies on dips and the clearance at the late decline in price was good.

While the break of the last two days has carried hogs 10 to 20 cents under the high point of Monday, the bulk of offerings still are 15 to 20 cents above last week's close.

Cattle of Ordinary Quality.

The light supply of 1,500 cattle in the pens yesterday attracted buying orders enough to create a lively competition for the few carrying "killer" flesh. There was the usual predominance of the lower grades that make up the bulk of Friday's offerings, but this did not dampen enthusiasm. Additional slight gains were registered in some places, considering the quality of the supply.

Nothing in the run was good enough to sell above $5.50, while the bulk of the receipts of steers cashed at $4.25 to $5.25. The trade is carrying a nominal quotation of $7.25 for "stick out" yearling steers, something the market has not seen much of for some time. The rank and file of cattle are closing 25 to 35 cents higher than a week ago.

Wool Helps Lambs.

The stronger position of the wool market during the last week has been a boon to the lamb trade. There has been considerable activity in wool lately at the highest prices since last September. Quotations in the better classes have moved up 1 to 1½ cents per pound since March 1. The pelt constitutes 15 per cent of the weight of the full grown lamb and is quite a factor in determining the level of the market for the live animal.

Yesterday's lamb prices lost 10 to 15 cents of Thursday's opening gains, but they were slightly better than at the close of that day. Prices are 25 to 35 cents higher than a week ago. Wooled lambs topped the market at $6.00 to shippers and city butchers, while packers bought the bulk at $5.75 and under, averaging 99 pounds and less.

LIQUIDATION IN LARD CARRIES PRICES DOWN

Late selling of lard, mainly in the way of liquidation due to weakness in grains and an easy tone in cotton at one time, forced a lower range with a close at net loss of 12½ to 15 cents. In all trading was not up to the recent aggregate. There was less hedging pressure and a fair cash trade. Demand for cash lard was not so good with regular 15 cents lower at $5.20, while loose was $4.60, and leaf off to $4.62½. Liverpool lard was unchanged for spots and 3d lower on futures. Exports of lard, 883,905 pounds. While the cash trade in bellies was fair at unchanged prices, $6.37½, futures were neglected at 10 to 12½ cents lower. Fresh pork loins moved out fairly at 7 to 9 cents. Prices follow:
